Steel Union Drops Fight For Round 4 Wage Raise

Murray Accedes To Truman Request 'With Regret'; Strike Set Today Called Off

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12 (AP).—CIO Steelworkers gave up their fight for a fourth-round wage increase today and called off a strike set for tomorrow midnight.

The union accepted both President Truman's request for a 11-day extension of the strike truce and recommendations of a presidential fact-finding board aimed at solving the steel wage dispute.

President Philip Murray of both the CIO and the United Steelworkers told Mr. Truman in a telegram he gave up the wage increase demand "with profound regret" but agreed to the board's recommendations "in the interest of concluding a prompt settlement."

In Washington, the White House said President Truman had no comment on Murray's reply. There was no immediate answer from any of the steel companies.

Six of the Nation's major steel producers have accepted the truce extension request. No company has yet given its answer on the board's formula.

Mr. Truman's three-man panel suggested that workers forego a wage increase and that both sides agree to a 10-cent hourly increase package covering insurance and pensions. The steelworkers asked a 30-cent package, including the wage raise.

The union's decision was made in day-long meetings of its executive board and wage policy committee at the Hotel Sheraton. The acceptances were made in the form of a resolution which Murray said was adopted unanimously by the 170-member committee.

The tone of the union sessions was calm and orderly. Only sporadic bursts of applause were heard through the tightly closed doors of the hotel ballroom.

At the conclusion of six and a half hours of sessions, Murray gave newsmen copies of the resolution and the telegram sent the White House.

The telegram, which summarized the resolution, said in part:

"The union will extend the period for continued work and operations under the terms of the collective bargaining agreements in effect between the union and the various companies until 12:01 a. m., September 25, 1949."

The telegram repeated the steelworkers' "firm belief that the union's proposal for 12½ cents per hour increase in wages currently payable is completely justified and was amply supported by the evidence produced before the board," adding:

"Nevertheless, in the interest of concluding a prompt settlement of

Deranged Jewish Youth Threatens Israel Parliament

Tel Aviv, Israel, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—A mentally ill Jewish youth crashed the Israeli parliament with a loaded automatic gun today but was seized by police before he could do more than shout defiance at the government.

Horrified members believed he was bent on the assassination of government officials, including Premier David Ben-Gurion, at whom he pointed the submachine gun.

Police said the youth, Abraham Zephati, was "ill" and claimed he had no intention of mowing down Israel's leaders. They said he was "ultra orthodox."

Zephati managed to get to the chairman's box unseen and shouted: "Why do you let Jerusalem slip through your fingers? We gave our blood for that city!"

'We Parted On Friendly Terms'

Faye Emerson Plans to Sue Elliott Roosevelt for Divorce

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Blonde actress Faye Emerson said today that she and Elliott Roosevelt have separated and that she plans a divorce from the second son of the late President.

They were married in December, 1944. It was her second marriage and his third.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she planned to begin divorce proceedings as soon as she finishes the motion picture, "Guilty Bystander," which she now is making in New York.

An unsigned statement handed out by her representative in Miss Emerson's presence at a West 57th st. studio said:

"Faye Emerson confirmed today the report that she would seek a divorce from Elliott Roosevelt. Miss Emerson said 'I'm sorry to say that Mr. Roosevelt and I have been separated for some time and I plan a divorce when I have finished my current motion picture. "'Elliott and I parted on friendly terms.'"

Roosevelt, in Providence, R. I., for a speaking engagement, said the domestic rift "is a personal matter—I have no comment."

$3200 in Slot Machine Taxes Paid to U. S. From D. C. Area

The Federal Government has collected $3200 in taxes on illegal slot machines in Greater Washington.

Records of the Internal Revenue Bureau at Baltimore yesterday disclosed the names of those who voluntarily paid $100 for each place having one or more of the one-armed bandits, despite local laws against them both in the District, Maryland and Virginia.

Of the 32 locations appearing in the Internal Revenue records:

Seventeen are in the District.

Twelve are in Prince Georges County, Md., just over the District line.

One is in Montgomery County, Md., at Silver Spring.

Two are in Virginia, both at military installations.

The Internal Revenue records are based on 1949 taxes paid voluntarily by the person who "maintains for use, or permits the use of, on any place or premises occupied by him" a slot machine which "by application of the element of chance may deliver or entitle the persons playing or operating the machine to receive cash, premiums, merchandise or tokens."

Two of the 32 taxpayers have marked their return blanks canceled, and the operators of several other establishments told The

Regulations For Holy Year Are Clarified

Catholics Can Obtain Jubilee Indulgences Without Visiting Rome

By the United Press

The Very Rev. Monsignor James E. Cowhig, chancellor of the Washington Archdiocese, last night interpreted the regulations for the Holy Year to mean that those Catholics who are unable to visit Rome in 1950 will nevertheless be able to receive jubilee indulgences.

The Holy Year was proclaimed last May by Pope Pius XII. Msgr. Cowhig's statement on the Pope's decree was obtained by the United Press to correct errors in a Rome dispatch which implied that Catholics go to Rome for forgiveness of sins and that an indulgence was such forgiveness. The statement was accompanied by an explanation that there is no requirement that indulgences be obtained in Rome nor are those unable to go excluded from the privileges.

"In a recent decree in connection with the coming Holy Year," said Msgr. Cowhig, "His Holiness Pope Pius XII announced to the Catholic world conditions necessary for gaining the jubilee indulgence, together with limitations that will accrue from this privilege during 1950.

"The jubilee indulgence ordinarily can be gained only in the city of Rome during the period of celebration of the Holy Year, December 25, 1949, to December 25, 1950.

"An indulgence, according to Catholic teaching, is the remission of the temporal punishment due to sin and does not in any way imply that absolution or forgiveness from sin is thereby granted. Indulgences are of two kinds—plenary, which is the complete remission of all punishment due to

D. C. Pressmen May Lose Charter, Jacobs Implies

Indianapolis, Sept. 12 (AP).—Rep-representative Jacobs (D., Ind.) said tonight the International Pressmen's Union (AFL) soon would attempt to revoke the charters of two large Eastern locals.

Jacobs said he had been informed the union will ask locals at Washington and Newark, N. J., to show cause why their charters should not be taken away. He did not disclose the source of his information.

The Indiana Democrat, who recently headed a House subcommittee studying the union's finances, said the two locals have been expected to bring suit against pressmen's officials for their handling of union funds.

Jacobs said he was informed that George Googe, international union vice president from Savannah, Ga., was instigating the action against the locals.

Strike Will Continue

Hawaii Dock Parleys Fail Despite Mediation Efforts

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Hawaiian dock strike peace talks broke up late today in complete failure.

Chief United States Mediator Cyrus S. Ching said at 6:20 p. m. (EDT):

"The parties remain so hopelessly far apart in their thinking that further mediation at this time would be of no avail."

Harry Bridges, president of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said:

"The strike will go on."

W. Russell Starr, spokesman for the Hawaiian Employers Council, said:

"We sincerely regret that conciliation has failed. We will be ready to continue negotiations in Hawaii with the union whenever it wishes to do so. We hope that the union will be more realistic there."

Ching said "I have assured both parties that the service will always be available to them in the event that we can again contribute toward the settlement of this dispute."

Bridges said the union had submitted nine specific proposals looking toward settlement of the 135-day-old strike, which has dealt a serious bow to Hawaii's economy.

"We have not received a single proposal from the employer," Bridges said.

Earlier, Bridges suggested that a presidential fact-finding board be named in the strike.

Starr said that by the end of this month nine ships will have arrived in Hawaii or will be en route. These can be unloaded by workers employed by the Territorial Government, which has seized the docks as an emergency measure.

Filibuster On DP's Seen In Senate

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The first session of the Eighty-first Congress, which opened with a filibuster, may close with one or more.

This was plainly hinted yesterday when Senate leaders ordered a night session tonight to speed clearance of the Administration's Reciprocal Trade Act renewal bill.

Republicans offered to cooperate for an early trade act showdown, but there were intra-party filibuster rumblings on these two Truman points:

1. Liberalized displaced persons legislation. Senate Judiciary Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) said he was "by no means" threatening the Senate but DP debate "will take a long time." In Senate lingo, extended debate often means filibuster.

Prospect for Civil Rights

2. Civil rights legislation. Following a legislative conference with the President, Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) said it is possible the Senate "may even take up civil rights legislation before this session adjourns." Southern Democrats have bluntly threatened filibuster if civil rights is added to the agenda.

McCarran's warning of "lengthy" DP debate came during warm floor exchange with Lucas. The Nevada Democrat had just asked a three weeks' leave of absence from the Senate to study DP and ECA developments in Europe.

Lucas told him he could not "guarantee" that a motion to discharge his Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the stalemated DP bill will not be called up while he is gone.

Session May End Soon

"I do not know just how fast the legislative program will move along, but three weeks might be a long time for him (McCarran) to be away in view of the circumstances," said Lucas. "We may find ourselves getting pretty close to the end of the session in three or four weeks."

McCarran replied that he was not threatening "but I hope he (Lucas) will not take up this matter during my absence."

"It will take a long time because it is a lengthy matter which required many weeks of hearings," said the Nevadan. "The transcript of the hearings certainly should be presented . . . so Senators may know why this bill is given the indulgence and study accorded it."

May Test Filibuster Weapon

Lucas said he would notify McCarran by cable if the bill is called up. He said he still thought it possible "to get the bill out while the Senator is gone."

"I doubt it very much," replied McCarran.

Questioned later on the outlook for civil rights debate, Lucas

Adm. Halsey Supports Crommelin

By The Associated Press

Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey declared yesterday that Capt. John Crommelin "is attempting to do something for the good of the country" by charging that Navy offensive strength is being scuttled.

Halsey also told reporters: "I feel that he deserves the help and respect of all naval officers."

Halsey, now retired, was the second admiral to speak words of encouragement for Crommelin, the Navy flier who protested in a weekend statement against present defense policies.

Rear Admiral Austin K. Doyle of Glenview, Ill., had asserted that Crommelin is a great naval officer and that "the American people should listen to him." Doyle is head of the naval air training program.

"Capt. John Crommelin is one of the greatest naval aviators of all times," Doyle said, adding:

"He has always had the country's interest at heart. He has never thought of his own interests. He is a man of the highest and nicest integrity."

Not Off-Line

"I find it impossible that he be off-line in any great degree in any statement that he may make."

Crommelin issued a statement Saturday in which he protested that Navy power is being wrecked in the Pentagon, headquarters of the Armed Services. He said it is being "nibbled to death" and Navy morale destroyed.

The Navy and Air Force for several years have engaged in a bitter dispute over their respective roles in strategic warfare.

The 46-year-old captain said that in making his statement he knew he was breaking regulations and expected he was throwing overboard his 30-year Navy career.

A Navy spokesman told a reporter yesterday, however, that Crommelin has not been suspended. The captain, who works under the Joint Chiefs of Staff, showed up for duty as usual. During the morning he attended a meeting of his group which does spadework on America's top secret war plans.

Sasscer Urges Inquiry

In speaking out Saturday Crommelin said:

"I hope this will blow the whole thing open and bring on another congressional investigation."

The wish won one Congressman's indorsement. Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) said Congress should take a hand in the row. Sasscer, a top-ranking Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee, indicated he feels such a review might help settle the dispute which flared into public view during the recent congressional investigation of the Air Force's B-36 bomber.

He said he favored an inquiry

Nazis Burned His Books

Prof. Heuss Elected President Of West German Republic

Bonn, Germany, Sept. 12 (AP).—Theodor Heuss, white-haired professor who wrote 20 books burned by the Nazis, was elected first President of western Germany tonight.

In an acceptance speech he pledged to make the infant republic "a living democracy." He was sworn into office immediately.

In an interview just before his election, he urged an early withdrawal of occupation troops, unity of the western and eastern zones, Germany's admittance to the Council of Europe and close relations with France.

(Germany's last President was Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, elected in 1932. When he died in 1934, Adolf Hitler, then chancellor, combined the two offices and called himself Reichsfuerher.)

Heuss, 65-year-old chairman of the conservative Free Democrats, third largest party in western Germany, was elected on the second ballot by the Federal Electoral Assembly.

After China Compromise

Senate Committee Approves Military Aid Measure, 20-3

A $1,314,000,000 military assistance bill, to arm friendly nations against Communist aggression, was favorably reported to the Senate yesterday after a row over aid to China was quietly compromised.

The joint Senate Foreign Affairs-Armed Services Committee approved the bill, 20 to 3, in substantially the same form as it was amended last week.

Republicans dropped their fight for a specific arms allotment to China anti-Communists when the committee agreed to a slight change of language proposed by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.).

The revised language, approved 16 to 5, still gives the Administration complete discretion over use or nonuse of 75 million dollars earmarked in the bill last week for "China and the Far East." The compromise drops specific mention of the Far East, thus tying the sum closer to China. But the President was given plenty of leeway by additional language covering the "general area" of China.

Other aid sections of the bill provide:

U. S. Tried to Tax Canadians Bound To Jap War in '43

United States customs officials tried to collect tariff duties from Canadian troops headed to fight the Japanese in the Pacific in 1943.

Lester B. Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affairs, told of the incident yesterday.

He said it occurred when a Canadian expedition prepared to cross the Alaskan border to join American forces in ejecting the Japanese from the island of Kiska.

Pearson said United States border customs officials ruled that the Canadians could not enter Alaska unless they paid duty on their new rifles and other military equipment.

Finally it was arranged with the White House to declare the Canadians "distinguished foreign visitors," Pearson said.

Czech Priests' Peace Offer Boomerangs

Overture Rewarded By Cutting Off Pay, Seizure of Property

Prague, Sept. 12 (AP).—Mounting oppression of Czechoslovak Catholic priests has followed a new church peace offer, Catholic sources said here today.

The Czechoslovak bishops drafted their plea to the government to end its hostility to the church nearly a month ago at Trnava, in Slovakia. The peace offer, demanding recognition of Pope Pius as the head of the church, complete freedom of Archbishop Josef Beran, and repeal of all restrictions on religious freedom, was disclosed only today.

At the same time, Catholics cited government acts which occurred since the 2000-word appeal was written.

Archbishop Josef Matocha, of Olomouc, in the State of Moravia, second in rank in Czechoslovakia's Roman Catholic hierarchy, has been placed under a so-called police security guard, they said. Priests have been fined, and their property and automobiles confiscated because they read pastoral letters of their superiors without prior government consent.

In Archbishop Matocha's own diocese, the salaries of 60 priests were suspended, church authorities said, either because the priests read the letters "or because they were regarded as insufficiently devoted to the Peoples Democratic government."

The government has installed political science lecturers to instruct theological seminary students in Communist theory.

In the usual weekend speech tours, Communist Premier Antonin Zapotocky accused Catholic lead-

The Washington Post

CHAMPION RIDER—Charles A. Stewart, 94 (center), Washington's oldest transit rider, is congratulated by runner-up Allen Colton, also 94, and Mrs. Charlotta Marceron, 84, at yesterday's luncheon

A 94-year-old man whose devotion to streetcars survived the acid test of being hit by one three years ago yesterday was chosen Washington's "oldest living transit rider."

In a scene reviving the old and long-lost gallantry, Charles A. Stewart, 28 Adams st. nw., nosed out Allen Colton, 815 Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md., who is only 93.

Colton had been notified by the Capital Transit Co. that the honor was his. But when he arrived at the Willard Hotel luncheon noting nationwide Transit Progress Day, he was introduced to Stewart, whose letter had arrived at the last moment and who turned out to be seven months older.

Unruffled, Colton executed a perfect Chesterfieldian sweep toward Stewart: "I bow to my senior."

Stewart, a retired grocer, rode his first Washington streetcar about 1875 and today rides them for recreation. His streetcar loyalty—and hardihood—were attested in his letter to the transit firm.

"I feel very close to your company. In fact so close that three years ago while crossing the tracks I was knocked down by one of your cars. I did not give my age as some people might think that a man in his gay nineties should not be riding alone."

Mrs. Charlotta "Aunt Lottie" Marceron, 82, of 54 Rhode Island ave. ne., remembered than on her first streetcar ride as a child she didn't pay her nickel. "I sat very quietly in the back."

The nineties era of horse-cars and such was recalled in much nostalgic detail by old-time riders

'Mayor' Neely Meets Citizens, Gets Ideas for Better D. C.

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Into a new kind of Washington town meeting, citizens yesterday brought "Mayor" Matthew M. Neely a familiar bill of particulars for city betterment.

At the outset Neely advised the group to form a representative citizens committee of 100 to 1000 to formulate a program for city improvement for presentation to Congress.

Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) the new Senate District chairman, met some 60 representatives of Washington groups in his committee's ornate hearing room in the Capitol.

"This is your meeting," he told them. Then he sat back with Committee Members Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.) and Edward L. Leahy (D., R. I.) to hear 11 of the citizens describe trouble spots in the District setup. Others will go on with their reports at 10 a. m. today.

The first witness said Washington's first problem is its inadequate schools. He was John H. Connaughton, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations. From his mention of schools, the two-hour discussion of Washington needs ran a gamut that included:

A bigger Federal payment to the District.

More traffic lights.

A local airport for private planes and one for cargo planes.

Home rule for Washington.

National representation for the District.

Wheat Sale Resumption Authorized, But No Cash

Officials Promise Efforts to Cut Expenses, Boost Goods Output

(Text on Page 9)

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States and Canada announced yesterday that they intend to back up Great Britain, now and in the future, in her efforts to earn her way in the world.

The two North American countries, Britain's greatest suppliers of food and materials, promised to take some specific steps and to study others which would ease the British dollar shortage and open dollar markets to British goods.

In turn, the British pledged strenuous efforts to cut their costs and to push the production and sale of dollar-earning goods and services.

Ministers of the three countries announced their agreement in a 2500-word communique after six days of talks on the British dollar shortage and the dwindling of British gold and dollar reserves.

ECA Decision Disclosed

The communique outlined only one or two steps that could be taken at once—among them a decision, to be announced by the Economic Cooperation Administration today, to let the British resume the buying of Canadian wheat with Marshall Plan dollars.

Most of the remaining measures were left for future study and action, but the communique made clear that the three countries would set up a continuing organization to work on them.

In general, the communique showed that the three governments regarded the British problem as a problem affecting all, and had resolved to stick together to find solutions.

Sir Stafford Cripps, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, promptly announced to reporters that the agreement should check the drain of gold and dollars which had been threatening Britain with virtual bankruptcy.

"Manageable Condition"

"As a result of the talks," said Cripps, "we have brought our reserve problem into manageable condition." And Ernest Bevin, the British Foreign Secretary, said the western democracies had faced their economic problems in the same "one-for-all-and-all-for-one" spirit of the Atlantic Pact.

Lester B. Pearson, the Canadian Minister for External Affairs, speaking shortly before the communique was issued, said the three countries had agreed on some "very important and straightforward steps." Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder de-

Crabs 'Invasion' Forces Maryland To Extend Season

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 12 (AP).—In the face of a "tremendous" crab invasion, Maryland today extended the 1949 crab season to the legal limit of November 30.

"A tremendous run of crabs" is forging up Chesapeake Bay, said Chairman David H. Wallace of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Hordes of blue crabs are swimming, crawling and being carried by tides from spawning grounds in the mouth of the bay.

They are biting greedily at all kinds of bait and even "crawling up on the docks," one crabber said.

The abundant supply of hard-shell crabs forced Crisfield packers to freeze quantities of soft shell crabs to stabilize the market.

The invading hordes are just now beginning to appear in Anne Arundel County's Severn River and in Talbot County waters, Wallace said.

Nazi Party Court Judge Ends Life

Munich, Germany, Sept. 12 (AP). The chief judge of the Nazi party supreme court, Reichsleiter Walter Buch, committed suicide by slashing his wrists and jumping into Ammer Lake, Bavarian state police announced today.

Buch's body was dragged from the lake last Friday evening.

Police said they did not know the exact date on which Buch killed himself or the motive.

Buch was adjudged a major offender in two denazification trials. In July the Munich appellate court reduced his forced-labor sentence from five years to the time he had already been under arrest—3½ years.

Buch presided when the Nazi court investigated slaughter of more than 100 Jews in a Germany-wide pogrom November 8, 1938.

His secret judgment, which fell into Allied hands after the war, declared the Nazi rank and file to be innocent of any crime and to have faithfully obeyed "orders from above."

British to Put Berlin Case Before U. N.

Berlin, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Britain will tell the United Nations this fall that the continued stalemate between East and West over Berlin is "intolerable," Maj. Gen G. K. Bourne declared today.

Bourne said a blunt paper on Berlin is now being prepared. He said it will show with facts and figures the city's serious economic problems as a result of the split.

Some 230,000 persons in west Berlin are unemployed and more are dropping into the idle category every day, Bourne said.

Bourne, British military commandant here, made the statement after the four commandants reached their first agreement in almost two years—that postage stamps issued by either side will be recognized in the sector of the other.

The three western powers, in a letter to Russian transport officials, charged the Soviets had violated the pact which ended Berlin's elevated train strike in July.

Nearly 2000 workers have been dismissed for taking part in the strike against the Soviet-controlled railways, the letter said.

Bonn., Sept. 12 (NYHT).—The Allied military governors met today to plan the transfer of much of their authority to the West German government and their own change into an Allied High Commission.

The three—John J. McCloy, American, Sir Brian H. Robertson, British, and Andre Francois-Poncet, French—approved a press and radio control law which will give the high commission continuing powers to prevent any revival of a Nazi or Neo-Nazi press.

Czech Priests Are Repulsed

ers of trying to overthrow the government, divide the country and provoke a religious war.

Other Communist leaders issued new threats against the "dissident Catholic clergy."

The bishops' peace offer said flatly "we repeat we are willing to negotiate for a just regulation of the mutual relations between church and state if there will be efforts by the state to respect the freedom of the church.

Priests Find Recorder

Negotiations broke down early this year when the bishops said they found a recording instrument hidden inside their council chamber.

One of the seven main points of the newest peace appeal was a demand the government cease prosecuting for high treason priests who carry out church excommunication decrees.

The bishops protested official "base insults and lying accusations" against the Czechoslovak hierarchy and the Pope. They demanded the government halt its support for a "Catholic action" movement. They protested a new church control law as "completely unacceptable."

The bishops demanded the government vacate church administrative offices it had occupied.

The appeal asserted that Catholics had taken oaths of loyalty to the Czechoslovak republic in the past and were willing to repeat them.

The bishops demanded full personal and official freedom for Archbishop Josef Beran, of Prague, head of the church.

He remains in his heavily guarded palace, surrounded by security police and government agents, where he has been since late in June.

Tito Pays Tribute to Soviet Union

Belgrade, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito today paid tribute to the Soviet Union "as the first country of socialism," but said again he will stand for no Soviet meddling in Yugoslav affairs.

Tito's statement, issued by the official press office here, was more conciliatory than recent Russo-Yugoslav outbursts. But his defiance of the Soviets remained firm.

Tito made his remarks in a speech to five "Socialist hero" miners whom he received here yesterday.

Tito described Yugoslavia's position today as "an invincible fortress."

"We think that the very existence of the Soviet Union as a great socialistic country represents a powerful factor which enables the development of progressive forces in many countries and enables them to win victories," he said.

"There is no necessity for the Soviet Union to interfere in the internal affairs of countries which are building socialism, for that can only do harm."

Pole, Czech Minimize Tito-Stalin Quarrel

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Two diplomats from behind the Iron Curtain arrived in New York today, both minimizing the rift between the Kremlin and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Julius Katz-Suchy, Poland's permanent representative to the United Nations, arriving at La Guardia Field, said he did not think the rift was "any concern" of the United Nations.

"I don't see any conflict between Tito and Stalin," he said. "There is a certain difference of opinion between the Soviet government and the Yugoslavian government which is entirely a question of the states concerned and no one else."

Vladimir Outrata, Czechoslovakian Ambassador to the United States who arrived aboard the Queen Mary, described the Tito-Stalin quarrel as the kind of thing that frequently happens in moments of "Socialist Revolution."

He said he thought "the Yugoslav people will get him (Tito) out some way."

Troops Sped To Hong Kong

Hongkong, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Both Hongkong and the Portuguese colony of Macao, 50 miles south, reinforced their defense garrisons today against the possibility of Communist attack.

The troopship Lancashire arrived at Hongkong from Britain with 800 reinforcements. A report from Macao said 1500 Portuguese replacements were expected there today.

Israel Backs International Supervision of Holy Places

Fribourg, Switzerland, Sept. 12 (AP).—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of Israel, said today Israel would welcome direct international supervision of the holy places in Jerusalem.

In Tel Aviv, the chairman of Parliament's foreign affairs committee declared "Neither the Israeli government nor the Israeli Parliament is contemplating a change in the declared policy regarding Jerusalem." This policy is against international rule for the Holy City.

There was nothing inconsistent in the two statements, since Weizmann was referring to international supervision and access to the holy places while the parliamentary spokesman concerned himself with the United Nations proposal to make all Jerusalem an internationally ruled area similar to Trieste.

Arabs, Israelis Asked To Review Demands

Lausanne, Switzerland, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—The United Nations Palestine conciliation commission today asked both the Arab and Israel delegations to peace talks here to reconsider their territorial demands on the grounds they are unreasonable.

The negotiations will be resumed when in New York late in October. Both the Arabs and Israelis agreed to send delegations to the New York meeting, a spokesman said.

U. N. Survey Commission Ignores Arab Criticism

Beirut, Lebanon, Sept. 12 (AP).—The United Nations Survey Commission formed to investigate economic woes brought on by the Palestine war read criticism of itself today in a large segment of the Arab press—but ignored it officially.

Newspapers in Arab capitals have indicated an attitude of suspicion toward the purposes and probable results of the work of the commission, headed by Gordon R. Clapp, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Clapp would not comment on the criticism, saying the commission has an assignment in the Middle East and "will carry it out as best we can." He said the commission has been assured of the cooperation of the governments concerned.

victim of Adolf Hitler's concentration camps, was the candidate of the Social Democrats, second largest party, and received 312 votes.

Heuss received 416 of the 800 votes, made up mostly from a solid combination of support from three conservative parties which hoped to rule western Germany—the Christian Democrats, largest in western Germany, Free Democrats and the small German party.

A third candidate from the Centrist Party, Dr. Rudolph Amelunxen, received 30 votes. Dr. Hans Schlange-Schoeningen, a Christian Democrat, received two votes and 37 electors abstained.

The solid lineup of the three conservative parties seemed to assure the naming of the Christian Democratic leader, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, as chancellor (prime minister).

The chancellor, to be nominated by the President, will wield the real power in western Germany. The presidency is largely a figurehead position.

Upon installation of the President, chancellor and cabinet appointed by the chancellor, Allied Military Government in western Germany will fade out. The three Western occupation powers will replace their military governors with high commissioners who will retain limited direction of German affars under an occupation statute. The powers will have authority, however, to step in when necessary to protect their security.

The choice of President was made by 402 delegates to the Bundestag, lower house of parliament, who were chosen in a popular election last month, and an equal number of electors chosen by the legislatures of the 11 states.

Sixteen observers from Berlin were present without voting rights.

Schumacher's name was thrown into the election at the last minute after a Social Democratic caucus. Adenauer and other leaders of the winning coalition had sought to win Social Democrats over to the idea of electing Heuss without a fight.

The new president, who will serve for five years, likes a good cigar and an occasional glass of beer. His hobby is sketching landscapes. Tall, and slightly stooped, he speaks with studious care in German, English, French or Italian.

He is a political scientist who followed in the footsteps of his father, a civil engineer who fought for the unsuccessful 1848 revolution.

Heuss was a Democratic Party member of the Reichstag and a professor in Berlin when the Nazis came to power in 1933. Soon he was thrown out of all his offices and forbidden to lecture.

The Nazis objected in particular to his book, "Study of Hitler." A prolific author of books and newspaper and magazine articles, he was forbidden to write any more, and all his books were banned and burned. His home was searched by Nazi police repeatedly.

After the war Heuss became a professor at the technical college at Stuttgart and minister of education of Wuerttemberg-Baden state.

"It has been the sorrow of the Germans that democracy in Germany was not fought for, but always came after a catastrophe," he said. Referring to the partitioned former capital, he declared "Berlin is bound up with the fate of West Germany, but the fate of all Germany remains bound up with Berlin."

He warned against allowing state pride to obstruct the federal government, and in a voice choked with emotion expressed regret that "our German brothers in the East" were not yet a part of the republic.

"The German East is not only a potato and grain field, but the home of German human beings who must never be forgotten," he declared.

The most important question for Germany, he continued, is the regaining of "self-independence" and the development of a "new national feeling without any resentment in it."

A flood of applause was loosed as he took the oath "to devote all my energies to the welfare of the German people, foster their prosperity, guard them against harm, obey and defend the constitution and the laws of the federal republic, conscientiously fulfill my duties, and act justly toward everyone, so help me God."

He was escorted by a new presidential bodyguard of 28 policemen in blue uniforms and shining helmets to his open automobile.

Dutch Attack Java Moslems

Batavia, Java, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Dutch troops were reported today to have launched a full-scale offensive in western Java against the "Darul Islam," a religious group which aims to create a Moslem state in all Indonesia.

The Dutch were said to have engaged Darul units 10 times during the past four days, killing 80 but suffering no losses themselves. The Dutch were engaged in mopping-up operations about 30 miles southeast of Bandong, reports said.

The Darulers are bitterly opposed to both the Dutch and the Indonesian Republicans.

A United Nations communique said the Republican government had protested to the U.N., that the Dutch violated the Indonesian-Dutch truce by executing nine Nationalist prisoners last week.

The Dutch contended the nine prisoners were ordinary criminals.

War Games Slowed By Bickering Brass

By J. J. Meehan

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—A dispute between the American Army and Air Force over Air Force claims to have wiped out an Army unit tonight marked the autumn war maneuvers, which began last Tuesday in what was outwardly complete amity.

It appeared the two services were more at war with one another than they were with a mythical army striking into U. S. occupied Germany from eastern Europe.

The Air Force yesterday claimed the entire force of the United States armored constabulary acting as the "enemy" was "annihilated." Surprised Army officers said the claims were "unconfirmed," and added that they "would spoil our maneuvers."

Brig. Gen. Phillip E. Gallagher told a public briefing for important foreign and U. S. observers that the U. S. constabulary and First Division, both Army units, were "units that any nation would be proud of and would give a lot to possess."

Brig. Gen. Charles F. Born, director of air operations for the United States European Air Force, said he considered the remarks a slur on the Air Force. He threatened to call the Air Force planes away from the maneuvers.

One high ranking Air Force officer criticized an Army general for "ignoring" the Air Force in official statements.

"You know if the Russians were coming it would be the Air Force that would have to get them," ranking officers of the Air Force said.

Today Army-directed umpires declared an Air Force fighter wing virtually wiped out after it made a low-level strafing mission.

Meanwhile, First Division troops continued their pursuit of "enemy" armor retreating toward Czechoslovakia.

Civil Rule Policy for Guam Hit

By the United Press

Members of the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday threatened to block President Truman's program for establishing a civilian government on Guam.

Mr. Truman issued an executive order last week transferring jurisdiction over the U. S. island possession from the Navy to the Interior Department on July 1, 1950. The island has been under Navy rule more than half a century.

James P. Davis, head of Interior's division of territories and island possessions, asked the committee for a $600,000 supplemental appropriation to pay the salaries of 196 civilian administrators scheduled to take over next July 1.

But chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) replied that he was "not going to vote for any such appropriation."

He and other members suggested that they should make an official inspection trip to the island before acting on the proposal.

The House Appropriations Committee recently turned down the fund request on the ground that Congress has not acted on a long-pending bill providing statutory authority for the switch to civilian government.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) said it would be cheaper to let the Navy continue operating the island.

Senator Guy Cordon (R., Ore.) agreed with McKellar.

"There is no urgency about this," he told Davis. "You've moved a little too rapidly."

into the roles of the Army, Navy and Air Force in defense and security.

A Crommelin attack on the Tydings law passed this year to tighten unification of the services was called "silly" by its author, Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Crommelin meantime reported he had gained support in his "crusade."

"The 'phone has been ringing almost continually all day," he told a reporter. "I have had calls from Army officers, quite a few Naval friends, and some flag officers. They said they admired my courage and I think they'll help the crusade, every one of them."

One of the calls, he said, was from Admiral Doyle.

Barkley Again Denies Rumors Of Wedding Plans

Vice President Alben W. Barkley yesterday dismissed as "baseless" rumors that he may marry Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, St. Louis, Mo., widow on September 23.

He added, however, that he hopes to attend Mrs. Hadley's birthday party on that date—if his Senate duties permit.

Barkley told reporters they ought to take it easy.

"If I have any news I'll come running to tell you fellows," he said. "You won't have to look me up."

Arlington Baby Sprains Ankle in Two-Story Fall

A 2½-year-old Arlington girl fell from a second-story bedroom window, but suffered only a sprained ankle.

The child, Jeannette De Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeFrancis, 2014 S. Eads st., Arlington, had been left on a bed in the room for a nap.

The mother said the child knocked out a screen covering a window even with the bed. The child fell to a grassy plot beneath.

Gen. Feldman Thanks Aides For Loyalty

Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, restored to duty as Quartermaster General of the Army, yesterday thanked personnel of the Quartermaster Corps for their loyalty during the period of his suspension.

General Feldman was suspended July 16 as a result of charges that led to the investigation of "5-per-centers" or influence peddlers in Washington, but last Saturday was ordered restored to duty by Secretary of the Army Gray. Secretary Gray found the general's 42 years of service "honorable and efficient" despite some "errors of judgment" in the "5-percenter" case.

General Feldman said in a statement:

"It is very difficult to express in full measure my sincere appreciation for your many and spontaneous expressions of loyalty, faith and confidence. They have been soul-soothing and morale-sustaining at a time when one needed a friendly hand or gesture. It has truly been a difficult period for all of us.

"My constant caution to Quartermaster Corps personnel that 'our important mission in the supply of troops necessarily placed us in a glass bowl subject to the scrutiny of the public' required that our every move, our every action and decision, be made only after careful evaluation and analysis. Our recent experience is ample proof of the validity of that caution.

"I know our faith and understanding is now more pronounced and that the esprit of our corps will be firmer and better. We have profited fully."

Two Forced Down In Atlantic Hop Will Try Again

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—John Brondello, unsuccessful in his first attempt to fly nonstop to New York in a single-engined plane, announced tonight he would try again.

Brondello and his copilot Camillo Baroglie, were forced down by engine trouble at Lagens, the Azores, early today (2:50 a. m., E.D.T.), after taking off from Lisbon in their Beechcraft plane.

[They said they hoped to be the first to cross the North Atlantic east to west nonstop in a single-engine plane. Apparently they had forgotten that British Airman James Mollison did it in August, 1932. He flew from Ireland to New Brunswick in a Puss Moth, powered with one 120-horsepower engine, the Associated Press said.]

Big Day on Mayan Calendar Has Archeologists Baffled

Mexico City, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—What big thing happened in southern Mexico in the year 644 A. D.?

This is the mystic date beautifully inscribed on a great Mayan stone table recently discovered at Palenque, Chiapas.

Anthropoligists have worked out the date from previous knowledge of the accurate Mayan calendar system. But they have no clue as to why it was carved in such great detail.

The huge stone tablet, uncovered in May by excavators of the National Anthropological and Historical Institute, is 10 feet high and 7 feet wide. It is made of three stone slabs and occupies the central wall of an outer gallery of the Mayan "palace" at Palenque.

Excavators were working along the Palenque palace outer walls, tumbled by some remote earthquake or collapse of foundations, in an effort to trace the original plan of the building. The tablet was completely uncovered with a few hours shoveling.

The central slab depicts three throned figures. The central figure is receiving gifts from the other two, one of which is a woman. The figures are carved with the simplicity and sureness of line typical of the Mayan artist.

The remainder of the tablet is inscribed with 18 columns of hieroglyphics—286 in all. These spell out the mysterious date, 644 A. D.

The unusual feature of the inscriptions is that they are composed of human and animal figures rather than by the bars and dots the Mayans usually used to work out their dates. Each figure has some characteristic that relates it to the number it represents.

Examples of such figures used for numbers are very rare. The only others known are those found at Copan, Quirigua and Yaxchilan.

CAB Airport Unit Picks Florida Man As Its Chairman

By the United Press

A. B. Curry, Miami, Fla., airport operator, yesterday was elected chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Administration's newly created Airport Advisory Committee.

Walter E. Betsworth, Waterloo, Iowa, was elected vice chairman.

Administrator Delos Rentzel set up the group to advise him on problems of airport operation. Yesterday's meeting discussed management, operations, maintenance, traffic control and legal problems.

Other committee members are Hervey F. Law, Port of New York Authority; G. D. Albrecht, Memphis; Carl J. Mundson, Grand Forks, N. Dak.; John H. Burke, Oklahoma City; Clarence M. Young, Los Angeles; J. P. Doyle, Portland, Oreg. Don W. Martin, Wilmington, Del.; John Berry, Cleveland; Louis R. Inwood, Kansas City, and James E. Mooney, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Truman Said To Hold School Aid Inevitable

A White House caller reported yesterday that President Truman is confident that Congress eventually will pass a Federal aid-to-education bill.

The caller, Dr. Andrew D. Holt, president of the National Education Association, presented the President with a resolution expressing the association's thanks for his efforts in behalf of Federal aid to schools.

Holt, also secretary of the Tennessee State Teachers Association, Nashville, was accompanied to the White House by Willard E. Givens, NEA executive secretary.

Holt said Mr. Truman told him Federal aid to the schools is "bound to come" and that the Administration is pushing continuously for early action.

Humphrey Pushes Bill

The Senate has passed a bill authorizing Federal aid of 300 million dollars for the schools. The legislation is tied up in the House Labor Committee as the result of a controversy over whether part of the funds should go to provide bus service and similar aids for parochial and other nonpublic schools.

Holt said he and the President did not discuss that dispute.

Meanwhile, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) appealed to Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) to get the school construction bill to the Senate floor for action. Humphrey was chairman of the Labor Subcommittee that approved the bill after hearings.

Says Many Buildings Obsolete

"Millions of children in all sections of America now attend classes in buildings that are obsolete," Humphrey wrote. "Many buildings are totally inadequate having no fire escapes or fire prevention facilities, and in actuality are fire traps. Testimony established beyond question that a great number of our schols have light conditions so poor that our children's eyesight is in danger. Due to the shortage of actual school buildings in various sections of the country an increased number of pupils are attending school in shifts. President Truman took note of this deplorable situation in a public statement a few days ago."

Wallace Won't Run for Senator From New York

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace today put an end to persistent reports that he would run for Senator from New York against former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Senator John Foster Dulles.

The 60-year-old former Vice President said in a statement that he would not seek public office "this year" but, a few hours later, he made it clear that he intended to remain in politics.

He told 1000 guests at a dinner in his honor that it was the "sacred duty" of the Progressive Party to give the United States a plan to replace "the bipartisan program which is leading us through the valley of depression to World War III."

GOP Call Spurned By Eisenhower, Colorado Hears

Denver, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was quoted here today as saying he didn't want to talk to any Republican.

The general, vacationing in Denver, could not be reached for comment. He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

Hugh S. Jenings of Denver, a member of the Young Republican League of Colorado, said today he telephoned Eisenhower Friday from Estes Park where the league was meeting.

Jenings said he told the general that John Evans, State chairman of the Young Republicans, wished to speak to him.

Eisenhower, according to Jenings, replied: "I don't want to talk to any Republican" and hung up.

Fifth Red Ordered Jailed for Contempt

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Carl Winter, a Communist conspiracy trial defendant, was jailed today for contempt by Federal Judge Harold R. Medina. He is the fifth to be held in contempt at the trial.

Judge Medina held him guilty of "wilfull and deliberate contempt" for refusing to answer a question on cross-examination.

He was sentenced to jail for 30 days or until he purges himself of contempt.

Winter is a member of the national board of the Communist Party and party chairman in Michigan.

Seventy-five placard-waving pickets from Illinois marched today in front of the Federal courthouse, where the Communist trial is being held.

The pickets, who arrived yesterday by special train, were organized by the Civil Rights Congress of Illinois. They came here from Chicago, East St. Louis, Danville, Rock Island, Peoria and Springfield.

The delegation flaunted placards and chanted protests against the trial, now in its thirty-fifth week. One of the signs read: "Free Gil Green, Favorite Son of Illinois."

Gilbert Green, one of the 11 defendants, is district chairman of the Communist Party in Chicago.

A group of five Protestant clergymen from Chicago told newsmen that they would attend the trial late today.

In a joint statement they said said that they came here "upon the invitation of a group of clergymen in New York to observe the Communist trial and to report our findings to our colleagues, our parishioners, and to the people of Illinois."

Spokesman for the delegation was the Rev. Verle Blair, who said he was with the Church of Our Master, non-sectarian, in Chicago. The others said they were the Rev. Ralph Waldo Bushee, jr., a Presbyterian; Harvey Grandy, who would give no information about himself; H. M. Hooper, who said he was of the Church of the Risen Nazarent; and Luvern Olsen, who said he was of the Community Church.

'Artists' Ask for Reversal Of 2 Writers' Conviction

Some 300 self-styled "cultural workers" asked the Supreme Court yesterday to reverse the congressional contempt convictions of Hollywood film writers Dalton Trumbo and John Howard Lawson.

The two writers were sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1000 after they were convicted of refusing to tell the House Unamerican Activities Committee whether they were Communists. They already have appealed their cases to the high court.

Their petitions challenging the committee's constitutionality were supplemented in a brief filed by Carey McWilliams, Los Angeles attorney, in behalf of some 300 persons, including more than 200 from the West Coast film colony.

The latter group included Charles Chaplin, John Garfield, Donald Ogden Stewart and Dorothy Parker. Numbered among those who included themselves as members of "other arts and professions" were Singer Paul Robeson, Attorney O. John Rogge and Playwright Marc Connelly.

Their brief accused the committee of trying to censor the motion picture industry through its investigations.

The fate of eight other film writers and producers who figured in the 1947 communism-in-Hollywood hearings hinges on the court's decision.

Russians to Resume Ersatz Rubber Plants

Berlin, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Oswald Bertsch, chief chemist for the Soviet zone economic commission, told the Soviet-licensed news agency ADN today that Russian-held synthetic rubber plants would soon resume production.

Bertsch made no mention of the American-British - French - Russian agreement banning synthetic rubber production as a war potential and establishing an approved level for German industry.

Trainmen Postpone Pittsburgh Strike

Cleveland, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has agreed to postpone a strike on the Union Railroad Company at Pittsburgh set for 6:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

The brotherhood office here quoted BRT President W. P. Kennedy as saying the union will discuss the dispute in Washington Wednesday with the National Mediation Board.

But any time during or after the conversations, a strike could be called within 24 hours, said a BRT spokesman.

Earlier this afternoon, a BRT spokesman said his union would accept the board's request to postpone the strike two weeks.

However, he added, the brotherhood president has since advised his office it will not stand by a two-week fixed period but will retain the right to strike at any time.

The strike would idle perhaps 50,000 steel workers in Pittsburgh mills, even though the interplant railroad itself would embrace only 1200 men.

The dispute is over assignment of train crews and no wage question is involved.

A presidential fact-finding board recommended arbitration on the work rules dispute to help settle months of negotiations. The railroad agreed, but the union refused.

Chairman Frank P. Douglass of the Railway Mediation Board said earlier today that both parties would be invited to discuss the controversy in Washington on Wednesday if the strike is put off for at least two weeks.

Union Leaders Reject Missouri Pacific Offer

St. Louis, Sept. 12 (AP).—Union leaders tonight turned down a company proposal to end the four-day-old strike against the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

At the same time, however, they agreed to meet again with railroad officials at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

The company's plan to end the strike was submitted to the four striking brotherhoods at a meeting arranged today by a newly created citizens' committee.

The proposal asked that:

1. The striking brotherhoods and the railroad establish a permanent method of settling claims in the future.

2. The strike be ended when a system was agreed on.

3. Past claims, over which the union is striking, be liquidated in future negotiations.

R. E. Davidson, assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said the unions could agree only "in part" on this plan. He would not elaborate.

The strike began Friday afternoon as a climax in a dispute over 282 individual claims by the union members against the railroad. Most of the claims involved interpretation of union rules.

So far nearly 25,000 employes of the railroad have been laid off in the 10-State area served by the Missouri Pacific. This is in addition to the 5000 operating employes on strike.

Industries entirely dependent on the railroad for supplies have begun to feel the pinch. Several plants in the St. Louis area have made plans to start laying off workers.

Arkansas is hard hit. It was announced in Little Rock today that a large percentage of the State's multi-million-dollar highway construction program has been halted by the strike.

On Own Hook

Carrier Boy Acclaimed as Bond Buyer

A 17-year-old junior at Eastern High School was hailed yesterday by the Treasury as the top teen-age purchaser of United States savings bonds, bought with his own money.

Rine

Ray Rine, 1423 Trinidad ave. ne., a Washington Post carrier-salesman until last June, already has bought $1775 in savings bonds at maturity value, and plans to buy more.

Funds for the purchases have come from earnings as a newspaper carrier-salesman and from wages earned through the past summer as a counterman at a boardwalk refreshment stand at a New Jersey summer resort.

Ray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bartley C. Moor. Mrs. Moor said last night that "he did it on his own, with encouragement of his father, but we didn't push him to it."

Ray is considering enlistment in the Marine Corps on graduation from high school, Mrs. Moor said.

'Big Bill' Hutcheson Seeks to Retire as Leader of AFL Carpenter's Union, Hand Post to Son

By Robert S. Allen

"Big Bill" Hutcheson is thinking of relinquishing the iron-handed rule he has wielded over the AFL carpenters since 1915.

The 6-foot-3, 300-pound, 74-year-old labor czar hasn't made up his mind definitely yet. He wants to retire, but there is a catch in his plans.

He wants to make his son, Maurice A., his successor.

The son is first general vice president and largely runs the union for his father. The latter installed the son in this office for that purpose. Whether he can also make him the titular successor is the big question. Until that is settled, "Big Bill" will hold on to his all-powerful rule.

Laborites will be surprised if Hutcheson does not have his way. If he doesn't, it would be the first time since he took over the union.

For more than three decades he has run it with an autocratic hand. He has revised its constitution at will, called conventions when it suited him, and for one eight-year period held none at all. He appoints all committees, organizers and business agents, revokes charters and has a virtually unlimited expense account.

An ardent Republican, Hutcheson campaigned for Herbert Hoover, Alf Landon, Wendell Willkie and Governor Dewey in 1944. Last year, Hutcheson kept aloof from the AFL's Labor League campaign for President Truman. However, rank-and-file carpenters worked with the organization.

Intimates credit Hutcheson with having voiced the hope that he would live to see a Republican in the White House again.

The one big upset in his career occurred at the 1936 AFL convention in Atlantic City. He was knocked to the floor by another labor czar, John L. Lewis. Several years ago, they made up.

Steel Union Drops Pay Drive

the existing labor dispute in the basic steel industry and in recognition of the public interest in this dispute, the international executive board and the international wage policy committee of the United Steelworkers of America hereby authorizes the international officers of the United Steelworkers of America to accept the recommendations of the steel industry board as set forth in its report to the President."

Murray's steelworkers now average around $1.65 hourly. Their wages have increased 46 cents an hour in the last three years. In 1946 industry granted an 18-cent hourly boost, then gave 15 cents more in 1947 and last year came across with 13 cents additional.

Murray told a news conference following the wage policy committee meeting that his union will be ready to resume collective bargaining with the steel companies "as early as tomorrow morning."

A spokesman for the United States Steel Corp., the Nation's biggest steel producer, said there will be no comment from "Big Steel" tonight. United States Steel took the lead in the developments last summer which led to a stalemate in negotiations.

30-Cent Package Refused

United States Steel and other companies flatly refused the union's demand for a 30-cent package. That brought on union plans to strike last July 16.

President Truman stepped in with a proposal for a 60-day truce while a fact-finding board investigated the dispute. It was the recommendations of that board which the union accepted today.

Involved in the contract negotiations are nearly one million steelworkers, employed by some 57 steel companies and their subsidiaries.

Decision of the Steelworkers to forego a fourth round of wage increases since the end of World War II may dash the hopes of millions of workers in other industries for a pay raise this year.

Negotiations in the auto, rubber, electrical appliance and other industries have been marking time for weeks, waiting to see the outcome of steel contract talks. Even a Pittsburgh parking lot followed this course.

Coal Negotiations May Be Speeded

The negotiations in coal also might be speeded up as a result of a quick steel settlement. President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers has been dickering with coal operators since May 25 without ever disclosing his exact contract objectives.

If the steel industry works out an agreement with the union by September 25 on the basis of the board's recommendations, many observers think it likely that Lewis will be willing to state his exact demands and negotiate an agreement.

Steelworkers Union sources see in the board's recommendations two distinct gains for their side. They point to the board's suggestion that companies set up pension programs and to the fact that the board advised companies to bow to union demands that the employers bear the cost of both pension and insurance setups.

The biggest gain to the companies, steel men here agree, is the board's agreement with them that wage increases should not be made this year. Some steel men hailed the board's recommendations as fair and reasonable.

Present Law Provides High Cotton, Wheat Support Prices, Author Aiken Maintains

Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said last night existing law provides for high price props for wheat and cotton and those who tell farmers otherwise are guilty of misrepresentation.

Sen. Aiken

In the face of a new Administration drive to force a farm bill through Congress, Aiken defended in statement the flexible support law he helped to write in the last Congress. It is due to become effective next January 1.

He said he thinks that law requires 1950 support of wheat and cotton prices at from 83 to 90 per cent of parity.

He called this "a far cry from the misrepresentation of those who tell the wheat and cotton growers that they will get 60 per cent support under the 1948 Act." Aiken named no names.

Parity is a calculated price designed to give farmers a return in relation to things they buy, equal to that in some past period favorable to agriculture.

The Government supports farm prices by buying up surpluses, by making direct loans to farmers and other methods. Portions of the cost not recouped by resale of purchased commodities are made up by taxes.

While Aiken said the possibility is growing that no new farm bill will be passed in this session of Congress, an Administration leader who asked not to be quoted by name said every effort will be made to change the Republican-sponsored law.

This Senator said Administration leaders will seek Senate approval of a compromise measure drafted by Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.), former Secretary of Agriculture. With Administration Senators and Representatives in control, they then will try to salvage some of their own ideas in a conference committee which will have to compose Senate-House differences.

The Anderson bill, on the Senate calendar with approval of its Agriculture Committee, provides for price supports on basic commodities—wheat, cotton, corn, rice, tobacco and peanuts—at between 75 and 90 per cent of parity.

Under its provisions, however, cotton, corn, wheat and rice would have to be supported at 90 per cent in 1950 if acreage or other controls are placed on those crops.

Doesn't Include Subsidies

The Anderson bill does not include direct subsidies to farmers on certain perishable crops, proposed by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan and vigorously supported by President Truman in recent political speeches.

The House killed the Brannan plan, and voted to keep major crop supports at 90 per cent of parity through 1950.

Aiken said the Anderson bill "strengthens" the 1948 act. But he added:

"If, however, the Anderson bill does not become law, we will still have after January 1, 1950, the strongest, most workable, permanent farm price support program ever placed on the statute books."

said no fixed decision has been reached "but it's possible the new cloture rule may get a test." The new rule was approved at the start of the session as a compromise weapon against filibusters.

Following his White House talk, Lucas said he had no way of setting an adjournment date at this time, but outlined this program:

A night session tonight on the reciprocal trade bill, accompanied by a unanimous-consent effort to agree to vote Wednesday or Thursday on the GOP "peril point" amendment to the trade bill.

Passage of the trade bill if possible this week, with the military assistance bill slated as the next order of business.

Five pay-raise measures to follow the arms aid bill: Executive, military and three bills dealing with civil service classifications, Government and postal employes' pay.

Trade Bill Due to Pass Easily

(Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) is trying to arrange an earlier vote on the military pay bill. Lucas said he had no objection "if Senator Tydings can work it out.")

Capping the session-end list, Lucas again listed DP legislation, farm program, housing legislation and conceivably a civil rights test.

Renewal of the trade agreements program by a whopping margin is a foregone conclusion. The only question is whether it will be continued with or without the "peril points" legalized by the Eightieth Congress.

Recess Honors Rutledge

These require the Tariff Commission to recommend points beyond which tariffs cannot be cut without endangering domestic producers. If the President exceeds these points he has to tell Congress why.

The pending Millikin amendment would revive these "peril points" and the Administration is out to lick them if it can. The contest is touch and go and the vote will be close.

Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.), who wants to substitute a flexible tariff plan of his own for the reciprocal trade act, will lead off today's debate. He was scheduled to speak yesterday, but the Senate recessed in tribute to Associate Justice Wiley B. Rutledge of the Supreme Court, who died Saturday night in Maine.

London Paper Assails U. S. Sterling Plan

London, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Empire-crusading Daily Express attacked today as a "sell-out" published reports here of a Washington dollar talk agreement to promote greater American investment in the sterling area countries.

Other London papers, excepting the Communist Daily Worker, generally indorsed the proposal.

The Daily Express said "the Socialists are selling us out again to the Americans.

"It is worse and worse. Last time they sold our British markets and population in return for the loan they squandered.

"This time they are selling out the colonial population too, the countless millions who dwell in the British colonies."

It charged the Labor government was "dumping our valuable undeveloped assets into the lap of the Americans."

"No blame attaches to the Americans," it added. "There is no reason why the Americans should not have them if we insist on having their dollar goods, their films and tobacco."

The Communist Daily Worker said the plan was "victory for American big business. It represents the national betrayal of Britain."

Declaring it was no way out Britain's dollar crisis, the Daily Worker added "mutual trade with all countries but dependence on none; this is the only way."

The conservative Daily Telegraph commented that "a basis for closer collaboration between the dollar and sterling areas has been found, and that this collaboration can, if conditions are favorable, be usefully elaborated and extended."

Nationalized Industries Report Glowing Gains

London, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Official spokesmen today painted a glowing picture of successful financial operations and steadily increasing production in Britain's nationalized industries.

A spokesman for the National Coal Board said the board had made a profit of more than 24 million dollars on the State-owned mines during the first half of 1949, although profits in the second quarter were less than in the first.

The board's statistical report, published today, listed second-quarter profits of about 10 million dollars, compared to a net of $15,200,000 during the first three months of 1949.

A steel industry spokesman said production had exceeded comparable 1948 levels during every month so far in 1949.

Acheson and Bevin Will Confer Today on Jap Treaty

By Fitzhugh Turner
NYHT News Service

Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Great Britain will meet here today to determine, among other things, whether the West can proceed to write a peace treaty for Japan without Russian participation.

The American and British Foreign Ministers, having concluded their economic talks, are scheduled to embark at 2:30 p. m. on a week of political discussions which will be joined Thursday by Robert Schuman, Foreign Minister of France. Agenda for the sessions, it was learned today, includes Germany and Austria as well as the Far East.

Bevin is expected to advance the argument that the Western powers can conclude a Japanese treaty without Russian help, if necessary, and that such a treaty need not remove American occupation Troops from the strategic Japanese archipelago. The United States is receptive, but still is casting about for a proper procedure for the calling of a peace conference.

Two years ago the United States sought to convene the eleven nations of the Far Eastern Commission to discuss a peace conference, with decisions to be taken by a two-thirds vote. The Russians, however, rejected that proposal.

The situation today, with the Japanese occupation entering its fifth year, is that all the big powers, at least, would like to see a treaty concluded. The Russians, in the American view, would like to see Douglas MacArthur and his forces out of Japan. The United States and Great Britain, spurred a bit by unrest within Japan, feel that the time has come for the Japanese to control more of their own destiny.

3 Foreign Ministers Land for Talks Here

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The foreign ministers of three Western European nations arrived today to attend a meeting of Atlantic Pact countries in Washington this week.

The foreign ministers were Paul Van Zeeland, Belgium; Count Carlo Sforza, Italy; and Dr. D. U. Stikker, the Netherlands.

Sforza told newsmen when he arrived on the liner Queen Mary that his government would have one aim at the meeting: "Conservation and solidification of peace."

Describing the Far East as the world's political and economic "storm center," Stikker termed current Wasaington discussions on sterling-dollar areas "the most important of any going on anywhere in the world."

Van Zeeland said he had "great hopes" for a successful meeting by Atlantic Pact representatives.

Informal Big 4 Talk Set at U. N. Meeting

Russia has agreed to an informal meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers at next week's session of the United Nations General Assembly, diplomatic officials reported last night.

The deadlocked negotiations over a treaty with Austria is the most immediate issue facing the group.

Only one word fits it —

Wonderful!

YOU know how it usually is — slow and steady is the rule in automotive progress.

But every now and then it happens. Along comes a car that's new all over — like this one — and headlines sing the news.

Take the styling of it — fresh and smart and really exciting from its non-locking bumper-guard grilles to the jet-plane look of its fenders.

Take the outward size of it — handy in traffic, easy to garage, actually more room and a sweeter ride in fewer over-all inches.

Step inside—and stretch yourself in the biggest interiors ever found in a Buick Special, with a full twelve inches added to rear-seat hiproom.

Try the power of big 110 or 120 hp high-compression Fireball engines—sample the restful levelness of a ride that sets the standard for the industry.

Check controls — and note really big news: The luxury of Dynaflow Drive—newest, simplest and smoothest of all modern transmissions — is optional equipment, available now at the lowest price level yet!*

Finally, look at the price tag. Measure its figures against others — and see if any car, even in the lowest-price field, gives you so much of what you want for each dollar you invest.

Tops in style, tops in room, tops in lift and life and traveling ease, a trip to your Buick dealer will show you this is wonderful in value too!

Text of 3-Power Talks Communique

The text of the joint communique issued yesterday on the conclusion of the Anglo-American-Canadian financial talks:

1. Representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada have met during the past week to examine the trade and financial relationships between the sterling area and the dollar area. The pound and the dollar are the two principal world trading currencies. While the development of a satisfactory balance of payments between the two areas is a matter of fundamental concern to the democratic world, it involves many problems which concern, in the first instance, the governments which are the centers of these two currency systems. The present discussions were held to examine these problems. It was recognized that the task of working out conditions under which world trade can develop steadily and in increasing freedom will require a strenuous and sustained effort, not only on the part of the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada, but also by all other countries desiring the same objectives.

2. It was agreed that the common aim is to work toward an ultimate solution which will maintain employment and establish equilibrium of international trade on a mutually profitable basis at high levels. These objectives and general course of action have already been set forth in the United Nations charter, the Bretton Woods agreements and the Havana charter for an International Trade Organization. It was the broad purpose of the present meetings to explore, within this general framework, various specific measures which the three governments might take to prevent a serious breakdown in the dollar-sterling relationships which would have led to a crippling limitation of dollar imports into the sterling area and to hasten the achievement of those objectives.

3. These conversations have carried forward the consultations initiated in London during July 8-10. They have resulted in a clear understanding of the character of the difficulties to be faced and an increasing realization that a fully satisfactory solution will necessitate continuing efforts in many directions. In the course of these conversations it has become possible to discuss with complete frankness specific problems and the types of measures which will have to be taken if the three countries are to achieve their common purpose.

4. In the early stages of the discussion, attention was given to the immediate problem confronting the United Kingdom and the rest of the sterling area as a result of the rapid decline of gold and dollar reserves. Note was taken by the three governments of the emergency action which sterling area countries have decided to take to meet this situation. These measures are not pleasant ones; they will cause difficulties and sacrifices for everyone concerned. Nevertheless, they are a temporary necessity, and are recognized as such by all three governments.

5. The ministers were in complete agreement that no permanent solution to the problem could be found in the emergency steps contemplated. A more fundamental attempt would have to be made by all concerned to expand the dollar earnings of the sterling area and to increase the flow of investment from the North American continent to the rest of the world, including the sterling area.

6. This more fundamental attempt would involve both separate actions of the three countries operating individually, and joint action by the three acting in cooperation with each other. In approaching these possibilities of individual and joint action on the sterling-dollar problem, there was common agreement that this action should be based on the assumption that extraordinary aid from the North American continent would have come to an end by the middle of 1952. This would require that the sterling area increase its dollar earnings so as to pay its way by 1952. This would require in th sterling in the sterling area the creation of appropriate incentives to exporters to the dollar area and a vigorous attack upon costs of production to enhance the competitive position of sterling area products. Maximum efforts would be made to direct exports to the dollar area and build up earnings from Tourism and other services. As a part of this export campaign by the sterling area countries, it was recognized that an essential element was the creation of a feeling of confidence on the part of sterling area exporters. They must feel that they will be afforded the opportunity to remain in the markets of the United States and Canada in which they will have gained a place, and that the minimum of difficulties will be placed in their way in entering those markets.

On their part the creditor countries undertook to facilitate, to the greatest extend feasible, an expansion of dollar earnings by debtor countries, including the sterling area. It was agreed that the United States and Canada should reduce obstacles to the entry of goods and services from debtor countries, in order to provide as wide an opportunity as possible for those countries to earn dollars through the export of goods and the provision of services, including tourism. It was recognized that such a policy would be in the interest of producers in the United States and Canada, for only in this way can the future level of trade provide adequately for those sectors of the American and Canadian economies which depend in considerable part upon foreign markets.

7. The discussion of possible individual and joint actions, both long-run and short-run, ranged over a wide field. In addition to the question of dollar earnings of the United Kingdom and the rest of the sterling area, mentioned above, the ministers gave special attention to the following subjects:

1. Overseas investment.
2. Commodity arrangements and stockpiling.
3. Limitations on items which may be financed under present ECA procedures.
4. Customs procedures.
5. Tariff policy.
6. Liberalization of intra-European trade and payments.
7. Sterling balances.
8. Petroleum.
9. Shipping.
10. Provisions for continuing consultation.

8. A working group on overseas investment reviewed both recent experience and future prospects for the flow of productive investment, both private and public, from North America to overseas areas, especially underdeveloped countries. It was agreed that a high level of such investment could make an important contribution toward reducing the sterling-dollar disequilibrium and that every aspect of this problem should be explored on a continuing basis. In order to initiate this work, the President's committee for financing foreign trade will be asked immediately to explore possible lines of action in cooperation with corresponding groups of British and Canadian financial and business representatives. While dealing with all aspects of private and public investment, the committee will be expected to address itself especially to the problem of incentives and of providing a suitable environment for a high level of private investment.

9. A working group on commodity arrangements and stockpiling gave special attention to rubber and tin. The Canadian representatives stated that the Canadian government was prepared to take steps to increase reserve stocks of tin and rubber in Canada. The United States representatives reported that the United States Government was prepared to open to natural rubber a substantial additional area of competition, including a modification of the Government order relating to the consumption of synthetic rubber. The United States would review its stockpiling program, with particular reference to rubber and tin.

10. Special attention was given by another group to the practical difficulty being experienced by the United Kingdom in making fully effective use of its ECA aid to cover its dollar deficit. This difficulty arises out of the fact that, although the United Kingdom needs dollars to pay for goods in the United States, to make settlements with other countries, to pay for services, and for other purposes, the types of transactions which may be financed by ECA dollars have been definitely limited. It has been agreed that, in order to carry out the basic purposes of the Economic Cooperation Act, it will be necessary for the United Kingdom to finance with its share of ECA funds a wider range of dollar expenditures than has hitherto been eligible, both within and outside of the United States. After careful examination of the dollar expenditures proposed to be made or authorized by the United Kingdom, it appears that eligibility requirements can be broadened to the extent required within the limits set by the Economic Cooperation Act. This would broaden the use but not increase the amount of ECA funds allocated to the United Kingdom.

11. In the consideration of measures which creditor countries might take to reduce barriers to trade it was recognized that customs procedures may create obstacles, psychological as well as actual. Technical discussions of this subject disclosed that the United States, through administrative action and proposed legislation, was already contemplating constructive steps in this field. Canadian representatives stated that the Canadian government would undertake a further review of the administrative operation of its customs act in the light of these discussions. As to tariff rates, it was noted that high tariffs were clearly inconsistent with the position of credit countries. There had already been significant and substantial reductions in United States tariffs during the last 15 years. The policy of the United States Government was to seek further negotiation of trade agreements through which additional reductions might be made, within the framework of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

12. There was agreement that one of the ways in which the competitive position of United Kingdom products might be improved was by a widening of the area in which such products competed freely with those of other countries. In this connection as an initial step toward a more general liberalization the United Kingdom delegation outlined its proposals for liberalizing trade with countries with which it did not have balance of payments difficulties, and raised the question whether the provisions of Section 9 of the Anglo-American Financial Agreement, and Article 5 of the Anglo-Canadian Financial Agreement presented an obstacle to such plan. It was the view of the United States and Canadian delegations that such liberalization of United Kingdom import regulations should be considered since the United Kingdom shortage of dollars should not in itself force the United Kingdom to reduce its purchases from areas with which it does not have a shortage of means of payment. It was agreed that any United Kingdom import regulations as they affect United States and Canadian products would be the subject of continuing facilities for consultation.

13. (A) A further subject which was discussed was the United Kingdom liability represented by the sterling balances of other countries. A large number of countries has been accustomed to hold either all or a part of their foreign exchange reserves in the form of sterling. The existence and availability of such holdings is an integral feature of the widespread multilateral use of sterling for the purpose of financing international trade. One of the problems of the postwar period has been the existence of exceptionally large accumulations of sterling which were built up, mainly during the war, as the result of payments by the United Kingdom for goods and services purchased overseas in furtherance of the common war effort. In June 1945 these balances amounted to 13½ billion dollars. Since then there have been considerable fluctuations both in the total and in the holdings of individual countries, though the amount outstanding at the end of 1948 was approximately the same as at June 1945.

(B) In principle the whole of these balances represents a charge on United Kingdom production of goods and services. In practice, however, substantial proportion will continue to be held as reserves by the countries concerned. To the extent that the balances are liquidated, some proportion of United Kingdom production of goods and services is used to discharge this liability instead of to pay for current imports of goods and services.

(C) This whole problem in its various aspects, including the necessity to provide capital goods for development, was discussed in a preliminary way on the basis of prior technical examination by the experts of the three governments. It was agreed that this was one of the subjects which concerned other countries and would require further study.

14. Investigation of the ways in which the sterling area could move toward a position in which it could earn its own way led to the discussion of other special problems, including petroleum and shipping—two important elements in the sterling area balance of payments picture. The United Kingdom representatives set forth the facts of the very large dollar deficit which the sterling area presently incurs because of oil transactions, and their desire to reduce this deficit to the minimum possible level. It was mutually recognized that the question of oil production and refining, and geographical distribution raised problems of extreme complexity involving the protection of legitimate interests of the major producing countries and companies. The ministers recognized that these two questions of petroleum and shipping could not be resolved in the short time available to them, and that further study would be required. In the case of petroleum they agreed to appoint representatives to analyze the facts and to provide the basis for subsequent discussions.

15. There has been agreement on the objective toward which policies should be directed and agreement on certain immediate steps which will be taken to bring that objective nearer. There are, however, as has been emphasized, a number of questions requiring closer examination than this short conference has allowed. It is proposed, therefore, to continue the examinations, initiated during the conference, of questions on which it is hoped that useful understanding can be reached under the direction of the present ministerial group. These arrangements for continuing consultation—supplementing the usual channels of communication between governments—will be used to keep under review the effectiveness of actions already agreed upon and to prepare, for governmental consideration, measures which could carry further those adjustments which are considered to be necessary. In establishing these arrangements for continuing consultation, the three governments wish to emphasize that these arrangements underline rather than diminish their interest in the development of economic cooperation within the entire community of western nations. The tripartite arrangements will not in any way encroach upon, or detract from, the area of competence of the OEEC and other existing organs of international economic collaboration. On the contrary, these arrangements for continuing consultation, by contributing materially to the solution of problems which today adversely affect the working of the entire OEEC group and yet are not susceptible of solution within that group, will facilitate the progress of economic collaboration in the wider field.

16. In summary the ministers of the three countries concerned are satisfied that a real contribution to the solution of the sterling-dollar difficulties has been made by the conclusions recorded above. They are confident that, with sustained efforts on all sides and with the seizure of every opportunity by sterling area exporters to enter into and remain in dollar markets which are open to them, there is the prospect of reaching a satisfactory equilibrium between the sterling and dollar areas by the time exceptional dollar aid comes to an end.

South Africa Expected to Ask Increase in Gold Prices

By The Associated Press

The union of South Africa is expected to toss a plan to boost gold prices into the world-wide monetary conference opening here today.

Informed sources said the proposal would permit any country to sell up to one-half of its gold production at premium prices, higher than official rates.

The United States, the world's major buyer of gold, is expected to oppose the idea. Since this country holds 30 per cent of the votes, it probably could easily muster enough outside support to defeat it.

The fund and the World Bank—each a 48-nation, eight-billion-dollar financial institution—will meet here for the next four days. President Truman will address the two boards of governors today.

Officials who played top roles in the United States-British-Canadian dollar talks which closed yesterday will move to the Bank and Fund meetings. Sir Stafford Cripps of Britain, Douglas Abbott of Canada and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder are governors of both Bank and Fund for their respective countries.

Devaluation of the British pound will come before the Fund governors in their closed meetings, it was disclosed, but only as part of a discussion of the desirability of a general devaluation by debtor countries, to increase their exports and encourage trade.

scribed the results as "substantial progress in approaching solutions."

All three delegations recognized that this meeting had not been the end of anything, but only a prologue to a long, hard job of intergovernmental cooperation. The important thing, they felt, was that the job had been started at last, with the same assumptions on all sides and the same realization of what needed to be done.

The three governments agreed, to begin with, that the present lop-sided relationship of the dollar and pound concerned the whole free world; that it would "require a strenuous and sustained effort" by many countries to correct it; and that dollar-sterling trade would have to be balanced in the long run by increasing the amount of international trading rather than by cutting down.

They recognized, too, that American aid under the Marshall Plan was bound to end in 1952, and that the sterling countries would have to pay their way by then. The sterling countries would not only have to cut their present spending of dollars as an emergency step, but also cut their costs of production, give incentives to their manufacturers to sell in dollar areas, and build up their dollar earnings in every possible way.

The communique listed and described steps that might be taken in 10 separate fields to ease Britain's dollar shortage and to help her earn more in the future. The list was broader in some respects than advance guesses had suggested.

One minor surprise was the news that President Truman's committee for financing foreign trade, a group of bankers and industrialists headed by Winthrop W. Aldrich of New York, would be asked at once to "explore" the problem of overseas investment with British and Canadian bankers and businessmen.

The hesitancy of American private capital to go abroad since the end of the war has baffled the United States Government, especially in connection with the opening up of undeveloped areas. The hope here is that the Aldrich committee can prod timid private investors into lending their money, and perhaps work out guarantees or other incentives that might induce Wall Street to take the plunge.

The communique also assured the British that they could earn more dollars here by selling rubber, tin and other strategic materials from their empire. The Canadian government, the statement said, would add to its reserves of rubber and tin; the United States was ready "to open to natural rubber a substantial additional area of competition."

As part of this effort the United States will modify the Department of Commerce order limiting the proportion of natural rubber that rubber manufacturers can buy. An act of the Eightieth Congress fixed a minimum figure for synthetic rubber, but the manufacturers have been taking far more than the required amount of the synthetic product.

The communique told the British, moreover, that they would be less limited hereafter in spending Marshall Plan dollars outside the United States. An order from ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, expected today, will let them resume the buying of Canadian wheat with ECA dollars, and perhaps the buying of other non-United States products as well.

On tariffs, the communique disclosed that the United States Government was "already contemplating" legislation to overhaul its customs procedures — presumably those set up almost 20 years ago, in high-tariff days, in the Internal Revenue Code.

Another section of the communique dealt guardedly with Article 9 of the Anglo-American loan agreement of 1946 which pledged the British not to discriminate against American goods. The statement indicated that if the British have plenty of Argentine pesos, for example, they will not be regarded as "discriminating" if they keep up their purchase of Argentine goods and cut down the purchases that have to be paid for in dollars.

Among the items left for further study were these:

The sterling balances: These are huge accumulations, amounting to 13½ billion dollars' worth in 1945, built up by British payments to India, Egypt and other countries during the war. The holders of these balances have been drawing heavily on them, taking British goods and services for which the British get no return. The communique was guarded on this subject, saying that it "concerned other countries and would require further study"—meaning, presumably, that India, Egypt and other holders of the sterling balances would be consulted before Britain acted to check the use of these funds.

Oil—The British complain that they have to pay for the oil they supply to their European neighbors under the intra-European payments agreement; and that oil transactions cost them big amounts of dollars in other ways.

Shipping—In the same way the British have long complained that they could earn more dollars if Congress, in the ECA legislation, had not insisted on half of ECA products from the United States being carried in American ships. They also would like to use ECA dollars more freely in buying materials for building dollar-earning ships. The communique did not go into detail but, as in the case of oil, left this problem for "further study."

Among all three governments the plans for further consultation were regarded as important. A month ago there was a real danger that the British and American economic policies would fly apart and endanger the political cooperation symbolized in the Atlantic Pact. Now, the British believe, all three countries are back on the track, working together toward agreed goals and by agreed methods.

Lester B. Pearson the Canadian Minister for External Affairs, told a National Press Club audience yesterday that this time Canada had no chance to play its usual role of "mediator and interpreter" between Britain and the United States. The reason, he said, was that the British-American talks had been so friendly and understanding. His colleague, Finance Minister Douglas Abbott, put it this way:

"We have made a good beginning. In the words of your President in his Philadelphia speech, 'We must keep everlastingly at it.'" plan, and 500 million dollars in contract authority).

Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said the bill will be called up in the Senate Monday if the reciprocal trade renewal program can be cleared by this weekend.

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) hailed the near-unanimity of the 20 to 3 approval vote and said he hoped it would be reflected in solid support on the Senate floor.

With the China hatchet buried, the bill still faced a formidable hurdle in a motion by Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) to cut back the European aid fund from one billion dollars to 300 million dollars. The motion failed in committee, but George will try again in the Senate.

Both Connally and Senator William W. Knowland (R., Calif.), leader of GOP China aid forces, voiced "satisfaction" with the China compromise.

Knowland, who had threatened a minority report and a floor showdown said he will make no further fight, said neither the amendment or the amount is as strong as he would like it but it does "recognize the importance of China in the over-all global picture."

Committee Republicans, who last week lined up against the Administration's original "China and the Far East" amendment, voted solidly for the "China area" compromise, and just as solidly for the completed bill.

Only these five Democratic votes were cast against the china aid provision: George, Russell (Ga.), Thomas (Utah), Green (R. I.) and Byrd (Va.)

In the end only George, Russell and Byrd voted against reporting the completed bill.

Mr. Neely's Idea Clinic

Senator Neely's idea clinic held yesterday in the Senate District Committee room brought an outpouring of advice as to what should be done to make Washington a more satisfactory Capital and a better place in which to live. So many citizens responded that a continuation of the session this morning was found necessary. When all the city's civic leaders have spoken, we suspect that the new chairman of the Senate District Committee will have before him enough projects to keep him busy for several years.

Senator Neely is to be highly commended for thus soliciting the views of the District's voteless citizens. He seems to visualize his committee as an agency for translation of the will of local residents into legislation. Certainly that is an enlightened attitude, although it will do little to relieve Congress of its burden of acting as a city council. The Senator further suggested the organization of an over-all civic agency which could carry to Congress well thought-out plans for improvement of our schools, playgrounds, health and welfare institutions and so forth. That is a real challenge to local citizens, but past experience gives little hope that any such step can be taken while the community remains voteless.

It is well to remember, too, that no idea clinic or round-table discussion on Capitol Hill can possibly take the place of a District Council with authority to hear citizens' petitions and to enact local ordinances. Incidentally, Mr. Neely is the third chairman of the Senate District Committee in the last two years. With the best will in the world, he cannot familiarize himself with all the local problems that need attention in the few months or years that he may be expected to hold this chairmanship. Under any well devised system, sessions like that held yesterday would be commonplace. And they would be held before District councilmen intimately acquainted with the background from which our civic problems arise.

Fortunately, the Senate has passed the home-rule bill. Only House action is needed to shift the burden of local policy-making back to an elected body of local citizens, where it belongs. Senator Neely is wholly in sympathy with this movement. Undoubtedly he realizes also, as all alert civic groups must, that completion of this legislation is infinitely more important to the District than any plan to grease the wheels of the present creaking system.

Anniversaries

We must leave it to the astrologers to explain why this particular day of the year has been so unpropitious for famous men. At any rate, the number of them who have departed this life on September 13 is quite impressive. There was, for example, the Emperor Titus, conqueror of Jerusalem and destroyer of the Temple, who died just 1868 years ago, if the reckoning is accurate. Then there was the great essayist and father of modern French prose, Michel de Montaigne, who died 357 years ago today. There was Philip II of Spain, spouse of Mary Tudor, builder of the Invincible Armada, who died 351 years ago. There was the noble General Wolfe, who was slain just 190 years ago at the moment of his great victory on the Plains of Abraham. There was the great Whig statesman, Charles James Fox, vanquished by his dropsy just 146 years ago.

Among the Americans who died on this date was the Revolutionary naval hero, John Barry. Captain Barry's exploits at sea in the War of Independence, and later in the undeclared war with the French Directory, seem to have been somewhat slighted by the writers of school histories, and this neglect is sometimes, though rather implausibly, ascribed to the fact that he was Irish by birth and Catholic by religion. For a good many years a rather pointless controversy has been raging about whether Barry or John Paul Jones has better claim to the title of "Father of the American Navy," and it is very unlikely that it will ever be settled. One incontestable fact, however, is that Captain Barry was the first officer commissioned by President Washington in the United States Navy after the adoption of the Constitution. Barry was one of the original delegates to the Federal Convention which drew up the Constitution, and is said once to have saved it from dissolution by the unparliamentary expedient of kidnaping some members of the anti-Federalist Party to provide a quorum.

A movement, we hear, is afoot, supported by various Irish-American societies, to have this anniversary made a holiday in Barry's honor. The prospect is hardly encouraging, since it falls so soon after Labor Day, which is celebrated in all States, and rather close to Columbus Day, which is celebrated in most States. And in Maryland, whose inhabitants yesterday celebrated their Defenders' Day, it would make two consecutive holidays.

Dollar-Sterling Accord

What has come out of the United States-British-Canadian financial talks is a general agreement to stand together in meeting their economic and financial problems as well as various specific agreements on the steps to be taken. The delegates have not been able to lay on the line the precise measures that each country will take to avert an economic crisis in the free world. But they have candidly and painstakingly explored their common problem. They have reached an understanding as to what the problem is. Most significant of all, they have announced an accord as to the direction in which they will move toward a solution. The fact that many details of this common solution are yet to be worked out appears to be due, not to any misunderstanding among the parties, but to the complicated nature of the situation with which they are dealing.

A factor of no little importance is the good will and friendly atmosphere in which the conversations took place. Apparently the delegates of each country were more concerned about working out their problems than about scoring points in an argument or about maneuvering for position. No doubt all the delegates share in the credit for this smooth operation of the conference, with special credit going to Secretary Snyder as the presiding officer. The importance of this spirit of accommodation is magnified, of course, by the fact that continuing studies of various aspects of the sterling-dollar difficulties are to go forward. Indeed, the real test of the accord that has been reached will be whether the complex of unsolved problems can now be attacked in the same spirit that has prevailed at the conference.

For its part, the United States appears to have recognized that we simply cannot permit a collapse of Great Britain, which is the heart and nerve of the sterling trading area. We have entered a new era of interdependence in economics as well as in political relationship. The free world must remain a going concern, and the United States must exercise a large measure of leadership in that cause.

Specifically, the United States has promised to relax customs technicalities, to take a larger volume of commodities from the sterling area for stockpiling and to examine the possibilities of easing the sterling-dollar imbalance by taking more petroleum and shipping services from abroad. Our representatives agreed also that "a high level of investment" in underdeveloped countries can make a major contribution to stability in Sterlingaria. Neither investment policies nor projects can be nailed down in a brief conference. But if the economic relationship between North America and western Europe can be largely stabilized, there will be hope for restoration of the convertibility of currencies, with such devaluations as seem appropriate. Only then can there be a free and voluntary flow of private investment capital.

For Great Britain, the accord means further tightening of the belt. "These measures," the joint communique says, "are not pleasant ones; they will cause difficulties and sacrifices for everyone concerned. Nevertheless, they are a temporary necessity, and are recognized as such by all three governments." The British promise specifically to reexamine the problem of the sterling balance built up by reason of Britain's overseas purchases during the war to see if the resulting drain upon British goods and services can be reduced. Much will depend upon the implementing of this pledge. These balances at the end of last year amounted to approximately $13,500,000,000. Until Britain can reasonably limit the rights of the countries holding these balances to draw upon her production, giving only a bookkeeping entry by way of payment, it will be extremely difficult to attain stability in Sterlingaria. Undoubtedly this is one of the most serious problems that has been discussed at Washington, and a solution will have to be vigorously pursued if the optimism which has been generated by the conference is not to evaporate. The coming visit of Prime Minister Nehru of India to the United States may be significant in this connection.

Transport Aircraft

During the war the military services leaned heavily on the civilian airlines for transport planes. The rapid conveyance of military personnel became an important operation, and had there not been a considerable number of civilian aircraft such as DC-3s and DC-4s that could be commandeered, the armed forces would have been seriously hampered. Doubtless in a future war the Air Force would depend on civilian models in the same fashion, for there has been practically no new military transport development since VJ-Day. For that reason we believe that the Senate has acted unwisely in prohibiting the Air Force from spending money on design or procurement of "aircraft intended primarily for commercial use, whether or not such aircraft may be adaptable for auxiliary military service."

The plain fact is that although the airlines are adding new planes from present models, no new prototypes are being tested. In this respect the United States is behind Britain, for the British government is actively experimenting with a jet transport. If the armed forces in this country were to depend wholly on transport planes developed as a result of civilian orders, the probability is that they would be forced to rely on slower and outdated craft in the event of war. Whether a plane is intended primarily for civilian or military use is irrelevant in this connection, because there is no distinction in wartime.

There is some doubt that the Senate actually intended to place an absolute ban on procurement of civilian-type planes in the bill establishing Air Force strength. Regardless of intent, however, the language is ambiguous and ought to be clarified in conference. For the Air Force has a vital interest in the development of new and fast transports, whether or not such planes are also useful for civilian operations. It is a long time between drawing board and quantity production, and certainly the Air Force ought to be allowed to promote enough experimentation to insure rapid expansion if need should arise.

Chinese Gold

Senator Tydings' surprise attack on the accuracy of Secretary Acheson's statements about the use made of American arms in China deserves a lot of amplification. The Maryland Senator says in effect that the Secretary of State is incorrect in asserting that large quantities of arms have been surrendered to the Communists by the fleeing Nationalist armies. What is Mr. Tydings' source? Though he mentions the retiring Asiatic naval commander, Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger, he avoids quoting Admiral Badger directly, and nowhere does he make his charge specific. Surely unidentified "reliable information" on China is a flimsy pretext on which to justify more American aid.

The compromise on China adopted yesterday by the Senate Committee on Military Aid suffers from the same flimsiness. It is, to be sure, distinctly preferable to the sketchy Knowland proposal to spend 175 million dollars—goodness knows where—in resisting communism in China. But the compromise still flags a dead horse and makes it more difficult to evolve a new policy in line with existing realities in China. Apparently the Chiang aiders have now been bought off by specific mention of China in the bill, though the effect is to give the President a discretionary fund of 75 million dollars to expend in the general area of China, confidentially, if necessary. If by this description Hongkong and Formosa are envisaged, we do not boggle at the compromise—though such a vague description is unsatisfactory, for it will mean different things to the different factions involved. A blank check is bad administrative policy in any case, and the President will be damned if he does and damned if he doesn't.

Whatever else has contributed to it, the decay in China cannot be honestly ascribed to lack of funds. The advocates of bigger and better aid conspicuously neglect to mention the 300 million dollars in gold bullion which Chiang Kai-shek has taken with him to Formosa. Why is this money not used in the resistance? Why, moreover, is there no effort to sequester the millions of dollars of Chinese balances in the United States? More than three-quarters of a billion dollars is reportedly cached in New York and other banks by Nationalist leaders, and these funds are said to be used to finance the China lobby's efforts to extract more money from the United States. The White Paper contains this reference to the hidden funds (Page 257):

> President Chiang also renewed his request that the General (Wedemeyer) provide him with a list of names of Chinese with large financial holdings abroad, but General Wedemeyer felt that since the names had been given him in strictest confidence, he would have to refuse.

In view of this evidence of the lack of faith among Chinese themselves, has not the time come to disclose the names and end the phoney "protection" adopted by General Wedemeyer? The crisis in China, we repeat, is not lack of funds, but rather a lack of inspiration and leadership. Under these conditions, any appropriation by Congress would flout the basic principle of self-help while condoning the existence of huge amounts of grafted Chinese money safely stowed abroad. The first point of realism with respect to China should be the avoidance by Congress of any further effort to subsidize a lost cause.

Greek Threats

There is plenty of provocation behind the implied threat by Greek War Minister Kanellopoulos that Greek forces will invade Albania and Bulgaria if those countries continue to aid the Communist Greek rebels. Albania and Bulgaria have assisted baldly in the attempt to communize Greece, and they have been denounced by the United Nations Special Commission on the Balkans. Freedom to cross the borders has been of great help to the rebels when they have retreated to avoid capture.

Yet Bulgaria and Albania are in a peculiar position, for their aid has been illicit and subrosa, whereas a Greek attempt to invade them would be an open act of war. It would, moreover, presumably make use of the American aid which has been lavished upon the Greek armed forces. With the recent successes of the Greek army, there are plenty of indications that the rebellion is dying on the vine and may be given up as a lost cause—though it will be necessary to maintain troops in readiness against sporadic incursions. The ending of hostilities, rather than invasion, should be the American aim in Greece. There probably is no great harm in bluster of the sort indulged in by Mr. Kanellopoulos, but we ought to make sure that our involvement in Greece does not also involve us in a Balkan war.

"Concealed Weapons"

It was with considerable surprise that I read the following statements in your September 8 and 9 editorials "Pistols And Permits" and "Concealed Weapons:"

"Pistols have no use whatever save to maim or kill human beings."

"Pistols as we have said before, are not sporting equipment; they are used only, either by intent or perhaps even more frequently by accident to snuff out human life."

These statements, together with your advocacy of permitting citizens to possess pistols when issued police permits would indicate that The Washington Post is in favor of legally permitting some citizens to possess the tools for killing and maiming human beings and denying them to others, merely upon the recommendations of the police departments.

How well this system for distributing the tools that may mean the difference between life and death for some of our citizens will work can be judged by the recent slaying of 13 unarmed and innocent victims by an armed maniac who had been issued a pistol permit signed by the former chief of police of Camden, N. J.

Your statement that they (pistols) lie about in incalculable numbers is obviously correct. Yes, they lie about in bureau drawers, behind store counters, and in glove compartments of automobiles driven by many good citizens. Citizens who have determined it is their duty to do their part in preventing the maiming and killing of their loved ones, or fellow citizens, by armed maniacs, some of whom may have been issued pistol permits by police departments.

"Age Of Burlesque"

Your September 8 editorial, "Age of Burlesque", seems old-maidish in tone, and provocative in manner. You seem to be completely "off the beam" in regard to the real meaning of burlesque, which is excusable in the individual but not in the press, which has access to all the information on the subject.

The very idea of burlesque is to make a travesty of that which it represents—it may be the dramatization of the life of a certain public official, another play. Your press skits, given every year, are burlesque. I remember enjoying burlesque shows in New York when a child (at a time when the broad innuendoes were lost on me) and there was lots to laugh at for one not looking for the hidden meaning. I have attended a few so-called burlesque shows in Washington. My conclusion has been that people here either do not know or do not care (in sufficient numbers) what burlesque is. Real burlesque in Washington should be a smashing success, as plenty of people here need to be lampooned, and proper.

With the history of burlesque as you have presented it, the facts appear to be as you have written them. Burlesque was not made to appeal merely to the baser instincts of the people. The burlesque houses had to give the public what it asked for, and the public didn't have sense enough to ask for humor. These male-female wisecrackers only became prominent after burlesque had begun to lose its real meaning.

Of course, the strip-tease was only bait thrown by the burlesque houses to the public. Burlesque should be a part of the legitimate stage, its plays being comparable to regular stage plays in both quality and continuity of performance. It probably would take a couple of geniuses to do it, but I believe the people would take to a revival of real burlesque, the kind that you could take the family to—and certainly better than a great many stage plays of today.

Arlington Reburials

A few days ago my wife and I attended the last rites for our son, who was killed in action. After four long weary years, we were notified to report to Arlington on a specified date.

When we arrived at the office at Arlington I was shocked to find no responsible officer to greet us. When we told the man at the desk of our mission he assigned a soldier to escort us to the burial plot where a chaplain took charge of the ceremonies.

No man can do more than give his life for his country. Doesn't such a sacrifice call for a little consideration on the part of our high command? Why shouldn't a general or two be present to shake our hand and express the thanks of the Government?

It would be a good thing for some of our generals to view this unceasing parade of caskets and hear the stifled sobs of the mourners. It might impress upon them the need for the highest type of leadership because a high percentage of the boys died because of incompetent leadership.

Friendship Club

A club similar to the Friendshippers in Detroit is desperately needed in Washington. Though there are many sights to see and many places to visit here, they do not compensate for lack of friendships and companionships—get-togethers for fun and recreation.

There's a "Just for Fun" Club here, but few of the members are over 40. There are hobby shops, but they don't fill the need. This beautiful city can be a very lonely place for people up in years but still active. Having been a victim, I can truthfully say that one can be sick in bed for days and the landlady won't know about it or isn't interested—a furnished room is indeed a breeding place for heartache and despondency, often leading to insanity.

Couldn't a club be started for unattached people over 50—widows, widowers, bachelors and spinsters?

Camden Massacre

In your September 7 story of the Camden, N. J., massacre one gets the impression that the reading of the Bible and the hideous crime were in some way connected. Had the killer read the Bible with an ounce of understanding, he could never have committed such an act.

The King James version says, and I quote, "Thou shalt not avenge nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Lev. 19:18. "Thou shalt not kill." Ex. 20:13.

Criticism Of Britain

I am an ordinary British working man (a railwayman) who like thousands of my countrymen is concerned about the wild and unqualified distortions that are being spoken and printed in America regarding the domestic problems, and the ability of Britain to play her part in world affairs today.

They are endeavoring to create in the minds of the ordinary American a false impression of what is taking place, and creating the belief that Britain as a nation is finished, and it is time they were told so by someone who has the guts to stand up for his country.

Before some of these misguided scribes scribble any more cant about Great Britain I would suggest they descend from the pedestal upon which they have placed themselves, retrace their steps over the field of world affairs for the past 25 years and its effects upon present day events and in particular upon Britain.

It is necessary to remind my American friends, that in the early stages of the war Britain stood alone, the only bastion between them and the might of Hitler's war machine. Make no mistake about it, had we fallen America would not be in the position that she is today.

It is not necessary for me to remind Americans of the valor of the men in the British fighting forces, nor need I mention the fortitude of our civilian population, all of whom were in the front line, men, women, and even the children playing their part in the cause of right, and freedom (also America's freedom).

It appears that our domestic affairs, together with Marshall Aid are the causes of these wild vaporings, I would suggest that domestic problems are the concern of the British people. They elect their governments, and they will kick them out, should they feel that they are not doing what they were elected for.

It is being suggested that Marshall Aid is paying for our health services. If the people of America believe that, they will believe anything. I would ask those who make such statements, "What are the insured workers paying 4/11d a week together with taxes for?"

Those people who are abusing our health schemes know these services are second to none, and are abusing them for fear that Americans will want a similar service.

We in Britain do not require charity, if that is what Americans are lead to believe Marshall Aid is. Marshall Aid as I understand it, is a fund to help us restore some of the ravages of war, to help us recover our losses, and assist in restoring our economy. It is also true to say that should we, like other nations, not be able to recover, it would have an adverse effect upon American economy, and the American way of life.

Informed American opinion has stated that Britain has put Marshall Aid to the use for which it was intended, and in consequence made the greatest recovery. Why? Because Britain appreciated that Marshall Aid was not charity, that she has to render an account as to the uses she has put Marshall Aid.

Let us take Marshall Aid a step further, take it away from its material context, and examine it in the light of the Christian teaching. I feel that Marshall Aid, like lease lend, the application of the doctrine that was preached by Christ, and I prefer to believe that the Americans were actuated by such beliefs; if that is so, does it become charity?

The ordinary people of Britain are at a loss to understand this abuse which is being leveled at them; they ask, "What is the motive behind it all?" when there is no justification for it.

It is a reflection on the moral integrity of the people of Britain and I will go so far as to say, that it is a reflection upon the good sense of the American people generally. I say to the people of America, do not be fooled by this abuse, we in Britain have much in common with you, and marching together can show the world what freedom and democracy is.

Keynes On Wages

JUST AS with an insurance policy, you have to read the fine print in the report of the President's Steel Fact-Finding Board. The fine print, in this instance, is in a lengthy footnote dealing with a ghost.

It is a ghost that haunts American policy-makers and those who would influence that policy. In a footnote, Chairman Carroll R. Daugherty deals with the theories of the late Lord Keynes. Keynes urged deficit spending by government for public works as a cure for depression.

Credited with greatly influencing the course of the New Deal, the Keynesian theory is championed still by many former New Dealers. The root of the argument presented to the board for the CIO Steelworkers Union was that only by a wage increase could the "recession" be prevented from becoming a depression. With steel leading the way, this would be an increase throughout industry.

The board rejected that argument. This is certain to have a marked effect on the status of ardent Keynesians within the Truman Fair Deal, conspicuously Leon Keyserling, one of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. It can also have important political consequences.

While rejecting any wage increase, the other two board members leave the delicate task of interpreting Keynes entirely to Daugherty. Far from being scornful of the brilliant British economist, he refers to him as "the master."

Nor does he reject outright Keynes' basic theory. Rather, in a discussion that reads like an interpretation of holy writ, he declares that Keynes never approved the idea of a wage increase to offset the threat of a depression.

"THE ERROR," Daugherty writes, "appears to lie in carrying too dogmatically and rigidly the view of Keynes that wage rates in general are not only an element of firms' cost but also an element in the demand for firms' products. Many American Keynesians stress the demand side of wage-rate changes much more than the cost side. The businessman, thinking mainly of his own enterprise and not much about the economy as a whole, emphasizes the cost element of such changes."

In the argument before the fact-finding board, the union insisted that more dollars would have to go in wages into the pockets of workers if they were to be able to keep on buying the products of America's vast industrial machine. This argument was documented at length by former New Dealer Robert R. Nathan, who was retained by the union for that purpose.

On the other side, the companies stoutly maintained that a boost in wages would mean a corresponding boost in prices. And with higher prices, the average citizen would be able to buy fewer goods. The economic picture would grow darker.

Chairman Daugherty goes on to say that no one can really be sure of which of these two consequences would flow out of an increase. Daugherty concludes:

"The long-term need is for steady economic expansion. Because the effects of a wage-rate change under present conditions are unpredictable, it seems best not to tamper now with the general level of wage rates."

THERE IS a slight sop to the Keynesians in the board's emphasis that its decision on wages applies only "under present conditions." If the companies' cost of manufacturing steel declines as a result of the modernization of plant and technique now going forward, then the companies will be faced with the necessity of a choice. They will either have to lower the prices of their product or increase the wages of their workers. Social insurance and pensions, in the board's interpretation, contribute to the stability of the economy at a high level of employment.

Lord Keynes' last visit to Washington before his death was in November of 1945. He was then helping to carry on negotiations for a loan to Britain. Keynes believed with deep conviction that a loan of less than five billion dollars would fail to restore England to financial solvency.

When a figure of $3,750,000,000 was agreed to and when certain monetary stipulations that he opposed were included in the terms, he returned to England with a crushing sense of failure and a deep pessimism. His serious heart condition was aggravated, and he died a year later.

His gloomy prophecies made privately at that time seem to have been correct. It was too little, if not also too late. But nevertheless, as this latest instance shows, the Keynesian theory is a powerful force in contemporary life. The brilliant, witty ghost of an extraordinary prophet looks down on our time.

"Double-Entendre"

Your editorial staff, in your September 8 issue, is to be commended for putting a correct French plural on the expression doubles entendre. However, I believe you will find that this expression does not occur in French; it seems to be an invention of some British or American newspaper. The same is true of nom de plume, another journalistic favorite (the French say nom de guerre). Of course, the French do the same thing; they will say "shake-hand" when they mean hand-shake, and so on. No great harm in all this; but The Post, which has an international reputation, should be above these provincialisms.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On Liquidating The British Crisis

IN THE maze of tangled problems, which we are calling the British crisis, there is a main thread which we can pick up and follow. It is the story of the British war debts—known when they were incurred here as lend-lease and when incurred in the commonwealth and empire as the sterling balances. We do not, I think, oversimplify the problem, in the sense of misleading ourselves, if we take what happened to these war debts as main clue to the crisis and to what may be expected in the near future.

Lippmann

WE MAY begin by fixing it in our minds that in her enormous and heroic performance in the war Britain not only sacrificed a very large part of all her accumulated foreign assets but also went deeply into foreign debt. American lend-lease was about 30 billions; the war debts to the empire and commonwealth and some other related countries were—if we count the pound sterling at four dollars—over 14 billions more.

We had realized here, even before the war was over, that with her losses and her debts Britain alone and unaided could not achieve a tolerable standard of life and maintain her position as a great power in the world. American aid began with the British loan which was negotiated in Washington in 1945. In that loan agreement there were three main points. We cancelled 30 billions of lend-lease war debt. We loaned Britain nearly 4 billions of new money. And we obtained an understanding that Britain would also negotiate a war debt settlement with her creditors in the commonwealth and empire.

We took the view that Britain could not recover even with American aid, if she had to repay all these war debts. In the 1945 loan agreement it was understood that a large part of the war debts (or sterling balances) were to be cancelled, that another part was to be funded over a long term, and that only a small part—at the rate of about 170 million dollars a year—was to be paid back immediately.

THIS understanding has not been carried out. Before we look at the reasons why the British government did not carry out the understanding about the empire war debts, it will be useful to take a measure of the burden they have been and still are. In the 12 months which ended last June the British government "released" from the "blocked sterling balances"—that is to say, repaid war debt—to India, Pakistan, Egypt, Iraq, and Ceylon to the tune of about 210 million pounds. If the pound is figured at 4 dollars, this was a burden of about 800 million dollars a year. In other words, the British have been paying out of their current earnings and dwindling reserves this large sum to the countries of the Middle East and of southern Asia. They have, also, it should be added, been supplying to Europe another 300 million dollars of goods for which they do not receive goods in return.

The present crisis, which has brought Sir Stafford Cripps and Mr. Bevin to Washington, turns on the fact that the British people cannot, even with Marshall aid, earn their own living, maintain their own social services, keep up a big military establishment, and give away to Asia and to Europe what they are now giving away.

WHEN we ask why the British government did not carry out the 1945 understanding about the empire war debts, we come upon the really difficult issues of this crisis. There were two main reasons. The one was that if Britain had not financed the needs of India, Pakistan and Egypt, they would have been in great trouble. They had to be helped somehow. But there was another reason. When the British government helped these countries by letting them spend from their sterling balances, it created a protected market which was very profitable for British industry and maintained full employment for British labor.

Thus the enlightened political interest in supporting the countries of southern Asia has been fused with British private vested interests, which in regard to British international solvency are not enlightened. As one Englishman put it to me recently: When the question has arisen of releasing sterling balances the Treasury, thinking of the solvency of Britain, said no; the Board of Trade, thinking of trade and employment, said yes, reluctantly, and the Foreign Office, thinking of the British and the world political interest, said yes emphatically.

THIS DIAGNOSIS indicates what will be, in fact, however, presently disguised and withheld, the main lines along which the British crisis will be liquidated. The British government will be compelled to reduce to the vanishing point its contributions in the former Asiatic empire. The United States by one means or another will have to take over the responsibilities for their financial needs — particularly those of India, which is the largest of the British creditors. When and as this happens, the British protected market in that part of the world will be opened to American and world competition, and this will compel a deep readjustment, probably accompanied for a time by some unemployment, in the British Isles.

But Britain will be relieved of a burden she cannot carry, and she will be deprived of a protection which renders her industry uncompetitive. Then with American aid continued for some years beyond 1952, she may be in a position where her currency at a new rate of exchange can be supported by the United States and made convertible for current trade.

HERE, it seems to me, in the barest and crudest form are the bones of the problem. They will demand many complicated measures over long periods of time. But the great essentials might as well be put in focus:

That the United States will have to assume a financial responsibility in southern Asia, particularly in India, which unavoidably has immense political consequences;

That Britain will be liquidating many of the remaining ties which have survived the political disestablishment of the Asiatic empire;

And that in Britain this historic change will compel a momentous readjustment of the British industrial economy.

THIS is indeed a very big crisis. We must not imagine that it is not a very big crisis just because for the time being the talks in Washington have been so tentative and so quiet ices on a Washington metropolitan area basis.

New 'Mayor' Presides Over Senate District Committee

An end of racial segregation.

Three more judges for Municipal Court.

Proceedings were unusual. Nearly all the stated needs have been specific subjects of earlier hearings. Some are topics of pending legislation. But yesterday's hearing was wide open to any Washington topic. Out of it, Neely says, he hoped that a useful plan may be developed in an area of general agreement for the improvement of Washington.

Neely opened the meeting with a gentle warning, and a Biblical quotation from the 127th Psalm. At Neely's request, The Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Flint, Washington area resident Bishop of the Methodist Church, opened the session with a brief prayer.

Mrs. Wright Hall Connaughton

Woolsey Hall, past president of Federation of Civic Associations, and John H. Connaughton, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, were others heard

Neely quickly made clear his belief that it was up to the citizens to formulate their plan for improving their city.

"With your collective wisdom and your cooperation," he said, "I believe Washington can be made a much greater and a much better city than ever before. It's all right to have differences of opinion, but you must find some area of agreement before you can bring your problems to the Hill and expect Congress to solve them."

In outlining the Washington school problem, Connaughton declared that the pay-as-you-go method traditionally used by the District to build its schools is no longer capable of meeting a great immediate need for more facilities. He said there ought to be a long range 60 to 80 million-dollar school building program, allocated over eight or ten years, financed by funds advanced by the Federal Government, to be paid back by the District. He said the needs are too great to be crowded, by pay-as-you-go financing, into the budget of one year.

Urges Bigger Contribution

Connaughton said, too, that the Federal Government should be contributing 30 per cent of the annual District budget. Its contribution this year is around 10 per cent. Neely said he agreed with that, but on the school question, he felt the District citizens could have been a bit more vigorous in their demands. "If you'll forgive our lack of persistence in the past," Connaughton said, "we'll do better in the future—we'll be up asking for something every day."

Testimony of two other witnesses suggested the school issue had not yet fallen into "the area of general agreement." Mrs. Leslie B. Wright of the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations said that a number of school buildings in Northwest Washington could be turned over to the use of Negro students, now in crowded schools, to ease the problem of part-time classes. In contrast, Daniel Crystal, speaking for the District chapter of the National Lawyers' Guild, called for an end of segregation in the District schools, and said that would end much of the problem of overcrowding.

Three West Virginians received warm greetings from Neely.

Former Representative Jennings Randolph (D., W. Va.), who served as House District Chairman and is now assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, showed up to urge provision of a close-in Washington airfield for private planes. eH did so as chairman of the Washington Aviation Planning Council. He also said a nearby airfield for cargo planes would be needed within two or three years to ease the load at Washington National Airport.

Calls For Three More

Heber H. Rice, former president of the West Virginia State Society here, and representative of the Federal Bar Association, urged that three more judges be provided for Municipal Court here, minus restrictions now in a bill before the House that he said would bar Government lawyers from appointment to the jobs.

Other citizens who spoke during the conference included: Mrs. Ernest Howard of the North Washington Council of Citizens Associations; Woolsey Hall, past president of the Federation of Civic Associations; Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell of the Interfederation Council of Citizens Associations; J. D. Mann of the District Bar Association, and Mrs. Olive G. Faircloth of the Women's Bar Association of the District. A written statement by Ralph W. Donnelly of the Northeast Council of Citizens Association was read to the meeting by James R. Kirkland, committee counsel.

Faye Emerson Plans Divorce

ican said the rift between Roosevelt and Miss Emerson came in August. They had been regarded as a happily married couple until then.

Miss Emerson would not comment beyond her statement.

Roosevelt has remained at their Hyde Park home in recent weeks, the paper said, while his wife lived in their New York apartment.

The paper said neither Elliott nor his wife is interested in anyone else and said friends ascribed the rift "to a conflict in interests."

Miss Emerson also has appeared in Broadway and television productions.

Miss Emerson's first marriage was to William Crawford of California. Elliott was married previously to Elizabeth Downer of Philadelphia and Ruth Goggins of Fort Worth, Tex. Elliott has four children by previous marriages; Miss Emerson has one.

Last December 26, the 31-year-old actress was treated for a razor slash on her wrist. Duchess County District Attorney W. Vincent Grady questioned Roosevelt and others and later termed the matter closed.

However, on December 29, Roosevelt told a press conference that his wife cut herself accidentally. He said there had not been a family disagreement at the time.

Roosevelt said he wanted to set at rest "insinuations that she tried to commit suicide."

Before her marriage, Miss Emerson appeared in 25 motion pictures. She turned to the stage in 1948 saying that she liked the work.

For the past two Christmas seasons, Roosevelt has sold Christmas trees grown on the Hyde Park estate. In 1947, his wife donned a mink coat to help him sell trees at a roadside stand.

John Roosevelt, the late President's youngest son, is the only Roosevelt child who has not been divorced. He and the former Anne Clark, have been married for 11 years.

James and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., each have been married twice and Anna Eleanor Roosevelt has been married and divorced twice.

"The President's House, J. K. P., President"

. . . was the title of an account carried with Corcoran & Riggs by JAMES KNOX POLK of Tennessee, 11th President of the United States. The firm's draft to his order dated Nov. 10th, 1846 and drawn proudly to "James K. Polk, Prest. U. S." is reproduced above.

Although known variously over the past century as The President's House, the Executive Mansion and The White House, the charm and simplicity of the Nation's Number One Mansion has remained substantially unaltered.

Similarly, the name of Washington's Largest Bank has undergone three changes since the date of Polk's presidency.

As Corcoran & Riggs, Riggs & Company and, lastly, The Riggs National Bank, this institution has never departed from the principles of sound banking upon which it was founded . . . . one hundred and thirteen years ago.

Wolfson Takes Transit Firm Stock Control

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stock control of Capital Transit Co. yesterday formally passed into the hands of Louis E. Wolfson and his eight Florida associates.

The transaction was completed at 11 a. m. yesterday when John J. Manning, New York attorney for the group, handed over a check for $1,939,160 to officials of the North American Co. The amount represented balance of $2,189,160 purchase price for 109,458 shares of Capital Transit stock. In June, Wolfson had made a $250,000 down payment.

The deal was completed 1½ months ahead of a November 1 deadline set by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

From his office in Jacksonville, Fla., Wolfson told The Washington Post that he and two associates plan to come to Washington on September 27 "to meet officers of Capital Transit and offer their services in any manner."

Wolfson reaffirmed his faith in E. D. Merrill, Capital Transit president, and said that no decisions as to policy and personnel changes will be made without Merrill's approval. It is possible, he said, that his group might elect several new directors to represent the group's interests. Some of the present directors, he said, are North American appointees and may wish to resign.

The Washington Post learned yesterday that the American Security & Trust Co. of Washington had loaned $1,250,000 to the Wolfson group at 3 per cent interest. The loan was made on a personal note of Wolfson, indorsed by each of the eight other associates, secured by Capital Transit stock as collateral and payable within 12 months.

Yesterday's stock transaction followed earlier approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission. North American Co., a utility holding company, had been under SEC orders since 1942 to dispose of its Capital Transit holdings. No buyers had appeared until H. Grady Gore, local real estate man, got the Wolfson group interested. Gore and two relatives, as agents, will receive a commission of 1½ per cent of the purchase price.

OFFERING: The 12 Federal land banks today will offer 215 million dollars worth of Federal farm loan bonds, bearing 1¾ per cent interest, at a price of 100¼ per cent and accrued interest. Net proceeds are to be used to retire about $145,900,000 of 1½ per cent consolidated Federal farm loan bonds of October 1, 1948-50 and to provide about 69 million dollars for repayment of commercial bank borowings and for lending operations.

ODD LOTS: Coffee futures yesterday surged 1½ cents a pound, the maximum permissible limit on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange . . . New York City has awarded 65 million dollars of 1½ percent tax anticipation notes to 25 banks and trust companies . . . Standard Gas & Electric Co. accepted a bid of $29.76½ a share for its offering of 250,000 shares of Louisville Gas & Electric Co. common stock. Lehman Bros. and Blyth & Co. and associates will reoffer the shares at $30.37½ a share . . . Adolph Teichert, Jr., president of the Associated General Contractors of America, said he believes the building industry is "now entering a period of stabilized peacetime operations for the first time in nearly a decade. . . . Textron Incorporated yesterday reported a net loss of $3,338,808 for the six months ended July 2, after giving effect to an estimated $2,284,000 Federal tax carryback credit.

Beef Steers, Hogs Advance Sharply

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—Beef steers and heifers jumped to new high price levels for the last eight months today and hogs sold mostly 50 cents a hundred pounds higher than Friday in an active market.

A load of choice to prime steers sold at $33.10, the highest since January 18 when $33.25 was paid, and several high-choice loads took $32.50 to $32.75. Choice heifers reached $29.65, the most paid for this class since January 5 when the peak for these was $30.00. Steer and heifer trade in general was 50 cents to $1 higher than Friday and some sales were up $1.25 to $1.50.

Choice butcher hogs reached $22.75, their highest price in exactly one month.

Citizens to Meet

The Greater Landover Hills Citizens Association will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Landover Hills School. Election of a vice president and two secretaries will be included in the agenda.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—Grains, soybeans and lard futures rallied today and put on a strong finish after a weak start.

Soybeans fluctuated more sharply than grains, starting weak but rallying, falling and then climbing again to close as much as 1¾ cents higher.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ¾ higher than the previous finish, corn was up ¼ to 1⅜, oats were unchanged to ¼ higher, rye was up ½ to 1¾, soybeans also were up ½ to 1¾, and lard was 7 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Atlas Tack Pledges Special Report, Clarifies Delay

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 12 (AP).—Sherman H. Bowles, president of the Atlas Tack Corp., said in a statement today that financial reports of the New York Stock Exchange and stockholders were delayed because the company was seeking to complete transactions with the liquidated Phoenix Apollo Steel Co.

The New York Stock Exchange last week threatened to suspend trading in Atlas stock September 16 unless Atlas proved it had published earnings statements for the periods ending March 31 and June 30.

Bowles said today that a special report covering the matter in detail—and reflecting a normal condition—would be mailed to stockholders as soon as it can be printed, together with reports for the first and second quarters and the year-end report of 1948. The report, he said, would detail the successful conclusion of the liquidation of the Phoenix Apollo Steel Co.—in which last year Atlas was the principal shareholder. He said the steel company was formed in 1947 by subscribing members to obtain steel during a period of shortage.

Bowles said the reports would be filed with the stock exchange by the deadline which the exchange set.

Catholic Regulations on Holy Year Indulgences Clarified

sin, and partial, which is the remission in part of such punishment. One of the conditions for the reception of an indulgence is previous confession to obtain forgiveness of sins. The jubilee indulgence is a plenary one.

"The new decree limits the gaining of indulgences to some extent outside the city of Rome. Those Catholics who are unable to visit Rome during the Holy Year are still capable, however, of gaining partial and plenary indulgences.

"According to the Pope's decree on the Holy Year, the application of indulgences for the living, both plenary and partial, will be curtailed.

"The indulgences granted by the Holy Father for the recitation of the Holy Year prayer can be obtained by anyone outside the city of Rome. These indulgences are both partial and plenary. A partial indulgence of seven years can be gained by each recitation of the Holy Year prayer. If the prayer is recited for one whole month a plenary indulgence can be gained.

"Regulations accompanying the Pope's decree also include suspension of the gaining of certain indulgences outside the city of Rome, as well as suspension of extraordinary faculties granted to confessors.

"Furthermore, the decree confers special faculties on confessors in Rome for the benefit of pilgrims. The decree, last of all, deals with the reception of the jubilee indulgence outside the city of Rome by those Catholics who are unable to fulfill the conditions prescribed in Rome, itself. . . .

"The observance of the Holy Year has as its special purpose the summoning of all faithful Catholics to expiate their sins, to amend their lives and to lead them to acquire virtue and holiness. Hence, on May 26, 1949, the Pope in a papal bull announcing the holy year, wrote:

"'It is our earnest desire that the bishops all over the world together with their clergy should instruct with great diligence the flock entrusted to their care on the subject of the coming jubilee (or Holy Year); let the faithful be urged to participate in the jubilee in the best possible way, whether they come to Rome or remain in their own country.'"

Lonely Heart Trial Opens in Delaware

Dover, Del., Sept. 12 (AP).—Escorted by spear-carrying attendants, a plump widow and her 16-year-old son were haled into court today to stand trial for the lonely hearts slaying of an elderly carpenter.

The Court of Oyer and Terminer was jammed when the attendants marched the manacled 45-year-old widow, Mrs. Inez Brennan, and her son, Robert, into the prisoner's dock.

They are charged with murder in the shooting of Wade N. Wooldridge, 67, of Bedford, Va. Mrs. Brennan is accused of ordering her son to kill Wooldridge—whom she met through lonely hearts letters—for his money.

Ten men and two women were chosen as jurors in less than two hours.

The trial, expected to last for two weeks, opened with the Old English murder trial ritual to which Delaware courts still adhere.

Mrs. Brennan and her son were marched into the court, handcuffed together, between two attendants who carried black, 10-foot spears.

The spears have pointed heads, painted red on one side, white on the other. During the trial the attendants hold the white sides of the spearheads toward the court, symbolizing the presumed innocence of the prisoners. If a verdict of guilty is returned, the spears will be turned with the red side facing outward.

A murder conviction in Delaware is punishable by hanging.

Mrs. Brennan's two other sons, Raymond, 23, and George, 17, are charged with being accessories but will be tried later.

Troubles

Romeo, 73, Sued While Bail Is Cut

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—Sigmund Engel, 73, who exchanged empty romantic promises with several women for hard cash, got some of his troubles eased today, but met new woes.

Engel

He won a reduction of his bail on two swindling charges from $40,000 to $12,500. But one of his former friends, Mrs. Reseda Corrigan, sued him for $200,000. And an assistant State's attorney turned up with details of Engel's past which, he said, call for a mental examination of the elderly Don Juan.

Engel's bond reductions were granted in cases brought by Mrs. Corrigan and Mrs. Florence Barrette, 50, a New York divorcee.

Engel will be tried Tuesday.

James Brown, an assistant State's attorney said today the Romeo was adjudged a psychopathic personality while serving a 10-year term at Auburn (N. Y.) Prison for grand larceny.

Suspect Pleads Guilty In Kidnaping of Girl

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12 (AP).—Gerald A. Hutt, 35, of Bridgeport, Conn., pleaded guilty today to a Mercer County indictment for kidnaping 5-year-old Janie Franz.

Hutt faces 30 years to life imprisonment when he is sentenced Friday, September 23. Judge Charles P. Hutchinson said his background would be studied before sentence is pronounced.

Hutt said he was a former inmate of New York mental hospitals.

Bowron Sees Gang Revival

Los Angeles, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Mayor Fletcher Bowron today accused the New York Racketeer Frank Costello of trying to boss big-time organized gambling in Los Angeles.

"In the opinion of experts," the mayor said, "Costello's boys are operating here and Los Angeles. Gambler Mickey Cohen is only a small part of the whole deal."

The mayor said the United States was "on the verge of having a sweep of gangsterism such as was prevalent in the early 1920's.

"Organized rackets, especially gambling, are developing a most potent political action movement," he said.

He charged that Costello, whom he described as "one of the most influential men in the United States," poured money into the recent Los Angeles election in an attempt to defeat him.

Costello, he added, is also backing attempts to defeat Mayor De Lesseps Morrison of New Orleans in January.

Arlington Police Plan More Arrests Of Numbers Men

Arlington Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday Arlington police will continue making gambling arrests by placing bets whenever possible with suspected numbers writers. He said such efforts would continue despite a recent decision in Arlington County Court.

Charges against two men accused of operating a lottery, were dismissed in county court last Friday when Associate Trial Justice Harry R. Thomas ruled they had been "entrapped" by a policeman who placed a bet in plain clothes under an assumed name.

"We will let the court decide each case on its own merits," Woodyard said.

Virginia:

MATS Officers Club, Washington National Airport.

Pentagon Officers Athletic Club, Room BG 877, the Pentagon.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman for the Defense Department said the Army, Navy and Air Force regulations leave slot-machine matters up to individual commanders.

Another spokesman said that such machines are under control of "instrumentalities" of the Federal Government and hence not amendable to State or local law.

"However," this spokesman added, "where the State, territorial or District law prohibits public use of slot machines, it is the policy of the Army to cooperate with local authorities upon request for such consideration" made to the commander concerned. He said the same is true for the Navy and Air Force.

Slot machines are illegal in Maryland with the exception of St. Mary's, Calvert, Charles and Anne Arundel counties. Prince Georges County voters approved the slots through referendum, but a court held unconstiutiona the law on which the referendum was taken.

As to the District, United States Attorney George Morris Fay declined to state for publication whether the use of slot machines is illegal. He said that if an actual case were presented to him officially, he could then rule on it. He referred a reporter to Title 22, Section 1504 of the District Code which states:

"Whoever shall in the District set up or keep any gaming table . . . or gambling device adapted, devised and designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property, or shall induce, entice, and permit any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or gaming device, or on the side of or against the keeper thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years."

Have you ever been to a telephone company "open house"? Last week, while I was visiting my nephew Tom and his family, the local telephone central office held an "open house" and we all decided to go.

A nice young woman took a group of us through the central office and I enjoyed it thoroughly. I can't say I understood all the complicated equipment we saw, but I did understand the part about telephone party lines.

One of the telephone men explained that in spite of the great progress being made in expanding the telephone system, some folks are still waiting for telephone service. He said that by connecting two or more families to the same line—a party line—several families get service instead of just one. So, actually, party-line sharing helps bring telephone service to more people sooner.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

STEVE BAGARUS was missing from the Redskin squad that trooped into the Statler yesterday for the annual homecoming clambake tossed by the Touchdown Club. By that time, Bagarus probably was not a man of large appetite, anyway. He wasn't sure where his next paycheck was coming from, beyond the certainty that it wasn't coming from the Redskins.

Earlier in the day the spindly halfback who was the toast of Redskin fans in 1945-46 had been told by club officials that he was surplus and that his name was going on the waiver list. Any team in the league with $100 and an idea that Bagarus could still play big league football could have him.

POVICH

Thus his pro-football career took one more dismal turn for the little guy who wasn't supposed to be big enough for the rugged pro game in the first place, yet was the most feared ball carrier on the Redskins a couple of years back. He averaged 14 yards with every pass he grabbed, and even outshined Sammy Baugh as a box-office attraction.

But all of a sudden he was traded at the end of the 1946 season.

The Los Angelees Rams got him for a pair of backs named Ralph Ruthstrom and Tom Farmer in a Redskin deal that never did make much sense.

WITH THE RAMS, Bagarus' luck ran out. The Redskins and Bagarus' admirers among the fans always did hold fear against the day when 170-pound Steve, with his skittery running style, would be crashed down and badly hurt. In the Rams' second game of the season, against the Green Bay Packers, it happened.

Big Jack Jacobs of the Packers caught Bagarus fending off another tackler while braced on only one leg, and boomed into him. Steve's upper left leg gave way. They carried him off the field. An attending physician called it "a nasty break." The next day, doctors declared, "This boy won't play football any more."

Steve was back in uniform last season with the Rams though. But he couldn't make it to their satisfaction. His chief asset, that dazzling speed, was apparently wrecked by the broken leg. They gave him his unconditional release and wrote off the deal with the Reedskins as a total loss. He caught on again with the Washington club as a free agent, though.

BAGARUS' LEG got a quick test with the Redskins. Up in Boston he caught a pass and before getting organized with it he was crashed down by Mike Micka who, after making the tackle, told Bagarus, "Sorry it had to be you, Steve? How's the leg?"

Bagarus got to his feet jauntily and told Micka not to worry. "I'm glad it happened, Mike," he said. "Now I know the leg can take it."

He went to the Redskins' training camp last July so eager to shed some of his excess 185 pounds that at one point he was down to 155. Before they broke camp, Steve had moved back to his preferred 170. He though he was set with the Redskins. In the Bears' game at Memphis he caught three out of four passes aimed at him.

But at Birmingham last Sunday, Bagarus got little consideration from the Redskins' coaches. They used him in only one play, jerked him out. He began to get the first hint that he wasn't fitting into their 1949 plans. And he was wondering why, because nobody had shown him any better pass receiving than his own.

WHEN HE WAS traded away from the Redskins at the end of the 1946 season, Bagarus popped off. He called it a "raw deal," and declared Sammy Baugh had been ignoring him as a pass receiver, calling the signals of other backs. There was no sign of unfriendliness, though, when Steve rejoined the Washington team. He had made his apology to Baugh.

The Redskins' defense for Bagarus' charges were sound enough. They were using Bagarus as much for decoy as when he was taking throws. Giants' Coach Steve Owen always bemoaned the compulsion to detail two men to cover Bagarus.

Yesterday after learning that his name was on the Redskins' waiver list, and that he would be parting company with that team, Bagarus took it calmly at first. And then he got a little mad and said, "They sure dumped me quick."

Hanson Also Ousted in First Round

By Whitney Martin

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 12 (AP).—A slim young woman from Dallas, Tex., practically speechless with amazement, today made certain that a new champion would be crowned in the forty-ninth Womens National amateur golf tournament.

She is Mrs. Joanne Barr Tracy, and nobody was more surprised than this 26-year-old Texas mother when she eliminated defending champion Grace Lenczyk, 1 up, in the first round of the all-match play event at the Merion Golf Club.

The victory of Mrs. Tracy, who is playing in her first national tournament, highlighted a day which saw the elimination of at least two other highly regarded performers and a futile battle against par on the part of all 128 entrants.

Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, runner-up in the Western Amateur this year, was defeated by Mrs. James Ferrie of Long Beach, Calif., 3 and 2, and Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., a semifinalist in the National last year, bowed to Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., 3 and 1.

Other favorites for the most part breezed through their first round matches, with Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., making a whirlwind out of her match. She defeated Mrs. Mary Longcope, Bronxville, N. Y., 9 and 7, for the biggest margin of the day.

Helen Sigel, Philadelphia, runner-up to Miss Lenczyk last year, disposed of Mrs. John G. Capers, jr., of Ardmore, 3 and 1.

Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., trounced Mrs. Cecil Gooderham of Long Branch, Ontario, Canada, 6 and 5.

Only Mrs. Margaret Curtis of Boston, who won her first of three titles back in 1907, among the four former champions competing, failed to win today. The elderly Bostonian was eliminated by Mrs. J. Albert Hayes of Philadelphia, 3 and 2.

Marlene Bauer Wins

The best scoring of the day was turned in by 15-year-old Marlene Bauer of Los Angeles, national junior champion. She was the only one to match par 36 going out as she defeated Mrs. Harley G. Higbie of Grosse Point Farms, Mich., 6 and 4. A seven on the par 4 eleventh hole was all that marred a very fine card.

It was Miss Tracy, however, who provided the drama of the day, not only by her victory but by the way it was accomplished.

She was two down at the turn, and three down at the eleventh hole. She won the twelfth when Miss Lenczyk found a trap after a not-too-difficult search on this trap-pocked terrain, took the thirteenth when the champion overshot the green and three putted, and the fourteenth as again Miss Lenczyk's putter failed her.

Marylanders Win In Amateur Golf

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 12.—Three of four Maryland representatives in the National Women's Amateur golf tournament, which opened here today, advanced with first-round victories.

Betty Garber, Rockville, Md., trounced Mrs. Robert F. Beard, Ardmore, Pa., 9 and 7; Mrs. Thelma Richards, Towson, Md., downed Ruth Woodward, Fall River, Mass., 5 and 4; Mrs. Maurice Glick, Pikesville, Md., eliminated Elinor Irving, Wilmington, Del., 8 and 6.

Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore, Md., was the only entry from the Old Line State to lose in first-round play. Miss Downey was defeated by Mrs. William Hockenjos, Springfield, N. J., 1 up.

Miss Garber faces Mrs. Harrison Flippin, Ardmore, Pa., today while Mrs. Glick meets Mrs. Dwight R. Anneaux, Prairieview, Ill., and Mrs. Richards plays Mrs. Earl Scott, Philadelphia in today's second round.

Cardinals, Yanks Open Final Drive

By Jack Hand

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Baseball took a deep breath today before plunging into the final three-week scramble that will send the two survivors into the World Series.

At the present moment, the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees have to be favored to make the grade. Both have a lead and both have the schedule running for them.

The Cards gazed fondly on a 1½ game lead over Brooklyn as they enjoyed the wide open date that left all 16 clubs idle. Tomorrow night they resume the battle, opening a 12-game home stand against the New York Giants.

After the long stay at Sportsman's Park, Eddie Dyer's gang finished up its schedule with five on the road, at Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Brooklyn, fearful that Shortstop Pee Wee Reese may not be fit for action, left for a 10-game road jaunt, opening in Cincinnati tomorrow night. The "big" games remaining on the National schedule are the three between the Cards and Dodgers at St. Louis September 21-22. They play a day-night doubleheader September 21 and a

Area Has Quartet Of Topflight Guards

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another in a series of articles on 11 leading college football teams of this area. Outstanding players on the various squads will be sized up, position by position, by MORRIS SIEGEL. Siegel has just completed a tour of the 11 schools whose teams he writes about

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

THERE'S no glory in being a football guard.

He's trampled, shoved, pushed, blocked, trapped and mangled. The only time he gets his name in the paper is when the lineup of his team is published. Except for that, there's no notoriety, no publicity, no glamor boy treatment for him.

Siegel

As one coach put it, "the only persons who appreciate guards are his coaches and the men playing against them. To everyone else, guards are simply the tenth and eleventh men on a team, sort of necessary evils."

There are four of these "necessary evils" in our football area who have come to be recognized and appreciated by persons other than their coaches and opponents.

Maryland has one, and probably the best, in Bob Ward. Virginia has the second, Johnny Thomas, and William and Mary has the others, Jim McDowell and George Hughes.

The Terrapins' Bobby Ward is small as guards come. He weighs only 185 pounds, but he's mobile and vicious. He's the Notre Dame "watch dog" type.

Ward, only a sophomore, likes nothing better than wrapping his arms around a ball-carrier and dropping him to the ground as hard as he can.

HE HAD no high school reputation back in Elizabeth, N. J., and had to wait until he got in the Army to gain recognition as a football player.

Bill Meek, the Terp freshman coach, saw him at the Fort Benning, Ga., infantry school and could hardly wait until the time came when Ward could resign as a first class private for Uncle Sam to become a first class guard for Uncle Jim Tatum.

Ward has what coaches like to see in all players—a great second effort. He's been blocked and trapped, but only momentarily. He's quick as a cat and has the uncanny ability to recover and carry out his assignment, which this year is defense and defense alone. They're going to rest him on offense.

Maryland got whipped by Duke, 13-12, last year, but it wasn't Ward's fault. He spent so much time in Duke's backfield that it prompted Ted Mann, Duke's publicist, to remark:

"We ought to put that guy' name on our roster; he's on our side of the field more than Maryland's.

Jack Hennemier, a small, but good lineman himself, sizes up Ward this way:

"HE'S THE MOST active little football player I've ever seen," said the Maryland line coach. "Why in the Duke game last year (Editor's note: Hennemier was line coach at Duke then), I saw Ward make tackles on as many plays outside the ends as he did through the middle. We tried to trap him and thought we had, but he'd squirm out someway and mess up our play. We double-teamed on him and Ward answered that by plunging over. What a ball game he played that day. I'm glad he's on my side now."

Ward not only won the Maryland coaches award as the team's outstanding lineman last year, but the players also voted him as their

Skins Given Cautious Welcome

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Remembering what happened to the Nats after a too-enthusiastic homecoming, Washington gave the Redskins a well-attended but cautious greeting yesterday as they came home for a brief stay before entraining for their final exhibition game in Milwaukee on Sunday.

More than 800 football fans attended the Touchdown Club's luncheon honoring the 'Skins at the Statler. District Commissioner Guy Mason expressed the general sentiment with the remark that he hoped "the same fate doesn't befall the 'Skins as befell the Nats when we welcomed them at the District Building."

Toastmaster Dutch Bergman launched a hilarious session with the offer of a new auto to every man in the hall if a story in The Washington Post, announcing that Owner George Marshall is through coaching his team, is true.

Whelchel Takes Over

Marshall retorted with a blast at Bergman's commercial (the former Redskin mentor now broadcasts for an auto company) and then admitted that perhaps the story was slightly exaggerated.

"I don't see why Bergman is bragging about Head Coach Billick Whelchel," Marshall said. "His coaching hasn't been so hot the last two games we played, and lost. I did all right coaching the first two games out West."

After being introduced as "the nearest thing to Rockne," Whelchel opened with a punch at the press. "The newspapers have told you all about our team. They've been far ahead of me so far and will probably continue to know more about the club than I do."

Whelchel said he hoped the Redskins, after losses to the Chicago Bears and Cardinals, had made all the mistakes they were going to make. He said many of the rookies were just learning their assignments, and several have never played the T-formation before.

Wismer Enthusiastic

The only really enthusiastic note was sounded by Harry Wismer, ace radio and television announcer, after the Redskin squad had been introduced.

He predicted a colorful team would be fielded by the 'Skins, and that Washington would argue it out for the Eastern division, National Football League tile with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mr. Redskin also said a few words.

"Old" Sammy Baugh, given a flowery introduction, asked the toastmaster not to be quite so kind. He then said the Redskins were an "improved" team, pointing out such young stars as Harry Gilmer, Rob Goode and Harry Dowda as players who "will be around a long time."

He didn't say whether or not he thought they would match his 12 years with the Redskins.

Please Send My Wandering Players Home, Coach Pleads

Suffolk, Va., Sept. 12. (AP).—Football Coach Art Jones today pleaded with his players' girl friends to send the boys home from their dates at 11 p. m..

Speaking at a student assembly, Jones said indirectly that some members of his 81-man suffolk High squad had been breaking training rules, which require them to be in bed by 11 p. m.

"I won't mention any names," he said, "because I don't know the names of all the boys who have broken the rules. But I want you girls to do your part to help us produce a winning team.

"If a boy doesn't have sense enough to come home at 11 o'clock, I want you to send him home."

Waivers Asked On Bagarus, Compagno

The Washington Redskins came within two men of the 32-player limit in the National Football League yesterday when they announced they had asked waivers on Steve (Double-0) Bagarus and Fullback Tony Compagno.

Bagarus, brilliant pass-catching star of 1945-46, will be released if no club claims him. Compagno, obtained from the Pittsburgh Steelers for Mike Micka, may be retained. Neither has been used very extensively in exhibitions to date.

Nats Play Chisox Here

After a lost weekend in New York—three out of four to the Yankees, the Nats return to Griffith Stadium tonight, opening a two-game series with the White Sox.

Dick Welk, one of the few Nat pitchers who didn't participate in that 11-walk, 12-run inning against the Yankees Sunday, is Manager Joe Kuhel's choice to face the sixth-place Hose. They'll counter with Randy Gumpert.

Welk has only one victory to show for his season's work. He's been tagged for 11 defeats. Gumpert will be shooting for his 12th. He's been whipped 14 times.

Bolling Wins Airforce Title

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Bolling Airforce Base of Washington, D. C., won the United States Airforces world wide baseball championship today by defeating Lowry Airforce Base of Denver, 3 to 2, in the final game of a double elimination series at the Polo Grounds.

Jim Noonan went all the way for the winners and limited Lowry to five hits. Buddy Day featured Bolling's two-run rally in the fourth inning when he tripled to drive in Howard Moore and then stole home on a 1-1 count.

Yankees Bring Up Two Players

New York, Sept. 12. (AP).—The New York Yankees today announced the purchase of Outfielder Jim Delsing and the recall of Catcher Ralph Houk from their Kansas City American Association team. Both are to report immediately.

Delsing, once with the Chicago White Sox, batted .320 for Kansas City and Houk, .294.

Jockeys Have HearingToday

Jockeys Michael Sarno and J. C. Gilbert will be given a hearing today before the Maryland State Racing Commission in Baltimore.

The two jockeys last week were forbidden to accept any more mounts at the Timonium race track when the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Board submitted a brief reportedly linking the two with an alleged Baltimore bookie, Tony Moscato.

Commission Chairman H. Courtenay Jennifer says that the jockeys are accused of being "too friendly" with "bad characters."

Commissioners Meet to Name Morgan Successor

The District of Columbia Commissioners will meet with the Boxing commissioners today to fill the vacancy on the boxing commission left by the recent death of Thomas P. Morgan, jr.

Claude W. Owen, former commission chairman, and James A. Sullivan, commission judge for 15 years, are considered the most likely prospects to fill the cavancy.

Other candidates mentioned are Jay Turner, Dr. J. A. Trigg, commission judge who is receiving strong support from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Charles Reynolds, referee and Al Farrell, former Maryland University boxer.

Frank Turnesa Dies at 51

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP). Frank Turnesa, 51, second oldest of the famous golfing brothers, died today at a hospital here.

He entered the hospital April 7 but in June was reported recovering from a serious illness.

Former professional at Metropolis, Briar Hills and Hasty Brook country clubs in this area, Turnesa more recently was associated with a manufacturer of golf equipment. His youngest brother, Willie, is a past U. S. and British amateur champion, the only one of the brothers who didn't turn pro.

Greeks Have a Word: Greetings

Clinton, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—Coaches expect to lose players through graduation, sickness and injury, but not to the Greek army.

However, that's what happened to John Panatier, Hamilton College football coach. One of his fullbacks, Basil Contovounesios, a Greek army reservist, was called home for service.

Series on TV Theater Screen

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The World Series will be seen on theater screens this fall as the games are being played.

The Fabian Theater of Brooklyn announced today it had arranged to show television broadcasts of the classic.

S. H. Fabian, theater president, said the arrangements were made with the Mutual Broading System and the office of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Mutual, which hasn't a video network, has radio rights for the series. It hasn't decided what television network will carry the telecasts.

Other theaters are reported checking with Commissioner Chandler for rights to present the games on their screens.

His Seventh Hole-in-One

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—Henry Marcy, 60-year-old golfer from nearby Towson, has carded his seventh hole-in-one.

He sank it yesterday using a No. 4 wood on the 162-yard ninth hole at Bonnie View course. He usually shoots in the middle seventies at the par-72 layout.

Nylon Pants Strictly From Munger

Hershey, Pa., Sept. 12 (AP).—Those white nylon pants the Pennsylvania University football payers are going to wear this season are just a little "to flashy" for Coach George Munger.

So, for the first time since he became head coach in 1938, Munger is going to appear at the games in street clothes.

Munger was only 27 when he took over at Penn. For years he used to trot out on the field wearing a uniform and looking just like any other player on his team.

He took a lot of kidding, too, but it didn't bother him. He explained he got in the habit of wearing a uniform when coaching at Episcopal Academy and the freshmen team at Penn. There was a lot of taping and water-carrying to do, and wearing a uniform was practical.

Luckily the Rains Came

Abilene, Tex., Sept. 12 (AP).—Big Spring leaves little doubt as to which is the top team in the Class D Longhorn League.

The Broncs finished in first place just 21 games ahead of second-place Midland.

AT MARLBORO

DEAR FOLKS:

The new Marlboro put a crimp in the thinking apparatus of at least of three motorists. They parked and locked their cars but left the engines running. It took three calls on the public address system to locate one of the owners and then he didn't believe he could be that careless. The moral is don't lose your head over a little bit of racing. Marlboro not only was all dressed up but sported a bugler for the first time. He blew the horses onto the track with great gusto. Glad to report that Apprentice Richard Lawless was only bruised and shaken up in last Saturday's Timonium spill and will return to action later this week. Couldn't find anyone who had a negative word to say about the new racing plant. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Tacaro Briar, Olecranon Second, 3d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Sept. 12.—Half-mile track racing at this point, once an added attraction to peach preserves, horsecorn, etc., at the Marlboro Fair, jumped from the leaky-roof circuit to the big-time here today.

Boasting a brand-new half-million-dollar plant, Marlboro drew a crowd of 7000, with 5719 paid, and the fans brought their pocketbooks along, for $310,604 was wagered as compared to $258,111 last year.

Offering such as a clubhouse, dining room, box seats, etc., for the first time, Marlboro also provided some excellent sport, featured by the Savage Purse.

The main event went to P. A. Rothfuss' Flicka Foot, a 3-year-old opposing mostly older horses. The daughter of Boss Hoss took charge early in the running and won by three lengths under a drive engineered by Apprentice Nick Griffith.

R. L. Hall, jr.'s Tacaro Briar was second a neck in advance of Dr. W. C. Ensor's Olecranon. The disappointment of the field of eight was J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime, the 1948 Maryland minor track star, finishing in fourth position.

Flicka Foot, beaten at Timonium and Bel Air, turned in her first victory since Hagerstown to the tune of a $7.60 mutuel. She was clocked in 1.07 3/5 for the 5½ furlongs over a fast track.

Flicka Foot took the lead in the opening furlong, shaking off Miss Prime to gain a definite advantage. From that point to the wire the field was chasing the brown filly. Miss Prime made repeated efforts to get to the leader and finally tired badly. Tacaro Briar came from far back to close boldly for the place along with Olecranon.

After the running, George P. Mahoney, former chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, presented a blanket to Flicka Foot, accepted by William Irvine, trainer of the fleet filly.

The daily double on A. S. Hewitt's Idle Tale and Mary Parge's Kuduwrack returned $107.40.

Bunn Fights Perry Monday At Turner's

Sonny Boy Bunn, fast-moving Washington welterweight, was signed yesterday to meet Aaron Perry in a 10-round main event which ushers in the indoor boxing season at Joe Turner's Arena next Monday night.

Bunn, fighting out of the large stable of Billy Edwards, has lost only two matches since turning pro three years ago and numbers among his victims Mike Koballa of Pittsburgh, whom he upset last winter after Koballa had won 22 straight.

Bunn battled to a draw with Holly Mims in his last Washington appearance, the semifinal of the Manuel Ortiz-Jimmy Cooper show.

Monday's fight will be the first meeting between Bunn and Perry, 23-year-old welterweight who is making a comeback try after a year's layoff. The bout also marks Perry's return to the welter ranks.

AMATEUR—From P. 15

Kirk, Lenczyk Are Upset

1 up, but the game little Texan came right back to take the 17th, recovering nicely from a trap for a 4 as the champion again had putter trouble.

A wedge shot from 85 yards that stopped 3 feet from the cup on the 18th green was the clincher. Miss Lenczyk's third rolled 30 feet past the hole, and when she missed her putt Mrs. Tracy stepped up and casually knocked in her ball for the match.

The defeat was a heart-breaker for Miss Lenczyk as it marked the loss of the third of the major crowns she won last year. She already had dropped the national intercollegiate and the Canadian championships.

Two More GW Guards Are Injured

The George Washington football team yesterday was hurt where it could least afford it—at the guard positions.

On successive plays, Howard Deiderich and Art Kojoyian came down with leg injuries. Earlier this year Jim Regan went out with an emergency appendectomy.

This means that GW now has only two experienced guards; Dixie Howell and Charlie Gunner.

And the opening game, with Virginia, is less than two weeks away.

Wm. and Mary Preps For Houston Tiff

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Coach R. N. (Rube) McCray fired up his William and Mary Indians with an all-out offensive scrimmage today and said it was "full speed ahead for Houston." The Tribe invades Texas Saturday for a game with the University of Houston.

The varsity, with Jack Cloud, Lou Creekmur and George Hughes standing out, worked against five and six-man frosh lines. Don Howren got off a couple of long runs.

Mid-Air Collision Kills Young Diver

London, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Two youthful swimmers, diving simultaneously from high diving platforms, collided in the air today and one of them, 17-year-old Robert Fray, was killed. The other youth was taken to a hospital suffering from concussion.

Field of 323 Continues Play Today

Frank Albosta, Army Engineers, and George Thornton, Army Map Service, tied for the early Class A low gross at the end of the first day of the Federal Golf Association's tournament at Argyle Country Club.

Both carded 72s; Albosta going out in 37 and back in 35 while Thornton reversed the figures.

Frank Battista, Marines, held the low net lead with 73—6—67 while the Patent Office team led in both gross and net scores with 319—24—295.

William Cole, Arlington Hall, led Class B with 80—14—66, good for both low net and gross. The Veterans' Administration and Federal Power Communications teams tied for team gross with 348, with Federal Power getting the nod for low net with 348—53—295.

James Snider, Federal Supply, was the top man in Class C, carding an 84 to take gross honors which, with an 18 handicap, gave him a 66 net to tie with John Himebaugh, Federal Power Commission, who had a 94—28—66 for low net. Team gross went to Federal Supply with 355, while Naval Engineers took the net lead with 365—87—278.

Bill Woehler, REA, carded an 87 to take the lead in the seniors tournament. Only 164 of the field of 323 played yesterday, the rest will have their chance today and tomorrow.

Kallio Leads Qualifiers

Keith Kallio topped the qualifying field for the District Public Links championship yesterday at East Potomac when he fired an even par 36, 36—72 for the round. Fifteen golfers joined defending champion George Graham in the top flight, with two matches scheduled for today and the semifinals and finals tomorrow.

Today's first round pairings:

8:40—George Graham (automatic) vs. Joe Koetan (77); 8:45—Pat Martino (76) vs. Ralph Morsal (78); 8:50—Andy Oliveri (74) vs. Tom Burch (76); 8:55—Earl Marcey (76) vs. Desmond Drotos (80); 9:00—Keith Kallio (72) vs. Joe Micker (78); 9:05—Charles Alexander (76) vs. Joe Regan (79); 9:10—Bob Moffitt (75) vs. Cecil Starnes (78); 9:15—Fred Proulx (77) vs. Al Brown (80).

Chicago, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Johnny Lujack, Chicago Bears' quarterback who injured his shoulder in an exhibition game with New York Saturday, was released from a hospital today and returned to the Bear training camp at Rensselaer, Ind.

Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair Scheduled at Solomon's Island

By Ralph Murdock

ANGLING ENTHUSIASM will be demonstrated Friday, Saturday and Sunday by the largest collection of fishing craft yet to be displayed in this area at Solomons Island.

Murdock

Officially, this is known as the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair and it will bring together fishermen from all walks of life. A large number of anglers made their reservations for the frolic several months in advance. Capt. Brant Free and other Bay skippers have been booked since early in July. The entire affair will be a tribute to the sport of fishing and the recreation that is derived from it.

THE CITIZENS of St. Mary's County are now staging a fight to block the erection of an oil tank base at Piney Point. The project calls for a 1102-foot wharf which will extend from Piney Point into the Potomac River with oil storage tanks on shore. The purpose of this installation is to eliminate the hauling of oil in tankers up the Potomac River where the channel is narrow and the water is only 12 feet deep at times.

The residents of this beautiful resort claim that waste oil in the course of time will destroy fish, crabs and oysters in the Piney Point area. They also warn that shore property and bathing beaches will suffer a severe loss if the installation is approved and therefore ask the county commissioners to reverse a recent decision against them. Another decision in favor of the project certainly would not help the fishing situation which is now limping and could stand a boost on its own hook.

Oddly enough, just a couple of miles across the Potomac River, the Virginia Fisheries Commission has just adopted a resolution calling for $150,000 to investigate the alarming scarcity of fish in the adjacent area.

C. R. WHITAKER of the Southern Railway Co., Ralph Torreyson and Bailey Scrimgeour have just returned from a pleasant two weeks vacation at Scientist's Cliffs, located less than 2 miles below Kenwood Beach on the Chesapeake Bay. The trio indulged in several fishing trips during their stay. On the last day out they made a catch of 36 spot, 1 trout, 2 black sea bass and 1 flounder, when the bluefish failed to surface. They used an inboard rowboat, with bloodworms for bait.

best performer. "There's no football team in the country he couldn't play on as a regular," says George Barclay, who coached him last year.

IT ISN'T OFTEN that Virginia has a standout lineman, but they've come up with a corker in this year's team captain, Johnny Thomas.

The 200-pound West Virginian is what Line Coach Butch Slaughter calls "adequate," which is quite a compliment coming from the taciturn Slaughter. But Johnny Papit, Virginia's swift-footed fullback goes all out for Thomas.

"I love to run plays through Johnny's spot. Boy when he opens a hole for you he really opens one. You could drive a truck through it."

There's no bigger booster for Thomas than Papit. First time Papit got his hands on the ball last year in the Washington and Lee game he plunged through Thomas' guard, found the avenue clear, as usual, and zoomed 60 yards for a touchdown.

The next trip was a 43-yard excursion and once again Thomas was the guy who ripped the way clear for him.

WILLIAM AND MARY has become accustomed to good guard play ever since Buster Ramsey, now with the Chicago Cardinals, became the school's first All-America seven years ago.

In this year's huskies, 220-pound Jim McDowell and 215-pound George Hughes, Coach Rube McCray feels he has "good protection there."

McCray's line coach, Tom Power, simply drools when he hears the names of McDowell and Hughes. "Man oh man," says Mr. Power, "those guys are mean and rough. They love to smash in and whoever they block knows he's been hit.

"Funny thing about them, they're the quietest, most even-tempered boys you'll find anywhere—except when they put on those football suits. Then, they just get fierce, and the madder they get the better they play. We try to keep 'em mad."

Bo Rowland of GW likes his pair, Charlie Gunner and Dixie Howell, and wishes he had more of their same type. . . . Georgetown and Navy are both weak at guards, the Hoyas so pressed that they've converted two backs to guards, Connie O'Doherty and Billy Rose. . . . Duke has a better-than-average operator in Jimmy Knotts. He'd be terrific if he could stay in one piece, but he's constantly being injured. . . . North Carolina lost three of its regular guards by graduation, but the situation isn't as gloomy as Coach Carl Snavely would have you believe. Bill Wardle, a hangover from last year, is back, and he'll be helped by a flock of talented recruits," as they say in Chapel Hill, up from the frosh. . . . Rob Leighty is the standout of a mediocre crop at VMI. . . . Tom Lawlor, defensive hero of the Duke game last year, is VPI's best. His smashing play was principal reason Techmen held Duke to a 7-0 victory.

29 Report For C. U. Grid Drills

John Jankowski started his career as a college football coach yesterday with 29 Catholic University candidates reporting for practice.

Unfamiliar with most of his players, Jankowski, who replaced Tommy Chasari as head football coach, would not commit himself as to the team's prospects.

Jan was satisfied, however, that this year's squad was not wanting in experience, what with Joe Maiuri, Bucky Ennis and Bill Holl returning for the third straight year in the backfield and Billy Maher returning at end.

Although this is Jan's first year with a college team, the job of head football pilot is not new to him. He guided Central High School to three interhigh titles and one city championship during the eight years he coached there.

Neither is C.U. a new experience for Jan. A graduate of the institution in '34 he starred at halfback three years on the football team, was captain of the freshman basketball squad and organized C.U.'s first golf team and served as its captain for four years.

Rutgers Gets Football Shrine

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—The site selection committe of the National Football Hall of Fame announced today that it has chosen college field at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., as the site for the National Football Shrine.

College field at Rutgers was the scene of the first American intercollegiate football game between Rutgers and Princeton on November 6, 1869.

The committee was made up of Sports Writer Grantland Rice, Asa Bushnell and four college conference commissioners—Bernie H. Moore of the Southeastern, Reaves E. Peters of the Big Seven, Victor O. Schmidt of the Pacific Coast and Kenneth L. Wilson of the Big Ten.

Steak Stories Irk Hogan

Ganton, England, Sept. 12 (AP). Ben Hogan said today he is "sick and tired" of harping by the British press on the half-ton of meat brought to England by the American Ryder Cup Golfers.

"Everytime I pick up a paper I read about that meat," the little United States captain declared." I can't even find any golf news. Next time I guess we'll have to leave our clubs at home and just have a meat show."

The Ryder Cuppers brought 600 steaks, a half-dozen hams, 12 sides of beef and four boxes of bacon with them.

British reporters told Hogan they considered food the biggest news in these tightly rationed islands at the moment.

Chevrolet Owners Are Largest Group

There are more Chevrolets owned and operated in this area than any other make car. Never before has there been such sweeping demand for authorized Chevrolet service and repairs; never before in local automotive history has any dealer group brought together such combined strength to meet that demand.

CHEVROLET

3,970 Parts to A Chevrolet

You never need to accept substitute parts when you have your Chevrolet repaired. Your Chevrolet Dealer keeps a complete stock of parts on hand, right in his building. Nothing can work in your Chevrolet as well as genuine Chevrolet factory parts. Always insist upon them.

RESPONSIBILITY

CHEVROLET DEALERS COMBINE FACILITIES TO MEET THE GREATEST DEMAND FOR SERVICE AND REPAIR

OK Used Cars Live Up to Chevrolet Standards

It's long been a recognized fact that Chevrolets are the most popular of all makes in used cars. More in demand, consistently low priced, and sold by your Chevrolet Dealer with the same sense of responsibility that accompanies a new car. When you buy an O.K. Used Car from your Chevrolet Dealer, you can be certain that it has been conditioned with typical Chevrolet care and thoroughness! And it comes to you with your Dealer's guarantee that it is exactly as represented. A Chevrolet O.K. Used Car is always a top value!

137,899 PEOPLE CAN'T BE WRONG

They're car owners who came to Chevrolet Dealers last year for repairs and service! Such preference proves beyond doubt that when Chevrolet Owners want to be sure they get the best, they go to their Chevrolet Dealer. His service never costs more, often costs less. He has the parts, the experience, the ability to keep your Chevrolet in perfect condition!

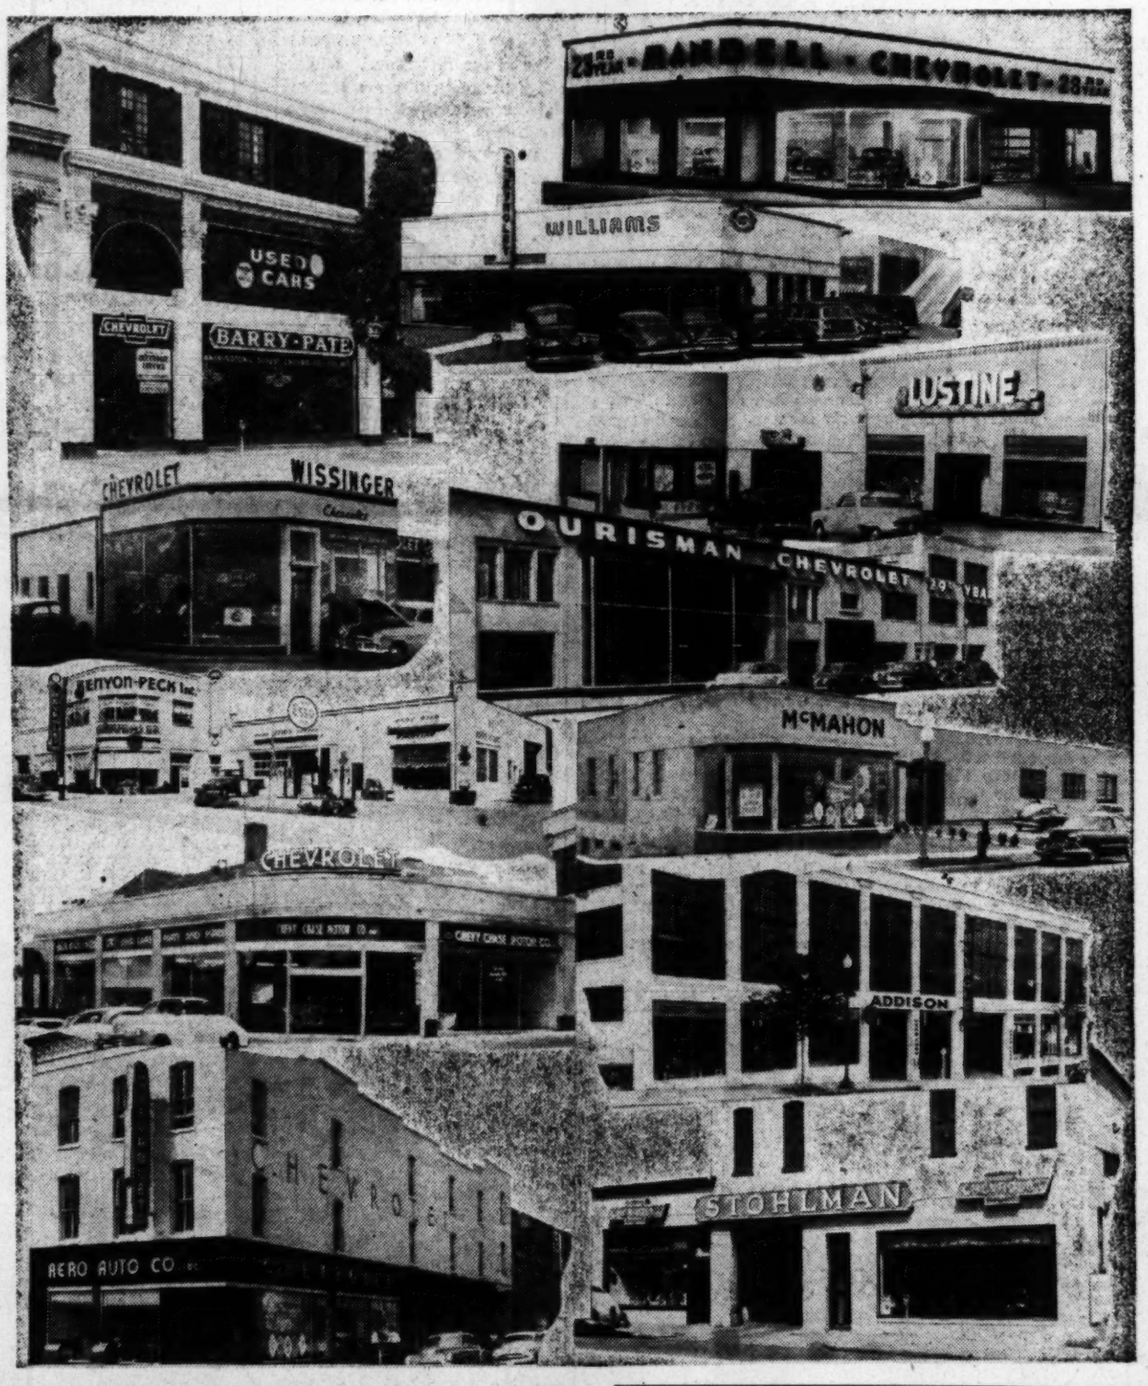
MORE VOLUME MEANS MORE VALUE...

Chevrolet Leadership, plus the pride your Dealer takes in his product and his service, places at your command the greatest facilities ever assembled in this area. No matter which of the 12 Chevrolet Dealers you choose, your are assured of more value for your money, more satisfaction with the work, more service from your car. These facts have been proved over 175 years of combined Chevrolet experience in this area.

You Don't Need Cash for Repairs

There's never any need for a Chevrolet Owner to operate his car when it isn't in top condition. Every Chevrolet Dealer in this area is prepared to arrange time payments, regardless of the service needed. Take your Chevrolet to him now, and ask about this plan. It's easy, quick, and completely satisfactory!

A Half-Million Square Feet of Space Dedicated Exclusively to Chevrolet Service. Get to Know Your Nearest Dealer!



Chevrolet Leadership On Constant Increase!

And every time a car owner becomes a new Chevrolet owner, a new responsibility is born. Every Chevrolet dealer in this area regards it as his personal obligation to provide service and repair facilities to keep that Chevrolet in perfect condition. No matter what type service a Chevrolet owner needs . . . repairs, parts, body and fender work, paint job, wrecking service . . . his dealer is ready. Truly the men who make Chevrolets . . . the men who sell them . . . the men who are Chevrolet trained to repair them . . . know your Chevrolet best! Why take less than the best?

NEW CHEVROLET TRUCKS LEAD...

Three R's Take on New Meaning . . .

School days may be far, far behind, but learning never stops. In this day and age, the three R's are interpreted by your Chevrolet Dealer to mean responsibility, respect and regard. Responsibility which he feels toward every Chevrolet Owner, no matter where he bought his car. Respect for the product he sells and services. Regard for the confidence and satisfaction which is every Chevrolet Owner's inherent right. If you own a Chevrolet, you've got the world's leader back of you!

Preferred Over Next Two Makes Combined

More Chevrolet trucks were sold than the next two makes combined, according to the latest official 1949 truck registration figures.

No doubt about it Chevrolet Trucks are top values! With people who know trucks, who demand the most for the least, Chevrolet advance-design trucks lead the field in overwhelming majority.

AN EXAMPLE IN EXTRA VALUE!

Internal Revenue Will Decentralize Collection Work

The tax work of the Internal Revenue Bureau here is to be decentralized to the agency's field offices. Eventually, the headquarters office will deal mainly in policy and planning functions.

Commissioner George J. Schoeneman disclosed his plan over the weekend at the annual convention of the National Association of Employes of Collectors of Internal Revenue at York Harbo., Me. He said:

"The big tax job is in the field where the taxpayers reside and not in Washington; therefore, we are attempting to place all the actual tax work in the field offices, leaving in Washington only top executive direction, policy ruling work, and major audit coordination and planning work.

"As evidence of progress in this respect I point to the fact that more than 91 percent of all employes are now in the field and I confidently anticipate that this figure will eventually rise to 95 percent. By way of contrast, in 1940, only 81.4 percent of our people were in the field offices.

"To collect taxes we must have employes who are engaged full time in tax collecting and not in office routines. Therefore, we are attempting to find means of adjusting our essential office routines in such a way as to perform them with relatively less man power and place more and more on front-line enforcement work."

He went on to say that 3343 of the 4022 new employes the bureau would hire during this fiscal year (none here) would be in enforcement work.

The convention was the most successful ever held by the relatively new employe group. More than 1500 delegates and their friends from every State in the union attended it. The convention went on record for:

Covering into regular Civil Service jobs by presidential order of all war service and temporary employes who have had good work records for the past five years; the Langer-Klein bill to modify the Veterans Preference Act to give greater job security to non veteran career employes with many years of service; a new cost of living pay raise; reallocation of Revenue jobs; overtime pay for overtime work instead of compensatory time off, and approval of the Rhodes bill to give employe unions the right to negotiate grievences and work conditions with Federal officials.

NOTES: Albert F. Parks has been appointed assistant chief of Customs' Bureau of Laboratories . . . The Senate has recommitted to committee the bill it once approved to bring employes of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf under the Civil Service retirement system . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee inquiry into the hearing examiner test is now scheduled to start next Monday. Civil Service officials pleaded for more time to prepare their case . . . The term of Interstate Commerce Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison expires in December. It's a GOP job and there are several candidates fo rit . . . Agriculture's cafeteria has reduced the price of coffee—from 6 to 5 cents a cup.

JOB NEWS: The Civil Service Commission is readying tests to be announced soon for: aviation safety agent and airways flight inspector, $4479 to $7432, to fill CAA vacancies; information specialists in grades CAF-9 through 12, $4479 to $6235, and public health educator, $4479 to $7432 . . . Civil Service has extended for 60 days to November 20 the deadline for replacing non-status information specialists here in grades CAF-13, 14, and 15 . . . Delaware has only 1800 Federal workers, the smallest number of any State. The three big State leaders are California with 202,600; New York, 182,300, and Pennsylvania, 111,200.

PAY PLANS: Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas said yesterday after a White House conference that he would call up the five pay raise bills after the reciprocal trade and arms programs are disposed of. He hopes to get them up and passed sometime nex week.

An attempt was made—but failed—to get the trade bill set aside in order to take up the pay bills. Senator Sydings (D., Md.) who will handle the military pay bill, is anxious to get away on a European trip. The military bill will be called up first and following it will be the executive, classified, postal, and legislative bills.

You can fully expect this—that opponents of the pay bills will use the President's fact-finding recommendations in the steel dispute as an argument against them.

Navy Veteran Dies in Fall Of 85 Feet From Bridge

Body Is Found Lying Face Down On Washington Memorial Parkway

A Navy veteran yesterday either fell or leaped to his death from Key Bridge.

His body was found shortly after 4:30 p. m. on the newly-constructed George Washington Memorial pkwy. about 150 feet southeast of the bridge pier on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

Police identified him from papers in his wallet as Hugh E. Murphy, jr., 22, of 3946 East Capitol st.

Edward W. Hansborough of that address, said that he had raised Murphy from the time he had been a boy of 13. He said that Murphy had left the East Capitol st. address last February. He did not know where Murphy was living.

Park police said that several persons along Key Bridge saw the man as he left the parapet. One of the eyewitnesses, Major Archimedes L. A. Patti, of 4311 Cathedral ave. nw., was first to reach the body.

Park police estimated the man fell approximately 85 feet.

Police found two one dollar bills in a wallet in one of the dead man's pockets. Also found was a Navy discharge certificate stating that Murphy was a carpenter's mate third class during his naval service. He received his honorable discharge from Bainbridge, Md. Murphy is listed as a locomotive fireman employed by the Washington Terminal Company.

3 From D. C. Become New Polio Victims

Three District residents were reported yesterday by the city health department as new polio victims.

They are an 8-year-old girl from the 1300 block of 27th st. se., admitted to Children's Hospital last Friday; a 20-year-old girl of the first block of Mississippi ave. se., admitted to Gallinger last Wednesday, and a 28-year-old man from the 5100 block of C st. se., who was admitted to Gallinger Saturday.

A total of 146 polio cases, 6 fatal, have been reported by Washington area health officials so far this year.

The breakdown:
District—63.
Montgomery County—19.
Prince Georges—35.
Alexandria—6.
Arlington—14.
Fairfax—9.

D. C. Junkman Profits at Police Auction

Frank Figliozzi, 40, who has been in the junk dealing business for the past 20 years, give or take a few, made a funny kind of profit yesterday.

He went to the Police Department's sale of abandoned vehicles and picked out a beat-up boat which had been salvaged by Harbor Police. He figured he could take it to the country for his kids to play with. Bid $3. Got the boat.

Within minutes, a policeman was pointing out a man who also was interested in the boat. Name of Beall. Willing to pay $5. So Figliozzi shrugged his shoulders, made the sale, marked up $2 profit.

Figliozzi looked over the cars. Some of them had no wheels, most had shattered windows. Some were practically museum pieces. Figliozzi saw a 1937 Oldsmobile. Thought he might get it in shape to use as a runabout. Bid $120. Got the car.

And before you could say "Valueless trash, waste, refuse," here came a man name of Wilson. Told Figliozzi he'd just been waiting for him to finish bidding. Wanted the Olds. Willing to pay $150. He did. Easiest $32 Mr. F. ever made.

Of the others, mostly dealers, who bid on a total of 46 stolen or abandoned autos at the Police Property Yard sale, lowest price paid was $10 each for a '33 Chrysler and a '29 Willys. Highest was $127.50, paid for a '41 Dodge, and the same for a Ford truck.

The other buyers have a week to haul their cars away.

The sale, first conducted by the police since last October, brought a total of $1653 in cash. The auction was conducted by the firm of Adam Weschler & Sons. Receipts will be turned over to the District government.

Baby Sitter Held

A 44-year-old baby sitter waived Municipal Court hearing yesterday and was held under $500 bond on a charge of cruelty to a 9-month-old baby.

The defendant is Molly Chambliss, 44, of 735 New Jersey ave. nw. She was hired to tend the baby, William James Apple, while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Apple, 735 New Jersey ave. nw., went away for a short vacation.

Police said that Mrs. Chambliss became intoxicated September 9 and dropped the child from its crib.

District Schools Open, Enrollment Up 3000

Prince Georges Reports Increase of 4615 And Montgomery Has 3000 More Pupils

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

War babies grown to school age flocked into District schools yesterday, causing enrollments to spiral upward by more than 3000 pupils.

School officials reported a total attendance of 86,400, as compared with 83,112 on opening day a year ago.

Bulk of the increase was in the elementary schools where 53,948 children enrolled for classes. Last year there were 50,080.

The pattern was the same in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties where children also returned to school after a summer holiday.

Prince Georges reported 27,183 children in class yesterday, an increase of 4615 over last year. County school officials said elementary school enrollment had increased by 2800.

Montgomery county had no final attendance figures but an estimated 24,000 children were present for class, an increase of 3000 over last year.

Enrollment Increases

White school enrollment in the District totaled 45,281 and in the Negro schools 41,119.

Enrollment in the white elementary schools increased by 1618 and in the Negro elementary schools by 2250.

Junior high school enrollment in both divisions fluctuated not so wildly, with 9062 reporting in the white schools as compared with 9284 a year ago and 8719 in the Negro schools, an increase of 479 over last year's 8240.

Continuing a trend of several years, enrollment in white high schools dropped from 8808 to 7943. Negro high school enrollment remained nearly constant, with 4583 reporting yesterday as against 4569 a year ago.

Enrollment in the white vocational high schools increased to 779 from 589 last year and in the Negro schools enrollment dropped to 737 from last year's 887.

School officials emphasized that opening day enrollment figures never tell the full story. Not all children attend school on the first day and registrations will continue through the week.

Patterson School Crowded

Although increases in elementary school enrollment were noted all over the city, the greatest overcrowding was in the schools in the northeast and southeast sections, east and south of the Anacostia River.

Worst of the overcrowding was at the Patterson elementary school, South Capital and Darrington sts.

More than 1300 children enrolled at the school which has a capacity of 720. Twenty-two classes of first, second, third and some fourth grade students were put on part-time schedules.

Ten first grade classes were set up by Miss Florence M. Painter, principal of the school. More than 300 children sought admission to the four kindergarten classes and a waiting list was established.

The situation was nearly as bad at Congress Heights elementary school, 5th st. and Nichols ave. se.

All classes through the fourth grade were put on part-time. The school with a capacity of 560 enrolled 889. Seventy children were waiting to be admitted to kindergarten.

Miss E. M. Tuesheim said enrollment probably will reach 1000 by the end of the week.

The Stanton Elementary School, Good Hope and Naylor rds. se., which last year had a student body of 555, enrolled 701 yesterday. Eight classes were put on part-time to accommodate 171 first graders.

At the Beers Elementary School, Alabama ave. and 36th pl. se., 12 of 18 classes went on half-day schedules.

Completion of an eight-room addition to the Kimball Elementary School, 34th st. and Minnesota ave. se., made it possible for the school to go on full-time programs for the first time in six years but Principal Miss Dorothy M. Lewis feared that it was only temporary.

New Annex Used

Some classes had as many as 44 children and classes were meeting in the library and the practical arts room.

More than 200 children had registered for kindergarten indicating that at least five first grades must be organized next year. At present the school has four first grade classes.

Children were moved into the new annex though the building was not complete. Lockers are yet to be installed at the rear of classrooms and furniture must be moved into the lunchroom. The playground was muddy and full of ruts.

Parents who had fought for the building before the school board and committees of Congress held a celebration last night marking opening of the annex. The building was thrown open to the community with the Parent-Teacher Association and the North Randle Highlands Citizens Association sponsoring a reception. Guest of honor was Mrs. Ephriam Kimball, widow of the Washington educator for whom the school was named.

Falls Church First Graders On Half-Day

Half-day sessions for about 240 Falls Church pupils, mainly first graders in the Madison-Jefferson Elementary School, were authorized last night by the Falls Church school board.

School Superintendent Irvin Schmitt said the shortened sessions would start in 10 days to two weeks.

All first-graders and pupils in a combination first-second grade class at the school are included in the reduced-time plan.

Mrs. Blanche Wheat, principal of the school, told the board the present enrollment of 977 children has swollen the total in some classes to up to 48 pupils.

In addition to the shortened hours, the board authorized appointment of five additional teachers, all calculated to reduce the present pupil load per teacher from 39 to 34 children.

At the same time, the board asked a report to be submitted next Monday from its site committee on buildings which may be converted for use as additional primary classrooms.

The board emphasized that it was taking action on half-day sessions reluctantly "pending immediate investigation of other means of alleviating crowded conditions."

Schmitt was requested by the board to report on the condition of fire escapes leading from the third floor of the Jefferson School. Mrs. Wheat told the board the fire escapes, which serve three classrooms, are "too unsafe" even for practice fire drills.

Union Mission Fete Set for October 9

Plans for the celebration October 9 of the sixty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw., were completed at a meeting of the board yesterday.

James L. Kraft of Chicago will be the speaker and Homer Rodeheaver of Winona Lake, Ind., the music director, at the celebration to be held in Constitution Hall.

2 at Belvoir Seriously Hurt As Cars Crash

A Fort Belvoir civilian employe and a noncommissioned officer stationed at the post were injured critically last night in a two-car collision on Route 1 near the Army installation.

The victims, each driving separate cars, were Raymond Violett, 17, post exchange employe, of Lorton, Va., and Master Sergt. Willie W. Barksdale, 30, of Fort Belvoir.

Both were removed to Fort Belvoir hospital, where Violett was admitted with a possible skull fracture and Barksdale with internal injuries.

Stricken by a heart attack upon hearing of the traffic death of his 17-year-old son, Henry L. Reh, 55, of Hillside, Md., last night was reported in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital.

The son, Leonard, was killed early yesterday when the station wagon he was driving careened off Marlboro pike near Andrews Air Force Base.

In another accident, a man identified from papers as H. E. Waterman, 57, Arcadia, Calif., dental surgeon, suffered head injuries when, it was said, he ran into the side of an auto.

The accident occurred at 3:30 p. m. yesterday at the intersection of Montgomery ave. and Perry st., Rockville.

The victim was taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, unconscious. No charges were placed against the Rev. Mr. Williams.

Man Grabs Bumper And Saves His Life

The quick thinking of a 52-year-old pedestrian who grabbed the bumper of a bus that struck him about 9:30 last night probably saved his life.

Detective Harold Gipe of the Accident Investigation Unit said the victim, Edward J. Head, 1204 Massachusetts ave. nw., suffered abrasions of the left arm and a possible back injury when struck by a Capital Transit bus bound east on Rhode Island ave. nw. by Grant Circle.

The bus was driven by Donald W. Irons, 25, of 1218 Perry st. ne. He was not held by police. According to police, the stop-and-go light for pedestrians had burned out. Head was dragged by the bus as he held on to the bumper.

'Late For a Date'

Speeder, 18, Let Off With Stern Words

An 18-year-old college student was somberly lectured on the dangers of reckless driving yesterday after being convicted of speeding because, according to police, he said he was "late for a date."

He is Francis K. Price, jr., of 4323 18th st. ne.

Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., suspended a sentence of $100 fine or 30 days in jail after Price promised to attend traffic school here at the conclusion of his school year at Notre Dame University in June, 1950.

The judge also called Price's father, a dentist, and said:

"It's hard to decide what to do with your son. He must be made to feel the seriousness of the offense."

Observing that the youth had no prior police record, Judge Kronheim said that it must be brought home to the defendant that "travelling at excessive speed is a hazard to everyone."

"Just over the past weekend two boys were killed and another smashed up badly because one of them drove between 80 and 90 miles an hour on a nearby open road," the judge pointed out.

Motorcycle Patrolman A. W. Anderson said that he paced young Price at a 75-mile-an-hour rate for .3 mile in a 30-mile-an-hour zone along South Capitol st. near the District line. The violation occurred September 3.

Business Men's Group Opposes Gas Tax Boost

The Southeast Business Men's Association last night voted to oppose any proposed increase in the gasoline tax in the District.

Meeting for the first time this season at 314 Pennsylvania ave se., the 39 members attending recommended that the Commissioners print some comprehensive regulations pertaining to the personal property tax. No such regulations are now available, the association contended.

The group also recommended more cooperation in dealings between Internal Revenue agents and businessmen. A discussion at the meeting brought forth charges from some members that they had been "browbeaten" by Internal Revenue men.

Accidents Cut 300 by Traffic Innovation

A "selective" District traffic law enforcement plan has resulted in a marked increase in the number of arrests for traffic violations and a sharp decline in traffic accidents.

Records show that under the new plan there were about 6700 more arrests for traffic violations and 300 fewer accidents in the past 12 months as compared with the previous 12, although the plan has been in effect only six months.

This was disclosed last night by Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Metropolitan Police traffic division, at a meeting of the Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board at the Kane Transfer Co., 115 Q st. ne.

Inspector Miller said his office had made a study of the "troublesome' spots on the District streets for a period of several months, giving special attention to those areas where similar traffic accidents were recurring.

Sent to Trouble Areas

As a result of the survey motorcycle patrolmen are now directed to these trouble areas with specific instructions as to the type of traffic violation expected to occur there. He said he felt the increased arrests and warnings have been the direct cause of the decrease in the accident rate.

The survey disclosed, he said, that the majority of accidents occur when drivers fail to give proper attention to driving, fail to yield the right of way, and drive at excessive speeds.

Accidents also tend to increase, he said, when regular traffic police are changing shifts. For this reason many of the special patrolmen arrive at their designated spots at these times. In many cases their "beat" is limited to one block or one intersection, an area they can adequately cover, he said.

Reports on Pupil Accidents

Inspector Miller also announced that the traffic division is now preparing detailed reports of every school child injured or killed in a traffic accident. These reports, he said will be given to police in the school area, who will in turn relate them to members of the schoolboy patrol in an effort to drive home traffic hazards and safety rules.

The traffic advisory board also drafted a resolution to be sent to the District Commissioners urging a one-day traffic safety conference of District, Maryland and Virginia traffic officials.

Purpose of the conference is to check on the compliance with the rules of the President's Highway Safety Conference.

Bank Teller Is Arrested By G-Men in $1900 Theft

Bachelor, 42, Who Worked for Firm 20 Years Held For Grand Jury

A teller was arrested yesterday in a downtown bank by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who charged him with embezzling $1900 in bank funds.

He is A. Provost Shaw, 42-year-old bachelor, of 3621 Newark st. nw. The FBI men made the arrest in the National Savings & Trust Co., 15th st. and New York ave. nw. Shaw has been an employe of the bank for 20 years, the FBI said.

Shaw pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence and was held under $1500 bond for grand jury action.

In admitting the theft, Shaw said he took the money to pay "debts," but declined to give details, the FBI said.

The embezzlement took place around June 29, the FBI said, and Shaw made numerous false entries to conceal the shortage.

Bank officials discovered the money was missing in August and the G-men were then called in to investigate the case because the bank is a Federal depository.

Man Indicted On Charges of Four Children

A 67-year-old man was indicted here yesterday on charges of taking indecent liberties with three small girls and a boy.

He is Caleb M. South, a barber, of 1118 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va. The offenses alleged took place near MacArthur blvd. and Reservoir rd. nw.

The arrest was made after the children involved and their little friends led police to the man.

The initial tip was given, according to court statements after an 11-year-old boy had been picked up by South in an automobile. The boy said nothing about it, until a little girl with whom he was playing a game called "secrets" confessed that a man in the same type automobile had been "nasty" with her. He then told his mother.

Police alerted families in the neighborhood and another little girl said that she saw the man in his car almost every Sunday in the neighborhood. She saw it again and took down the tag number, she said.

South's was among 32 indictments returned in District Court. Among the others were seven persons charged with numbers lottery operation. They were listed on court papers as:

Carlton L. Norris, 37, 1727 L st. ne.; Charles T. Harrison, 27, 516 55th st. ne.; Leon H. Ables, 19, 5316 Bell pl. ne.; John D. Duncan, 41, 5025 Fitch pl. nw.; Walter Gorman, 45, and Mary Gorman, 42, of 50 Hanover st. nw., and James Matthews, 39, of 14 G st. nw.

Second-degree murder was charged to David G. Coleman, 27, of 32 L st. nw., in the fatal stabbing August 19 of William H. Williams, 27, of 63 DeFrees st. nw.

27 at Garfield Begin Three-Year Nursing Course

A class of 27 student nurses yesterday began a three-year course at Garfield Hospital.

The new students began with an orientation tea yesterday afternoon, when they were addressed by hospital administrators. During their training, they will study all phases of hospital care, spending about six weeks in each department.

Garfield will graduate 22 nurses in Bethlehem Chapel, National Cathedral, September 19.

Painter Perishes In Blazing Home

One of two Montgomery County brothers died and another jumped from a porch to safety when their seven-room frame house burned down early yesterday.

The dead man was Howard L. Mobley, 46, a painter. The brother who escaped is Carlton Mobley, 52, a paint salesman. The home where they lived together was at Quince Orchard, about 4 miles west of Rockville, on Route 28.

The surviving brother told police he was awakened by heavy smoke in the house shortly after 1 a. m. and groped toward the stairway, seeking his brother. Both had been sleeping on the second floor.

He bumped into his brother near the stairway, he said, but lost him in the dense smoke. The dead brother, police said, apparently walked or fell down the stairs trying to reach a telephone to call aid.

Carlton Mobley told police he went through the smoke to a window over the porch roof, climbed out, and jumped. He said that as he struck ground, he noticed the entire kitchen section of the home engulfed in flames.

Running to the home of a neighbor to call help, Carlton Mobley found the party telephone line there out of order, possibly from the fire, and with the neighbor drove to another phone to call help. The Rockville and Gaithersburg volunteersburg volunteer fire departments responded, but the home could not be saved.

Several hours later, the body of Howard Mobley was found in the ashes in the basement by Byron and Myrell Miller of the Gaithersburg department. Capt. Leslie Briggs of that department suffered a crushed thumb. He was treated by a Gaithersburg physician.

Mobley's body was taken to the Gartner Funeral chapel at Gaithersburg. Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, isued a certificate of accidental death.

Howard Mobley is survived by two other brothers, Clarence, of Roanoke, Va., and Samuel H. Mobley, of Boyds, Md.; and two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Radcliff, of Quince Orchard, and Mrs. Helen Watkins, of Gaithersburg.

Young GOP's Elect

Donald H. Dalton, a Washington attorney, was elected chairman of a suggestions committee, for forwarding members' ideas to appropriate Congressmen, at a meeting of the Montgomery County Young Republican Club last night in the Bethesda County Building. Gilbert Gude of Rockville, was named chairman of a committee to organize a contest in county schools for posters urging persons to register for voting.

Starts This Week

N. Y. Rabbi Accepts Call To Capital

Rabbi Leo Ginsburg has accepted a call to become spiritual leader of the congregation of Temple B'nai Jacob, 2504 Naylor rd. se.

He succeeds Rabbi Joseph Penner, who left Washington last fall to accept a pulpit in Seattle, Wash. The new rabbi will begin his work here this week and will conduct services at 8:30 p. m. After the services, the congregation will greet Rabbi Ginsburg at a reception at the temple.

Born at Providence, R. I., Rabbi Ginsburg attended Boston and Columbia Universities and Oxford University in England. He studied at the Rabbinical Academies of New Haven, Conn., and New York and is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Hebrew Laws at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York.

During the war Rabbi Ginsburg served as an Army chaplain in the European theater of operations and worked among displaced persons in Germany. He is the author of "Voice of Prayer," a series of nonsectarian services for special occasions, and "Prisoners of Hope," a pamphlet about postwar Germany.

He is a member of the New York Board of Rabbis, the Rabbinical Assembly of America, honorary president of the "United Zionist District" of New York, and has been active in work with Jewish youth groups and in interfaith organizations.

Woman Held In Slaying

Florence Holmes, 53, of 490 Casey ct. sw., was ordered held for action of the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday following an inquest into the death of her common-law husband, Tasco Holmes, 47.

He died Sunday at Gallinger Hospital of stab wounds suffered a short time before in their home. Police said Mrs. Holmes told them she stabbed him with a paring knife after he had been drinking heavily and menaced her with a knife.

Bond Presents New Store . . .

OPENING WEDNESDAY—The camera looks across F st. at the strikingly modern new Bond Store which will have its formal opening Wednesday

Bond Formally Opens 7 Floor Clothing Store on Wednesday

The greatly enlarged, ultra-modern Bond Store at 1335 F st. nw. will formally open at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

The clothing store, enlarged from two to seven floors and now occupying the entire F st. building, presents a striking appearance from the street.

Tenth Store in Chain

Air-conditioning and new artificial lighting have done away with the necessity for many windows, according to J. W. Connors of New York, general manager and vice president of Bond Stores, Inc.

The Washington store is the tenth store to be opened this spring by the chain, a leader in architectural experiment in modern design.

In answer to a "sidewalk" question, Connors said the store's handsome exterior can be cleaned simply by washing it down.

Interior of the store is in keeping with the exterior, with color schemes adapted to the merchandise offered. Soft blue and gray, for example, are the color themes on the second floor, where men's clothing is featured.

Anniversary Occasion

The formal opening of the enlarged Washington store Wednesday coincides with the fortieth anniversary of the start of Bond Stores, Inc., in Columbus, Ohio. The chain now numbers 68 stores across the country.

S. A. Berns, general manager of the Washington store, said the increase from 15,000 to 35,000 feet of floor space and the adding of new departments required increasing personnel from 60 to 70 per cent.

Besides Berns, store executives include: Sam Ettlin, associate manager; Harold Tarvin, credit manager; Murray Warrin, assisted by Miss Ella Packer and Mrs. Gladys Nelson, women's wear; Nat Weston, men's furnishings; Elmer Balster, men's shoes; Ben Houser, men's hats; Frank Collis, display; Mrs. Helen McDaniel, beauty salon; Max V. Hornstone, ladies' shoes, and Miss Sue Holder, millinery.

Lease-Break Cash Taxable As Income

Money paid in exchange for premature termination of a lease is taxable as income, the United States Court of Appeals held yesterday.

The ruling, against the United Cigar-Whelan Stores Corp., upheld a previous decision by the District Board of Tax Appeals.

The corporation several years ago leased a site at 12th and G sts. nw., from Samuel D. Zlotnick, Sidney S. Zlotnick and Rena Zlotnick Kraft. The lease was to run until 1952, according to Court of Appeals records.

In 1946, the Zlotnicks desiring the property for their own use, paid the corporation $30,000 to cancel the lease.

United Cigar-Whelan balked at paying taxes on the $30,000 on the grounds that the deal was "a sale or exchange" of capital assets and hence exempt from District income taxation.

But the appellate court opinion, written by Circuit Judge Henry W. Edgerton, held that "a lease that is canceled is not transferred but terminated."

The opinion went on to say that "it may be argued that the petitioner (United Cigar-Whelan) parted with certain rights and privileges and that, in substance if not in form, these passed to the lessor. But such analysis has little or no bearing on the issue since the meaning of words is not a matter of logic but of usage. No usage that we know of calls cancellation of a lease a sale or exchange."

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and assistants Harry L. Walker and Chester H. Gray represented the District. Attorney Richard J. Roche of New York and Attorneys Chapin B. Bauman and John H. Burnett represented United Cigar-Whelan.

In Memoriam

A booklet of 101 "In Memoriam" tributes suitable for publication is now available without charge. Remembrances for all members of the family and for friends are included. The booklet may be obtained at the front counter in the Post building, by telephoning your request, or by writing to the Washington Post Classified Advertising Department, Washington 4, D. C.

Rutledge Body Here for Rites On Wednesday

Escorted by Marshal Thomas Waggaman of the Supreme Court, the body of Justice Wiley B. Rutledge came to Washington yesterday, preparatory to funeral services which will take place at 3 p. m., Wednesday.

The services will be at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., where he worshiped. The Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, the pastor, will conduct them.

Justice Rutledge, the second member of the court to die in the past two months, died Saturday night at York, Me., of a cardiac condition with which he was stricken on August 27.

The body is at the Gawler funeral chapel, 1750 Pennsylvania ave. nw., where the casket has been closed, at the request of the family. Wednesday morning, it will be taken to the Rutledge home at 4928 Indian lane nw., where it will remain until the funeral services. Cremation will follow, with burial at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Probate Bids Filed on 3 Large Wills

District Court was asked yesterday to probate the wills of three Washingtonians who left a total of more than $1,400,000, when they died here recently.

The largest of the three estates was $694,900 left by Herry Hoskinson, who died August 24 at the age of 72. He was retired vice president and founder of the Sanitary Grocery Co.

The bulk of the estate is put in trust and the income is left to his widow, Mrs. Carrie W. Hoskinson, 3410 Garfield st. nw. The remainder of the trust estate on her death will be divided equally between three of his children, John Henry Hoskinson, 2800 Woodley rd. nw., Mrs. Florence A. H. Hummer of Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Helen M. H. Jones of the Garfield st. address.

Howard L. Wilkins, 83, late president of the Wilkins-Rogers Milling Co., Inc., left an estate of $659,324, according to court papers. He died August 21.

The bulk of the estate is put in pl. nw., and Wilkins' adopted tween two sisters, Lewanna and Lydia K. Wilkins of 1661 Crescent trust, with the income divided bedaughter, Mrs. Harriet Wilkins Dick.

Ultimately, the estate property will be divided among any children Mrs. Dick leaves at her death unless she should chose to dispose of the inheritance by will.

Falls Church Votes to Buy Signal Light

Falls Church City Council last night took steps to ease traffic congestion at two intersections.

The council authorized purchase of a blinker signal light at the junction of Hillwood ave. and Washington sts. at a cost of $203.30.

It also appointed a committee to discuss the traffic problem at Washington and Broad sts. with local merchants.

Both actions were recommended by G. A. Eddy, lighting specialist of Philadelphia and the General Electric Co.

The council, in other action, authorized purchase of 2½ per cent Government bonds with a $25,000 surplus from the million-dollar water bond issue. Eventually, when authorized, the $25,000 will be used to run a pipeline across the Potomac River to Dalecarlia Reservoir in Washington.

Mayor Albert M. Orme told the council he will announce Friday the date for lifting of restrictions on the use of water. The date will depend upon how soon pumps for the new water system can be put into service.

Freedom Train Exhibit to Open Here Saturday

The Freedom Train exhibit, which recently completed a 16-month tour of the United States, will open again to the public here Saturday at 9 a. m. at the National Archives.

The exhibit is scheduled to be on view here until January. It may be seen from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mondays through Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p. m. Sundays and holidays.

Among historic documents on display are Thomas Jefferson's rough draft of the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the Emancipation Proclamation, and the Nineteenth Amendment.

McCarran's Son Forfeits $84.35 On Traffic Charges

Dr. Samuel P. McCarran, 27, son of United States Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), forfeited collateral totaling $84.35 on three traffic charges in Bethesda Police Court yesterday. He lives at 5051 Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, Md.

The charges and collateral were unreasonable speed, $51.45; driving on expired permit, $26.45, and failure to have a registration card, $6.45. He was arrested September 1 on Wisconsin ave., in Bethesda.

Judge James R. Miller ordered the collateral forfeited when Dr. McCarran failed to appear.

Mrs. Marr, 95, Dies; Widow Of Oil Pioneer

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna E. Marr, 95, widow of Charles H. Marr, a pioneer oil man, will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Cleveland.

Mrs. Marr died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Marr Hartman, 126 Irvington st. sw., where she had lived for the past seven years. She had been ill for more than a year.

Mrs. Marr was born in Rockford, Ill. When she was 16, she was married to Mr. Marr and the couple moved to Florence, Colo., where Mr. Marr was employed by the former Arkansas Valley Oil & Land Co. He directed the drilling of the first oil well west of the Mississippi, it is believed.

After Mr. Marr's death,. Mrs Mrs. Marr and her daughter lived in Venezuela, New York, and Florida before coming to Washington. Mrs. Hartman came here as an employe of the Army Security Agency.

Mrs. Marr was a member of the Women's Relief Corps of the Grand Army of the Republic and the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

Besides Mrs. Hartman, she is survived by a grandson, C. M. Carroll, New York City, a granddaughter, Mrs. Walter Tripp, Washington, and a great great grandson, Ronald Greely, Flushing, N. Y.

J. Robertson, Virginia Phone Official, Dies

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Jack Robertson, district commercial manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., died tonight in a Roanoke hospital after a heart attack. He was 44.

During his 19 years in the telephone business Mr. Robertson was stationed in Richmond and Alexandria after getting his early experience in Roanoke.

He returned here in 1945 as district commercial manager and played a leading role in the C.&P.'s postwar expansion in southwestern Virginia.

His wife and two children survive.

Arlington Youth Charged With 2 Housebreakings

An Arlington youth, charged with two housebreakings shortly after he finished serving a 30-day jail sentence for reckless driving, was held yesterday under $1000 bond, pending trial September 16.

He is Robert Smallwood, 18, of 2809 N. Edison st., who, police said, broke into a Safeway Store in Colonial Village, and into the Village Grill at 1713 Wilson blvd., last Friday night. Also held in the Safeway theft is a 16-year-old juvenile.

Arlington police said the two youths took several cases of wine and beer, plus cigarettes and chewing gum from the Safeway, after sampling crab meat and other provisions, then tossing meat and eggs about the walls and floor before leaving.

Ten dollars worth of beer was missing from the Village Grill, police said.

Baltimore Court To Open Today; Hiss Suit Pending

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—Several nationally important cases, including the $75,000 slander suit filed by Alger Hiss against Whittaker Chambers, are pending in the Federal District Court here which opens a new term Tuesday.

Also pending are the tax evasion charge against former Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers and the indictments charging Henry and Murray Garsson, wartime munitions manufacturers, with conspiracy to defraud the United States and with filing false financial statements in connection with the renegotiation of war contracts.

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn said none of these cases has been given a trial date.

A hearing on the Hiss-Chambers slander suit had been postponed during the court's last term pending the outcome of the trial of Hiss on perjury charges in New York. The jury in that case failed to agree and a second trial is expected.

Meyers is accused here of attempting to evade a total of $61,390.14 in income taxes from 1941 to 1946. He is now serving a prison term of from 20 months to 5 years for persuading a witness to lie under oath during a Senate investigation.

Public Health Service Awards $8,614,737 To Press Nation's Fight Against Heart Disease

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Public Health Service's new National Heart Institute last night announced awards of $8,614,737 in Federal funds to push the fight against heart disease.

Coupled with some $1,200,000 allocated earlier this year by the institute, the awards bring to nearly 10 million dollars the amount of Federal money to be spent against heart disease during the fiscal year ending next June 30.

District medical schools shared in the new grants to an aggregate of $95,836, a part of which may be used to set up this area's first "blood vessel bank," at George Washington University Hospital, and to test a new treatment for high blood pressure at Georgetown Hospital.

The total sum awarded was allocated to 85 medical schools and research institutions in 34 States and the District. The grants constitute a formidable battering ram to the door of the disease which claims some 625,000 lives each year in the United States.

Laboratories to Be Built

"This marks the first broad scale Federal support of the attack on heart disease under the National Heart Institute," said Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele, in announcing the grants.

The funds are to be used for new and continued heart research projects, for expanded programs of heart teaching in medical schools, and for the building of additional heart research laboratories throughout the country.

The awards provide funds for basic research, experimentation and stepped up programs in all known and many suspected approaches to medical and surgical treatment of heart disease in all its forms.

Environmental and hereditary factors as well as diet's causes and effects are to be explored. New surgical techniques, artificial heart machines, implantation of artificial valves for the heart, and the usefulness of new drugs such as ACTH and cortisone against rheumatic fever, are projects receiving support.

New Instruments Involved

The money is also to be used to perfect new diagnostic instruments such as the electrokymograph, promising new tool for mass surveys to uncover heart disease in its early stages, and the ballistocardiograph, which measures the blood thrust of the heart's movements.

Secretions of the liver and kidneys into the blood will be investigated to seek out causes of high blood pressure.

Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, the heart study centers of the Nation, share the major grants. In Baltimore, Johns Hopkins University was awarded a total of $593,090, including $495,000 for the construction within a new building of a center for cardiovascular research.

The $8,614,737 distributed was split up into $2,053,310 to finance 189 research investigations in 66 non-Federal institutions; $671,032 for improving and expanding cardiovascular teaching in 46 medical schools and $5,890,395 to provide laboratory facilities for study of heart disease in 22 non-Federal institutions.

Grant Awarded to GWU

In the District, a grant of $10,908 was awarded to George Washington University School of Medicine for investigation into "restoration of blood vessels." The project is headed by Dr. Brian Blades, chief of thoracic surgery at GWU's new hospital.

Dr. Blades said the money will be used in the study of the preservation of blood vessels by refrigeration and nutrient solutions for later use in replacing diseased and damaged blood vessels. Establishment of a "blood vessel bank" at the hospital is contemplated but depends on success of the investigation, he said.

A $25,000 research grant was awarded to Georgetown University School of Medicine for work on "the effect of organomagnesium compounds on essential hypertension." This project is under the direction of Drs. Charles F. Geschickter, Harold Jeghers, William B. Walsh and Martin Rubin.

The money, it was explained by the research team, is to be used to further investigation of the benefits in lowering high blood pressure in patients by the administration of oil-soluble salts of magnesium. Heretofore, it was explained, magnesium salts could not be absorbed by the patient until their development, at Georgetown, into oil-soluble forms.

One of Two Over 50 Affected

Importance of the project, it was explained, is emphasized by the fact that about one of every two persons over 50 years of age suffers high blood pressure. The new oil-soluble magnesium salts have already been shown as nontoxic, and can be administered by mouth as well as by injection. Reduction of blood pressure by the new compounds has also been demonstrated, but much more clinical study is required to fully evaluate the treatment, it was stated.

Another District research grant, for $18,000, was awarded to Dr. John B. Johnson, professor of internal medicine at Howard University. The money is for study of the relationship between blood pressure of the pulmonary arteries and electrocardiographic findings of right ventricular hypertrophy, a designation for certain deviations noted in electrocardiograms.

The sum of $7128 was awarded to Dr. John J. Curry of Georgetown University School of Medicine for continued studies in cardiac asthma.

Heart teaching grants allocated to District medical schools totaled $28,000, evenly divided between Howard University College of Medicine and Georgetown University School of Medicine.

The National Heart Institute, at Bethesda, was established in August, 1948, under authority of the National Heart Act. It is one of the National Institutes of Health, research arm of the United States Public Health Service. Besides channeling Federal funds to non-Government institutions working against heart disease, it conducts heart research in its own laboratories.

Honeymooners' Car Rifled; $240, Trousseau Stolen

Misfortune struck a California honeymooning couple here yesterday when a suitcase containing the bride's trousseau and $240 in cash was stolen from their automobile.

Daniel Quinn and his bride, Thelma, of Norco, Calif., told police they stopped Sunday night at a tourist home in the 1300 block of Euclid st. nw. Quinn left the cash locked in his wife's suitcase, which he in turn locked in the rear seat of their parked convertible.

Yesterday morning, he told officers, he found the car top slashed and the suitcase gone. The couple estimated the value of the trousseau at "several hundred dollars." They obtained additional funds and continued their honeymon, police said.

Maryland Honors Francis Scott Key On Defenders' Day

The writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key was celebrated in a program at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, last night as Maryland observed Defenders' Day.

The State holiday commemorates the successful defense of the city against the British during the War of 1812. Key was a temporary prisoner aboard a British ship during the attack on Fort McHenry.

The Defenders' Day program began Sunday night with a mock attack on the fort that resulted in telephone company switchboards being flooded by anxious citizens who thought the city was being bombed.

Narcotics Act Suspect Held for Grand Jury

James J. Jackson, 54, of 808 Dixon ct. sw., was held in $1000 bond yesterday for grand jury action, by United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence. He was charged with violating the Jones-Miller Narcotic Act.

Lt. H. H. Carper, of the police narcotics squad, arrested Jackson at his home at midnight, Saturday. He said that he found Jackson with 50 "decks" of alleged heroin spread out on a table. The "decks" are individual doses sold to addicts.

For Racial Justice

Dr. O'Connor Will Receive Hoey Award

Dr. John J. O'Connor, of Washington, writer, educator and secretary of the Catholic Interracial Council here, will receive the 1949 James J. Hoey Award for Interracial Justice.

Dr. O'Connor

This was announced yesterday in New York by the Rev. John J. LaFarge, S. J., chaplain of the National Catholic Interracial Council. The awards are given annually to one white and one Negro leader in the field of race relations.

The Negro recipient is M. C. Clarke of Cleveland, president of the Dunbar Life Insurance Co. of that city.

Presentation will be made by Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, at 3 p. m., October 30, in New York. That day is the Feast of Christ the King.

Dr. O'Connor, a native of Washington, has received degrees from Georgetown University. He was one of the founders of the Catholic Evidence Guild here, and has been a faculty member of Georgetown University as assistant professor of history and lecturer at the Foreign Service School. He is a former editor of Commonweal and is managing editor of Logistics.

Clarke, a Catholic convert in 1924, is the first Negro elected to the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and formerly was an examiner in the Ohio State Insurance Department.

Girl Injured In School Fall

A 15-year-old girl student at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School was seriously injured yesterday when, police said, she fell down a flight of 20 steps at the school.

She is Elsie Lou Huebsch, 4837 Langdrum la., Chevy Chase, Md. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue squad took her to Georgetown Hospital, where it was said she suffered a possible fractured back and skull.

Determination of her condition awaits a study of X-rays.

Arlington Police Dance

The Arlington County Police Beneficiary Association will hold its annual dance from 9 to 12 p. m. Friday at the Army-Navy Country Club. Roy May's Orchestra will play. Proceeds will go to the Association's retirement and sickness fund.

4 Seized in Cigarette Theft

Alertness of a taxi driver yesterday led to the arrest of four men suspected of stealing $2300 worth of cigarettes from a warehouse.

The cabbie, Conwell Newton, 23, of 4608 Benning rd. se., was driving past the warehouse of the Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., 77 P st. ne., about 2:45 p. m., when he noticed a man clambering from a first-floor window.

At 8th and S sts. nw., Newton picked up Police Pvts. Owen W. Davis and Shelton N. Nuttall and the chase continued.

The quarry got away but not before the fugitives' license number was noted.

Through the tag number, police later picked up Walter Hatcher, jr., 24, of 15 O st. ne., listed as owner; James Taylor jr., 21, of 10 P st. ne.; Fred Owens, 25, of 1319 Emerson st. ne., and John C. Byrd, 41, of 21 P st. ne.

Police recovered 5½ cases of cigarettes of a 32-case total remover from the warehouse.

Arrainged before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence yesterday, the men were held in bond on housebreaking charges for hearing September 22.

85 Tickets Adjusted Here in Week

Police accepted his explanation that children had removed one of the license plates from his auto and adjusted a traffic ticket last week for Robert F. Shreves, 3412 Morrison st. nw. He had been tagged for having improper plates.

His was one of 85 tickets adjusted or canceled by the Police Department last week, according to a report yesterday. One issued to Odell F. Blevins, Fairfax, Va., for parking in a forbidden zone was changed to a warning when he explained he had parked to enter a child in school.

A total of five tickets were canceled for four drivers having diplomatic immunity. They were, Andrei Gusev, Russian Embassy, standing in a forbidden zone and disregarding an officer's signal; Pauline Higgins, French Embassy, double parking; Berardo Salvatori, Argentine Embassy, overtime parking, and Hector Wilkinson, Argentine Embassy, parking in a bus stop.

French Designers Stress Rich Fabrics, Colors

Capital Gets First Glimpse of Paris Fashions

By Peggy Preston

PARIS fashions for fall made their seasonal debut in Washington yesterday when 19 imports were shown to the press by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Eight top names in the Paris fashion field are represented in the comprehensive collection assembled last month in the French capital by Miss Elizabeth Fairall, vice president of Garfinckel's. Included are Christian Dior, Balenciaga, Pierre Balmain, Jean Desses, Jacques Heim, Jacques Griffe, Molyneux and Jacques Fath. For this, the first local showing of this season's imports,

MISS PRESTON

Miss Fairall selected coats, dresses, suits and evening gowns that reveal a cross-section of Paris fashion trends.

The French stamp of approval is given to the following:

1. HEAVY, RICH FABRICS. Thick tweeds are used in suits as well as coats.

2. AN ABUNDANCE OF COLORS, with an emphasis on the "off-black" shades. Vibrant reds and the whole range of gold shades come in for a lot of attention.

3. STRAIGHT, SLIM SKIRTS, with each designer giving them an original twist of his own with the use of inverted pleats, overdrapes or panels.

4. SLIGHTLY SHORTER HEMLINES, with the short evening gown about evenly matched with the full length modes.

5. TRICKY NECK AND SHOULDER TOUCHES that add width without the use of padding.

6. BIG, WIDE-SWINGING COATS with the accent on collars that tend to hide part of the face, calling for small, close-fitting hats.

7. COWL DRAPED COLLARS on every type of garment, flared and curved in front or back. In Paris it was dubbed the "Papoose pouch."

8. THE BLOUSED SILHOUETTE above the belt for suits.

WHILE many of these style features were advanced by American designers in their fall collections earlier in the season, they have been more highly dramatized in the current French styles. Details assume tremendous importance and a bit of drapery by Dior known as the "scissor's cut" transforms a simple garment into something newsworthy and startling .

Still the current French favorite, Dior is represented by four garments in this collection. One of the most beautiful is a black velvet and faille ball gown called "Conservatoire", cut with two jutting lapels on the strapless bodice, and a great sweep of a skirt which is short in front and trails the floor in back.

Balmain's group of five include a wonderful double coat—two coats in one, both of equal length. Top one is black tweed, the under one of brown and black plaid. His pale pink satin evening gown, form fitting and full length, is another handsome garment, given great drama in back with a jutting cuff holding a cluster of roses.

Desses, who showed a preference for color in his collection, is represented with a violet toned silk dress, and Molyneux has a brilliant red taffeta evening gown, the overskirt a great mass of petals covering a short sheath-like skirt.

In September's Bridal Procession

Miss Alexander, Willmott Lewis Jr. Wed

A MARRIAGE of interest to Washington society took place yesterday when Miss Suzanne Alexander, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Alexander, became the bride of Willmott Lewis, jr., son of Sir Willmott Lewis and the late Mrs. Noyes Lewis.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn performed the ceremony at 5 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral and a reception followed at the Chevy Chase Club

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore the gown of pearl trimmed white satin also worn by her sister, Mrs. William P. MacClure, on her wedding day. The bride's veil was of Brussels lace and she carried a prayerbook.

Mrs. MacClure and Miss Sally Alexander were honor attendants for their sister. The bridesmaids included Misses Mary Durant, Ellen Owens, Elizabeth Burbank and Florence Holleman, all of Washington, and Misses Emily Fuller of Providence, R. I.; Mary Jane Pawley of Irvington, N. Y., and Shirley Smith of Long Island The attendants wore gowns of blue satin varying in shade from a faint powder blue to a deep peacock.

Sir Willmott was his son's best man, and the ushers included John Ross Caswell, David and John Sterling, William E. Rollow, Alan Phelps and Wiliam P. MacClure of this city, and Rodney Landreth of Philadelphia, Pa., Sayles Nicholson of Providence and Seth McCormick of Ridgewood, N. J.

The newlyweds will make their home in Washington on return from their honeymoon in Bermuda. The bride attended the Potomac School, Madeira School, Holton-Arms Junior College and the University of Geneva. Her husband attended St. Alban's School, St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., and Yale University.

Allen—Myrick

A wedding of interest to Washingtonians took place September 11 in the Unitarian Church of Peterborough, N. H., when Miss Julia Foster Myrick became the bride of Gordon Allen, jr. The bride, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Myrick of Washington and Santa Barbara, Calif., wore a gown of ivory satin and Brussels lace. Her veil was of tulle and lace and she carried ivory roses.

Officiating at the ceremony were the Rev. Robert L. Zoerheide and the Rev. Palfrey Perkins.

A reception was held at Elm Hill Farm, home of Mrs. George Clement. Following a wedding trip, the couple will live in New York City.

The bride was graduated from the Maderia School and attended Radcliffe College. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Herbert Myrick of Santa Barbara and Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Allen of Boston, attended Milton Academy and was graduated from the Darrow School and Harvard University where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding Institute and the Delphic Club. During the war he served in Europe with the Army's Seventy-Ninth Division. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kendall, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Augustus Holyoke Allen.

Hancock—Brown

Miss Mary Joan Brown became the bride of John Cochrane Hancock, September 10, in the rectory of St. Ignatius Church, Chapel Point, Md. The Rev. William H. Powell officiated.

Mrs. Hancock is the daughter of Robert C. Brown and the late Mary Brent Brown of La Plata, Md., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John P. Hancock and the late Mr. Hancock, also of La Plata. Paul D. Brown gave his niece in marriage. She wore white chantilly lace and carried white roses and stephanotis. Miss Margaret Brown was maid of honor and Misses Theresa McDonagh and Ruth McManus also attended the bride. Russell Levering served as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Brown were hosts at a reception following the ceremony at Nelton, La Plata. On return from their honeymoon in New England and Canada, the newlyweds will live in La Plata.

Cook—Whitt

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Marie Whitt to Frederick Andrew Cook took place September 3 at the Community Methodist Church in Arlington, Va., with the Rev. Hampden H. Smith, jr., officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Whitt and her husband is the son of Mrs. Frederick A. Cook, all of Arlington. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white marquisette and lace and carried white roses. Miss Mary Johnston was maid of honor and Miss Peggy Edgerton served as bridesmaid. The best man was William Cook and the ushers included Ramon Smith, William R. Whitt, George A. Nealon and James D. Nealon.

After their Florida honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Cook will live in Washington. Mr. Cook is a student at the University of Maryland.

Monetary Leaders Set Party Pace

AMBASSADORS and members of commonwealth embassies were guests yesterday at a cocktail party given by the British Ambassador and Lady Franks in honor of the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Ernest Bevin, and Mrs. Bevin, and the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps.

Garden flowers of white hydrangea and scarlet salvia decorated the ballroom where guests were received. Lady Franks wore a black taffeta frock and Mrs. Bevin was in powder blue.

After cocktails, the three distinguished visitors from Great Britain dined with Camille Gutt, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, at his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Other dinner guests were the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, ECA Chief Paul Hoffman; Hubert Ansiaux, director of the National Bank of Belgium; Henri Liebaert, Minister of Finance of Belgium, and Mrs. Liebaert; and Mrs. G. Pisart.

A dinner party for some 50 officers of foreign central banks was given last evening by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board. Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the board, received his guests in the Pan American Room of the Statler Hotel at 7 o'clock.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Bevin was honored at a small luncheon given by Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador. Today Mrs. Bevin will be entertained at a luncheon given by Senora de Berckemeyer, wife of the Peruvian Ambassador.

U. S. Naval Officers Get Peruvian Decorations

AT a reception yesterday afternoon decorations from the Peruvian government were conferred on a group of United States Naval officers and civilians. The host and hostess on this occasion, the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer, received guests in the embassy drawing room at 6 o'clock. Those in attendance included families of the honorees, naval attaches of other countries and Federal officials.

Order of the Cruz al Merito Naval was awarded the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Vice Admiral John Dale Price, and Rear Admiral Edmund T. Woodridge, for service and friendship to Peru. Former Senator Hiram Bingham, discoverer of Machupichuc, ruins of an Inca fortress in south Peru, was presented with the Gran oficial of the Order El Sol of Peru.

The Gran Cruz of the Order El Sol of Peru was conferred on the Spanish Ambassador-at-Large, Felix Lequerica; while Harold Roig, Douglas Campbell, and Harold Harris were decorated with Commander of the Order of El Sol of Peru.

Guatemalan Envoy Feted At OAS Luncheon

DON ISMAEL GONZALEZ-ARE-VALO, retiring Ambassador of Guatemala to the United States and to the Organization of American States, was honored yesterday at a luncheon given by the Council of the OAS at the Pan American Union. Fall flowers in three bouquets centered a long table in the Hall of Flags, where the luncheon was held at 1 o'clock.

A special session of the council preceded the luncheon. Dr. Gonzalez is leaving soon for Guatemala, where he is Minister-designate of Foreign Relations. Until a new ambassador is appointed here, Don Francisco Linares Arnada, Counselor, will serve as Charge d'Affaires.

American Tourists Find It Hard to Part With Cash In Marshall Plan Countries

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WITHIN the past four months, this department has been shopping, both window and cash in seven European capials, six of them Marshall Plan countries. While having fun, annexing a few beguiling gewgaws, we absorbed quite a bit about economics. With little encouragement we could be persuaded to give pointers to Messrs. Harriman, Hoffman, Bevin and Cripps.

Alphabetically, our operations extended to such outposts as Berlin, Copenhagen, London, Oslo, Paris, Stockholm and Vienna. Surprisingly, next to Paris feminine shopping was most attractive in Vienna.

This was particularly pleasing since on a visit some thirty months ago practically every store in the Austrian capital was tight shut. Purchases when there was anything to buy, were maneuvered solely with cigarettes or food. Even the almighty dollar went begging.

The amazing improvement is realistic proof of the boost four hundred million ECA dollars have given to Austria's economy.

Expert Opinions

ODDLY enough for someone who, in prewar days bought little but stockings and a few summer dreses in this country, we returned with a sizeable stock of uncashed checks.

The reasons for this (to us) frustrating situation were:

A. What appeared to be a moderately developed luxury urge was outrageously expensive.

B. More utilitarian wardrobe items could be bought cheaper, better made at home.

This considered opinion was bolstered by two widely divergent experts, Hedda Hopper and our teen-age daughter. Miss Hopper, installed incognito (she insisted) at the Paris Ritz, after grumbling about general expense, emphasized in her deep contralto "I have bought absolutely nothing."

"What, not even one hat?" we quavered, deeply shocked.

"They're better in Hollywood," she replied incisively, consigning Paris millinery to total oblivion.

Our daughter, a shrewd shopper, who scans most fashion publications, reads ads avidly, exclaimed after viewing a top drawer Paris couture collection, "everything's too fancy." And, after trying on tweeds, suede vests and jackets in London, verdicted "they're too expensive. The material is good but the way they're cut isn't."

As further emphasis, Lady Mendl who, as interior decorator Elsie de Wolfe, made a fortune selling her taste, told us, "I've seen most of the clothes. Fortunately I find them as ugly as they are expensive."

Fascinating as Ever

THOUGH Paris collections, so slightingly appraised by the forementioned, were out of reach for all but the most handsomely heeled, we found them fascinating as ever. There was a nice little job from Dior called "Venus." A showpiece with a thousand dollar price tag, its skirt, concocted from paillette sewn leaves, was reminiscent of Paul Poiret's plushier fantasies.

At Jean Desses, where some skirts shrank almost kneehigh, mannequins trotted in half boots with buttoned uppers, their close cropped heads all but concealed under creations tricorned like Madame Perkins trademark or steepled like a Wilbur bud.

Autumn prices, several notches higher than in spring, can't be blamed on the individual Parisian couturier. Just as the August collections were scheduled a Communist-inspired strike of midinettes (the girls who actually do the sewing) almost cancelled showings to assembled American buyers. Dressmakers not subsidized by fabric manufacturers or other commercial angels teetered on bankruptcy's edge.

Today even the simplest dress costs around $300, snappy evening gowns a few century notes additional. The upswing of traditionally modest French wages makes profit difficult, almost impossible "unless we achieve some sort of outlet in the States," as a fashionable milliner sighed.

Imaginative Designs

IN Sweden women's clothing recently went off rationing. Stockholm store windows are filled with United States raincoats (a prime necessity in Scandanavia), California playshoes, nylon niceties straight from America.

What the tourist spender finds is the famous Swedish glass, expensive and much of it repetitiously old fashioned; beautiful often inexpensive ceramies; and enchanting materials, mostly linen or cotton, handblocked in imaginative designs which should send our flossier decorators into a tizzy.

The Swedes created graceful gold and silver jewelry a definite cut above this country's costume baubles. They have innumerable attractive gadgets to abet their remarkably comfortable way of life, but prices are sky high. Our prize purchase was felt ballet slippers embroidered with woolen flowers made gayer with sequins and glittery beads.

A female with money to spend has a tough time in Norway. Excepting gloves and handbags, all feminine clothing is rationed. The stores have a limited variety of nice home products, heavy sweaters handknit in wonderfully devious designs, national dresses of the charming dirndl type. But without coupons they can't be had.

Everything's cheap and after terrific indecision we acquired gloves knit with reindeer design, a handbag of reindeer skin, one side with fur, t'other without.

Tourist's Dream

STROLLING down Vienna's Kaertner Strasse, wandering through Salzburg's narrow streets was almost like old times. Bomb damage has been almost unnoticeably repaired. Show windows are chockful of leather goods, exquisite enameled, doodads in brass.

In such stores as Lanz there is endless variety of traditional Tyrolean sweaters, skirts, brief jackets, blouses, sandals, bolts of heavy linen in ravishing colors.

Everything for la vie sportif but little for conventional city wear. And since the dollar, changed openly by the hotel porter, brings 25 shillings rather than the official 10, it's dreamy for the American tourist. For twelve dollars you can get a heavy, handknit sweater with silverish buttons, and you can get the works in a dirndl for 15 dollars. We know little of tariffs but everything we saw would sell like hot cakes in Washington.

Red Cross Needs 600 Volunteers

AN INTENSIVE fall recruitment drive for nearly 600 new Red Cross volunteers is getting under way this week, according to Mrs. David E. Finley, chairman of Volunteer Services for the District Red Cross.
nounced today.

The volunteers are needed in hospitals, in the Red Cross Blood Center, at the chapter house, in Home Service, and at Walsh House, Mrs. Finley said. They are needed to serve as Red Cross Nurse's Aides, Staff Aides, Gray Ladies, Social Welfare Aides and Motor Service drivers; also to do Arts and Skills work with patients in hospitals; to sew, knit and make surgical dressings, work on Canteen details and as hostesses for ward parties in local hospitals.

"Our volunteer needs are ever large," Mrs. Finley said. "Both women and men with spare time to give are needed in carrying out the Red Cross obligations. Special training is provided for the workers, so that each volunteer is prepared for her special duties."

Mrs. Finley asked that all persons interested in Red Cross work call the Volunteer Services recruitment office, REpublic 8300, Extension 2177, or drop by the Red Cross chapter house, 1730 E st., between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Men? No, Indeed

Living Costs Chief Topic For Women

What do you think women talk about when they get together? Men? No, indeed. The question most discussed when the fair sex meet at parties or at the local hairdresser's is the "high cost of living."

What do you think is the next most discussed subject? Fashions, or the newest techniques of child rearing? No, you are wrong again. In the No. 2 spot on the list of feminine discussion topics is—hold on to your hats—business and economic conditions in our country.

A leading woman's magazine recently asked a cross section of its readers what were the topics they discussed most frequently. These are the results as reported in the Woman's Home Companion: First, the high cost of living; second, business and economic conditions in our land; third, relations with Russia; fourth, local problems; fifth, Government spending.

In discussing the problem that is uppermost in the minds of America's housewives, an Illinois woman said, "We must have one-track minds because my friends and I are still talking the most about the same thing we were harping on two years ago—prices."

In summing up the feelings of the women surveyed, the Companion reports that they all seemed to feel that the bubble of inflation has burst at last, even though high prices remain to plague them.

On The Club Front: You Can Tell A Secretary

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

DO YOU KNOW the difference between a secretary and a stenographer?

According to a past president of the National Secretaries Association, "a stenographer is paid to do and a secretary is paid to think."

The association claims that it does not want to cast any aspersions on the stenographer, but is eager for the public to differentiate. The secretaries gather here for the organization's first Southeastern regional meeting, opening Friday, September 16, at the New Colonial Hotel. The local three-year-old Presidential Chapter, currently headed by Miss Ellen Carey, will be hostess to the visiting delegates during the weekend conclave.

Organized over seven years ago in Kansas City, Mo., the NSA now has some 10,000 members in nearly 300 chapters throughout the Nation. Aims of the association are: (1) elevate standards of the secretarial profession; (2) provide educational benefits; (3) sponsor civic and social activities.

Foremost project is to professionalize the secretarial field through its Certified Professional Secretary program. To obtain a CPS rating a secretary must pass the association's rigid examinations now being set up for next spring.

On the welfare front, the Presidential Chapter paid the costs of sending a young spastic paralysis victim to the D. C. Speech Clinic for therapeutic treatments and training. Chapter members also recorded minutes of the Blinded Veterans Association's recent convention here.

SATURDAYS and Mondays are the frequency days for home accidents. Furthermore, the accident hours are just before meal time. These are only a few of the findings of Irma Gene Nevins Holloway, pioneer in safety education. The past president of the D. C. Business and Professional Women's Club is being applauded by Look Magazine in its September 26 issue, which will be released today.

Currently head of the school and college division of the Greater New York Safety Council, Irma Gene was the first woman to be certified as an instructor in driver education and training by the American Automobile Association. An automobile accident back in her home State—Kansas—prompted the career in safety education.

IF YOU'D like to visit the agencies financially helped by contributions to the United Community Services, more popularly known as the Community Chest Federation, get ready for a tour. A group of Red Feather "come and see tour hostesses" will escort you on one of a series of 24 tours, scheduled to begin September 19.

Members of the Service Guild of Washington, trained especially for the job, will take the first fortnight duty. Mrs. Albert E. Arnet, Guild vice president, is chairman of the organization's hostesses. Starting points of the tours will vary. For reservations and further information, telephone Mrs. Helen Martin, Metropolitan 2284.

In Getting Married to Student Husband, Career Girl Assumed She Could Keep House And Hold Job With Ease; It's Not So Simple

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Before my marriage a year ago I was interested in the usual pursuits of a career girl, namely, some social life, some recreational activities and some special studies on the side. I was just hitting my stride in a big city, to which I had come two years before, when John and I were married.

Now I am a housewife in addition to holding an exacting office job, and I find that I am completely exhausted every evening, by the time my housekeeping chores are done. John is working to complete a law course, which means that he studies at night, with the exception of Fridays, when we usually go out together—but even then, I'm nearly always too fagged to be a good companion.

When I married, I knew that John wasn't in a position to fully support me, but I assumed that I had abundant vitality with which to do two jobs, and have energy left over for social life besides. But now I am wondering if I should allocate part of my earnings to hiring a domestic helper; or whether it would be good management for John and myself to take our evening meals out occasionally.

Craves Change From Monotony

JOHN has another year in school before he will be ready to start earning a lawyer's income, and as an economy help to him, I have insisted on doing every bit of the housework, except of course the heavy laundry. But I rather doubt that I can continue the strain much longer and I find myself thinking yearningly of my home and family in a distant city.

Inasmuch as John studies every night, do you think it would be advisable or proper for me to resume some social pursuits with unmarried girl friends? Am I physically exhausted or suffering from monotony? And what is your prescription for me? C. B.

New Model Husbands Help With Housework

DEAR C. B.: If John is hoeing his row without complaint in these lean years of struggle, industriously bent on developing substantial future earning power, then I think it only fair of you to manage without paid household help, if such an economy is necessary to keep a balanced budget.

However, your spirits may need the "lift" of more systematic household assistance from John than you thought to ask, or he to offer, when you were drafting your original teamwork plans. If you are doing office work on a full-time schedule, then it seems hardly fair for you to be "doing every bit of the housework," too.

As a matter of fact, the latest model American bridegrooms, those seasoned in the GI school of experience, are becoming unblushing experts at helping a wage-earning wife run a home like clockwork. Taking turns at cooking, bedmaking, washing dishes, etc., doesn't detract from their self regard in the least; all they require is that the little woman decide on a schedule and stick to it.

Agree on Methods of Dividing Chores

THUS MY ADVICE is to study Mary Davis Gillies' textbook "How to Keep House" (Harper & Brothers), as a guide in working out a streamlined, time-saving routine attack on heavy chores. When you've drafted a routine that covers everything, then confer with John as to what revisions he may prefer in order to handle his fair share of the work at hours most convenient to him.

John's immediate reaction may be one of pained surprise, and if so, explain to him the touching truth that you were simply overly ambitious in the beginning, to think that you could manage so much without calling on his superior strength to help you through; and in any event, you may take for granted that in the circumstances he owes you that type of support, in exchange for the financial contribution you are making to the home.

In all probability you are suffering from a blend of both fatigue and monotony, but I hardly think that falling back on the company of unmarried girl friends, while John studies evenings, is the "creative" solution of that. I believe the time would be better spent in staying companionably at home with John, doing some instructive reading too, until his legal course is completed—and you can go out together to have more fun. M. H.

About Lengthening Coat

I have a coat two years old which I would like to have lengthened. It does not have a large enough hem, but it does have fur on the sleeves from the elbow to the wrist. I am wondering if this fur could be transferred to the hem of the coat to make it longer? Do you know of any concern that might help me? J. E. W.

Unless the sleeves are very full, there is a question in my mind whether there would be enough fur to materially increase the length of the coat. Had you thought of using another material to lengthen it? You could use an interesting grouping of pin tucks or braid to cover the seam and make the new material blend with the old. If you do this, this same decorative motive should be repeated elsewhere on the coat, possibly at the end of the sleeve.

To find the best solution to this problem, I suggest you take the coat to one of the firms listed under "dressmakers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book. There are several firms listed there which make a specialty of ladies' tailoring and alterations. Visit two or three and get their suggestions for alterations and then you can easily decide what to do.

At long last we are about to move and I am beset with problems as to how to fit my present color scheme and furnishings into our new home. At present our living room has gray walls, the bookcases are painted gray on the outside and carmine red inside. Slip cover on the sofa is a modern pattern with the predominating colors black, gray and red. My biggest problem will be that the walls in the new apartment are beige or light tan and must remain that way. I don't think the gray book cases will look well against the beige walls, do you? I cannot discard the slip cover, it is brand new and must work around it. Can you suggest what color I could paint the bookcases and also what color can I dye my drapes and a slip cover on a smaller chair, to bring the whole thing together and blend in with my sofa cover? The living room and dining room are combined into one large room. I need to use plain painted chairs at my mahogany dining table for awhile. What color can they be painted so they will go well with the mahogany table and not look makeshift? I. R.

Your bookcases would be more effective if they matched the walls exactly or are a striking contrast. If they are large and the room is not too large, you could paint them the same color as the walls. If small, they could be painted black—in both instances leave the interior red as before.

The drapes could be a beige just darker than the walls. To dye them this color you will probably have to first remove all color from the drapes with color remover and then redye them. This operation can be done easily in an automatic washer—if you do not have one you can do it in some public automatic laundries.

The best color for the small chair, it seems to me, is red to match the red in the slip cover. Paint the chairs to match the bookcase. Also, you could repeat the red of the small chair cover in seat covers for the dining room chairs.

Here are directions for making "Cherry Bounce," sent in response to F. R. S.'s request: Pack a stone crock half full of washed, wild cherries and cover with rum (New England, if obtainable). Let stand three weeks. Strain and bottle. N. B. G.

I have a pair of those souvenir china slippers with the portraits of Martha and George Washington painted on the vamps. I have noticed in the department stores that many similar slippers are stuffed and covered with velvet to be used as pin cushions. Is it possible for you to give me the directions as to how these little cushions can be fitted into the slipper and with what material they are stuffed? E. S.

The best stuffing material would be cotton. Here's the way I'd go about this job: Fill the slipper tightly with the cotton, using enough so it is rounded at the top. Now, cut the velvet large enough to allow an inch or more tuck-in all around. Lay the velvet on top of the cotton and evenly push the extra velvet down between the cotton and the slipper. To push the velvet down, use a blunt instrument such as the handle of a small metal finger nail file. If pushed down the entire depth of the slipper it will probably stay without being fastened, but if you wish to fasten it you could hold the velvet away from the sides of the slipper with the nail file handle and drop some household glue deeply into the space. Do not use so much glue that it will be forced to the top when the nail file is removed.

Can you offer any suggestions as to what causes yellow stains to appear on washable lingerie and other cottons and rayons after washing? We use only well-known brands of soap flakes and warm water and there are no garments which run in the wash. Can you suggest any way to remove these stains? J. F.

The most usual reason for the development of yellow stains after washing is incomplete removal of soap through rinsing or too slow drying. Sometimes the stains from incomplete rinsing will not appear until the garment is ironed.

If the stain has been ironed into the fabric, it is not always possible to completely remove it, even with bleaching. Bleach should remove the stain if the fabrics have not been ironed, however. You can use a household bleach on the cotton and sodium perborate on the rayon. Soak the cotton in a solution of 2 tablespoons household bleach to a quart of cold water for 15 to 30 minutes.

For the rayon, mix the perborate in the proportion of 4 tablespoons to a pint of water and let the garment soak in the solution for 30 minutes.

Would you please tell me how to remove a Burgundy wine stain from an eggshell-colored home-crocheted table cloth? V. S. W.

Sponge the stain with water or a mixture of equal parts of water and alcohol. Or, better still, allow the stain to soak in the solution. When well-soaked, rinse and pour liquid shampoo on the stain and rub between the hands. Since stains are especially difficult to remove from crochet work, you may have to repeat the soaking and washing several times. Be sure to use shampoo soap to wash it for this will not set the stain in the fabric as some soaps will.

If this treatment does not completely remove the stain, try a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid. Drop on the stain with a medicine dropper, let stand a few seconds, and repeat. Stop action of the acid with baking soda and spread in the sun. Rinse thoroughly.

Proper Nutrition Key to Longevity

By Ida Jean Kain

How would you like to belong to a longevity club—a club whose prime purpose is to help you live longer? Perhaps you're not particularly interested in living to be old . . . you may even dread the idea of getting up in years and losing your health. But that's just the point—you don't have to settle for just old age; you can have both a long life and a healthy one.

Nine years ago a group of physicians conceived the idea of appointing a committee on longevity to try to cut down the group's death rate. The committee got a thorough report on the physical condition of the men and, when necessary, saw that they did something about it. Apparently even doctors have to be prodded now and then. An article, reporting on the success of that project, stated that "16 members of the group are alive today, and usefully at work, beyond the expectation of the group's mortality table." The article went on to point out that the improvement in life expectancy is only part of the story. Even more encouraging is the improved health and vigor of the men.

Good Habits

What does that committee consider important in insuring a long and useful life? Useful weight, proper diet, the right mental attitude, regular physical checkups, prompt treatment of illness, good health habits in general.

Unfortunately, longevity clubs are rare, but why not appoint yourself a committee of one to work on the long-and-happy-life aim? Start with the three meals a day. Then when you're a centenarian and someone asks to what you attribute your ripe old age, speak right up and tell him, "Good food habits."

Daily Requirements

Scientists and nutritionists agree that nutrition plans an important role in longevity and that what you eat between the ages of 40 and 60 determines to a large extent whether you are to have a healthy, vigorous old age, or just old age. Not only that, but an abundance of the keeping-young foods can help extend the prime of life.

Without adequate calcium, iron, protein and vitamins, the body grows old prematurely. Make sure the daily meals include a pint of milk, 2 or 3 vegetables—1 a dark green leafy or yellow, 2 or 3 fruits—1 a citrus, an egg, a serving of lean meat, fish or fowl, and whole grain or enriched cereal or bread and butter. The vague aches, pains and dyspepsia of old age are often directly traceable to an absence of adequate amounts of these foods.

As we get along in years, a greater proportion of the calories must be in these essential foods, since fewer calories are needed because of lessened activity, interial and external. And there is another factor we can bank on: normal weight is essential not only to good health in old age, but to longevity. Proof? People who live to a very ripe old age are never fat!

50 Senators Back Deal for Belasco

By Richard L. Coe

THERE IS A VERY good chance that the Belasco will resume its old career as a theater.

Tomorrow morning the executive committee of the American National Theater and Academy will consider a letter, signed by 50 United States Senators, which substantially removes the critical stumbling block toward its rental of the building.

The letter states that should the Government recapture the theater before a 10-year lease expires, the Senators will support legislation which would compensate ANTA for a portion of the money spent in refurbishing the building. This sum will depend on how much of the lease has expired.

Previous efforts by ANTA to secure a workable lease of the theater have been stymied by a clause permitting the Government to regain use of the site upon a year's notice. Because about a half-million must be spent to restore the theater, the danger of this being water down the drain is obvious. The site is wanted for an extension to the Treasury annex, which is will take congressional appropriation to build.

Under the leadership of Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), an impressive list of Senators, including Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) and Republican Policy Chairman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), has signed a letter setting forth this proposition which will reach President Vinton Freedley of ANTA this afternoon.

The method of freezing the Belasco for theater use means that the building will be leased by the Public Buildings Administration and will not require any vote or further congressional action. It won't cost the Government a cent, instead will bring in money. Previous efforts to restore the Belasco by such congressional bills as those introduced by Senator Douglas and Representative Celler and others have resulted in a complete log-jam. By this direct means of renting the building, the endlessly postponed hearings on the matter and subsequent vote by both houses will be avoided.

Academy Advantages

Should ANTA accept this opportunity, both it and the Washington community will have much to gain. Treasurer-Producer Gilbert Miller will have the opportunity for the Academy so long a favorite subject of his, ANTA will have the chance to build and produce shows and the ridiculous void on the Washington theater scene will be filled.

Naturally, formation of the theater's uses will take time, nor would it be sensible to expect perfection in the first years of ANTA's tenancy. It will be a period of trial and error, but at least a start will be made under an organization whose board includes illustrious names of the American theater, among them that of Helen Hayes, who opens tonight in the Olney countryside in her new vehicle, "Good Housekeeping."

There is every reason to expect that ANTA's executives will accept this opportunity to rent the Belasco. A year ago it bid on the open market for the lease, but the one-year cancellation clause threatened loss of money used to refurnish the theater. ANTA has kept up its interest in all projects to rent the theater and this is by all odds the most favorable to come along.

Mrs. Douglas Acted There

Behind these negotiations lies a great deal of cooperation between the Hill and the PBA. Senator Flander's able young assistant, Larry Henderson, has high praise for administrative persons who've worked on the plan, just when it seemed that this session of Congress would expire without anything done about Washington's theaterless state.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) had done much spadework with his bill and Mrs. Douglas, no doubt thinking of her days as an actress, has been untiring in her efforts. As Emily Taft, Mrs. Douglas was leading lady in "The Cat and the Canary," when it played the Belasco some years ago; her experience as a member of the lower house from Illinois gave her an insight into legislative processes.

One aspect of the story I've been unable to uncover is the lady who prodded Senator Flanders into action. She prefers her anonymity.

The Senators' letter to Mr. Freedley notes:

"The Belasco was acquired by the Government in 1938 as a site for an annex to the Treasury Building. However, no building is contemplated at the present time. In order to protect the interest of the Government, the Comptroller General has ruled that a 10-year lease for the theater must contain a clause permitting the Government to regain use of the site upon a year's notice.

"In view of the heavy capital improvements that ANTA will make to the building, some assurance is necessary to ANTA that should the building be recaptured within 10 years, consideration would be given to compensating ANTA for a proportionate amount of the capital expenditures.

"We the undersigned members of the United States Senate, want to indicate to ANTA at this time that should the Government recapture the theater before the expiration of the 10-year lease, we will support legislation which would compensate ANTA for a portion of the capital expenditures, adjusted to the terminated part of the lease."

By late yesterday afternoon the following Senators had signed the letter:

Lucas, Meyers, McMahon, Taft, Aiken, Ives, Margaret Chase Smith, James E. Murray, Graham, Humphrey, Hendrickson, Pepper, Sparkman, H. Alexander Smith, Cain, Clyde M. Reed, Douglas Green, Baldwin, Brewster, Wiley, Tobey, Langer, Saltonstall, Miller, Ecton and Flanders.

Some 24 others have indicated they, too, will sign the letter.

4400 Building Permit Grants Reflect Growth of Wheaton

On the basis of building permits, Wheaton is larger than either Frederick, Annapolis or Salisbury, Md., the Wheaton Chamber of Commerce was told last night.

E. Brooke Lee, vice president of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and member of the State Planning Commission, said that as of six weeks ago there had been 4400 building permits issued in Wheaton since the fall of 1947.

Figuring four persons to a family dwelling, that would be 17,600 persons—more than Annapolis, the State capital, with 13,009; Salisbury, largest town on the Eastern Shore, with 13,313, or Frederick, with 15,802 population—he said.

Thomas Oysterman, newly elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, asserted that "Wheaton is becoming the community of today." He called upon the organization to support a program of highway and traffic improvements, join in publicizing the route from Rockville via Viers rd. into Silver Spring and Washington, and to urge the Bureau of the Census to make a population count in Wheaton as an inducement to new businesses.

Other speakers included Einar Christensen, president of the Silver Spring Board of Trade; Montgomery County Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw, and Warren Browning, member of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Nearly a hundred persons attended the dinner and dance, held at the Stone House Inn, Four Corners, Md.

First Woman Mayor Named in Yonkers

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Mrs. Edith P. Welty was named the first woman mayor of Yonkers today.

She took over the job after a recount of ballots in the 1947 election showed she had 277 more votes than her nearest opponent.

The recount was made necessary by the resignation of Mayor Curtiss Frank on September 1. Yonkers law provides that the mayor's successor must be the person with the second highest number of votes in the last mayoralty election.

Tennis Coach Accused Of Incest Is Released

Hollywood, Sept. 12 (AP).—Tennis Coach Leslie E. Jahn, 41, was released on a writ of Habeas corpus today after being arrested and booked yesterday on suspicion of incest with his daughter, Laura Lou Jahn, 16, national girls' indoor singles tennis champion.

Although police said the girl told them she had been forced into illicit relations with her father since she was 10 years old, no charges have yet been filed. Jahn has denied the charge, saying the girl was angry because he had refused to permit her to have dates during tennis tours.

Helis Denies Being Costello's Partner in Liquor

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—William ("Golden Greek") Helis, oil magnate and turfman, whose name has cropped up in the Senate's "five per center" investigation, denied through his lawyer today that he was gambling Czar Costello's partner in a liquor business."

Gen. Harry Vaughan, presidential aide, was accused at the Washington inquiry of paving the way for providing Helis during the war with scarce building materials for his Tanforan race track in California. Vaughan denied any irregularity in his conduct.

Correction

The Silver Spring Garden club will hold its first meeting of the year a 8 p. m. Monday at the Jesup Blair Community House. The Washington Post yesterday stated that the meeting would be held last night. The Post regrets the error.

U. S. Jury Acquits 8 in Abducting Negro in Georgia

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 12 (AP).—A deputy sheriff and seven other white men were cleared today of charges of violating the civil rights of a Negro by arresting him wihout a warrant, abducting and beating him.

A Federal court jury acquitted the eight after an hour and 35 minutes of deliberation. The trial began Tuesday.

Judge A. B. Conger directed the jurors to disregard argument of Defense Attorney Fred New that the only issue was "whether you want to believe the white man or the Negro."

United States Attorney John Cowart argued that Government had proved, beyond a doubt, that the men were guilty of manhandling the Negro, William Capers Jarrett of Shiloh, Ga.

The acquitted deputy was Willie V. Chapman of Harris County. The others were Rufus Dunn, William Leverett, William Satterfield, William Carpenter, Thomas Baker, Elisha Baker and Elisha Baker, jr.

Falls Church Water Supply Is Increased

Falls Church's new million-dollar water system went into operation at 12:45 p. m. yesterday, promising relief from the chronic drought that has plagued about 800 city water users since last spring.

Families on high ground were out of water by 4 p. m. on many hot summer afternoons, and a city ordinance forbidding car-washing and lawn-watering has been in effect since spring.

An auxiliary pump, added to two in use previously, will send a total of 950,000 gallons of water daily through the city's 14 miles of new water mains, City Manager Roy F. Dunn said yesterday.

This is 250,000 gallons more than the daily average last summer, Dunn said, but still falls far below a 12-million daily gallonage expected when a new pumping station is completed in October.

Also scheduled for Ocober completion is a million-gallon storage tank, on West Broad st., just outside city limits.

The 14 miles of pipeline were laid in record time, 75 days ahead of schedule, according to Dunn. The work was done under a one-million-dollar bond issue.

Youth Impaled Upon Steel Rod Finally Rescued

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—A 16-year-old boy who fell 15 feet into a sewer excavation was impaled on an inch-thick steel rod for 30 minutes today until rescuers cut him loose with acetylene torches.

The jagged end of the rod protruded about four inches from the boy's right thigh. It was removed during a 50-minute emergency operation at Coney Island Hospital. Doctors said his thigh bone was fractured and his condition critical.

It was not known how the boy, Robert Sorrentino, one of a family of nine children, fell into the excavation.

Fairfax Rezones 4-Acre Tract For Laboratory

Fairfax County supervisors yesterday voted to rezone a four-acre tract near Alexandria to pave the way for construction of a new plant by the National Electronics Laboratory.

The land, situated on Duke st, extended opposite the Quartermaster Depot, will be the site of a building to replace the firm's Alexandria plant, which was swept by a $250,000 fire last month. Henry P. Thomas, attorney for the concern, said the new laboratory would cost $200,000.

The supervisors also agreed to ask an attorney from the State Corporation Commission and the president of the Virginia Water Company to meet with them in the near future for a discussion of rental rates affecting fire hydrants owned by the utility. The rate parley was suggested after representatives of the Oakwood-Springfield-Franconia Citizens Association protested that a proposed annual rental fee of $60 for each hydrant was "exorbitant."

1500 Baltimore Truck Drivers Go Out on Strike

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—Fifteen hundred Baltimore over-the-road truck drivers and helpers went out on strike tonight.

The strike affected 55 Baltimore firms operating over routes extending as far south as Charlotte, N. C., and as far north as Bridgeport, Conn.

The workers are members of the Freight Drivers and Helpers Union, Teamsters Local 557 (AFL). The 55 firms are members of the Baltimore Labor Relations Council, which has been negotiating for a new contract with the union.

George Willinger, president of the local, said that if the 65 trucking companies outside the council do not sign up with the union their drivers would be called out tomorrow.

Harry Lauder Unchanged

Strathaven, Scotland, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Sir Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian-singer who has been ill since August 20 with cerebral thrombosis and uremia, "spent a comfortable night," with no change in his condition, attending physicians said today.

The Lyons Den . . .

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Erwin Piscator, the producer-director, staged the drama festival at Lake Placid this summer. He rented a home next door to the one occupied by Governor and Mrs. Lehman. A few days ago, when Gov. Lehman announced that he would accept the nomination for the United States Senate, Piscator saw him tending the garden, while Mrs. Lehman sat nearby reading a book . . . "Congratulations, Governor," was Piscator's greeting. "And I'm delighted to see you looking so well. You look as fit as a fiddle" . . . "No, not a fiddle," said Mrs. Lehman. "A cello."

Last week Mayor O'Dwyer, at a City Hall ceremony, was host to the ten bishops who arrive from the British Isles. Each bishop was introduced to the Mayor, whose acknowledgment each time was, "I'm very proud to meet you" . . . Nine times O'Dwyer repeated the acknowledgment, "I'm very proud to meet you." But the tenth time, he varied it by beaming: "I'm very, very, very honored to meet you, sir," for this was the Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, representing the Archbishop of Armagh and the Primate of Ireland.

Winthrop Rockefeller and Sonny Tufts visited the Stork Club last week, holding their private Yale '35 class reunion. Tufts told of another Yale '35 classmate, Promoter Lex Thompson, who signed him to a $50-a-week contract in return for a trip to Hollywood and a percentage of his movie earnings for a few years. When Tufts arrived in Hollywood he immediately was signed for his first movie, "So Proudly We Hail," and Thompson collected . . . "Yes, that was quite a class we had, at Yale '35," said Tufts . . . "Ours was such a good class," said Rockefeller, waving his thumb at Tufts, "that one member of the class of 1934 was smart enough to be held over for an extra year at school, just to qualify for the class of '35.

Quonset Huts for Israel

Tel Aviv, Sept. 12 (NYHT).—To help combat its immigrant housing shortage, the Israeli government is turning toward America's Quonset hut. An initial order for 1000 will be given to the Great Lakes Steel Corporation, government sources reported today.

Take Responsibility for Tired Children

Young children don't always realize that they are tired. This is particularly true if they are busy playing with other youngsters. Yet there may be unmistakeable signs of fatigue even though they insist they aren't tired.

Some youngsters become restless, others droop, only to revive again through the stimulation of play with other children. Still others show excitable, "silly" behavior until one almost would think they had been drinking. As we live with our children, we learn to know the special signs that tell us they need rest.

When fatigue shows itself, we should take direct, though not grim, action. We cannot rely on the child's own judgment. Sometimes, presenting an even more attractive alternative to his play of the moment will work. Promising to read a well-loved story, or suggesting a quiet game that's fun are among such approaches. At other times, a calm matter-of-fact arrangement for rest will work. The favorite blanket may be supplied, a toy to "sleep" with him presented or the parent may sit alongside the bed. Whatever the method, we owe it to the tired child to see that he gets needed rest.

10-Ton Brain, Number Whiz, Is Revealed

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Development of a new electronic brain that weighs 10 tons and can work difficult mathematical problems in a fraction of a second was announced by Harvard University tonight.

The announcement came on the eve of a four-day symposium on electronic and mechanical brains. Under joint sponsorship of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance and Harvard University.

The new Harvard "brain" is known as Mark III, is capable of storing 64,000 digits in its memory system, which consists of eight storage durms and a sequencing drum.

Problems are solved by feeding coded information on a magnetic tape to the sequencing drum which in turn "commands" the computing section to accomplish the desired operations with the numbers in the storage durm.

Mark III can multiply two 16-digit numbers together more than 1000 times faster than a human being can write down the 32 figures to be multiplied.

2 From Area Cited For Service in Recreation Field

Two Washington area men have been cited by the American Recreation Society for outstanding service in the recreation field.

The citations, presented at the society's congress in New Orleans Sunday night, went to Charles K. Brightbill, executive secretary of the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare of the Armed Forces, and Wayne C. Sommer, director of the YWCA's Camp Letts.

Brightbill, who lives at 5924 Johnson ave., Bethesda, formerly was national director of the Veterans Administration recreation service.

Sommer, who lives at 3900 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, formerly was recreation secretary for the Council of Social Agencies.

Senate Hearing Set Today on Sesqui Fund

Senate hearings on the proposed 3 million dollar National Capital Sesquicentennial fund, postponed from yesterday, are slated for 10 a. m. today. The fund has been refused by the House, but planners of the celebration hope the Senate may include it in the supplemental appropriation bill.

TRY IT — CREPE PAPER RIBBONS FOR CONTESTS

On many occasions teachers, scoutmasters and group workers would like to give awards for participants in contests, but the expense of silk ribbons and silver cups is prohibitive. During summer camp we have found that ribbon awards can be made with very little expense by using colored crepe paper. Children are so pleased with these prizes that they pin them up in their rooms at home and take great pride in pointing them out to visitors.

The crepe paper can be cut in the same size and shape as the standard ribbons, and it is surprising how much they look like the real thing. A cardboard strip folded over the top adds strength for displaying and also gives all the room necessary for writing the date, occasion and the participant's name. Too, a safety pin through the back of this card allows for pinning for display. Colored seals pasted on the front show the position the contestant finished in.

Every participant can receive some type of an award even if it is only for entering the contest.

TOMORROW: CARRY A POCKET CHECKERBOARD.

What's the Verdict?

BUSINESS OR PLEASURE?

Q. Flint, a jack-of-all-trades, made a down payment on a new automobile, giving to the finance company a mortgage on the car to secure payment. To protect itself against all probabilities, the company took insurance on the car against damage by collision or fire "while said car is being used for either business or pleasure." Flint's business getting poor, he turned to banditry. In the course of an attempted getaway after holding up a store, he ran into a bridge abutment, ruining the car. The finance company demands damages from the insurance company. Is it liable?

A. The question then is whether banditry is either business or pleasure. The answer has to be "no," both in literal interpretation and as a matter of public policy.

The insurance company is not liable. F. L. D.

Who says it's expensive to ride the HIAWATHAS?

Some people think it's costly to travel on "glamor trains" like The Milwaukee Road's HIAWATHAS. Nothing could be further from the truth!

You'll verify that when you check the cost of coach travel on The Milwaukee Road against other carriers on land or in the air.

Add in the extra luxuries you get, and we think you'll agree that it's not only delightful but thrifty to ride the Speedlined HIAWATHAS.

Agriculture? Isn't That Henry Wallace?

On my radio program the other day, I invited listeners to give themselves a test.

"List all the cabinet departments," I suggested, "and then see if you can write beside each of them the name of the cabinet member who now runs that department.

"And if you get all of them," I added, "try to remember the names of all the members of the Supreme Court."

Several listeners took me up on the first half of the suggestion (nobody even attempted the Supreme Court) and it's obvious that they didn't cheat. Too many mistakes.

Most frequent boners were in Commerce, Agriculture, Interior, Justice and Post Office.

Hardest name to erase from the public's memory, it seems, is that of Clint Anderson. To many Americans, he's still Secretary of Agriculture.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

Cal Pierson of 5403 39th ave., Hyattsville, Md. (he's a consultant on dog obedience training) suggests that "thoroughbred" is the wrong word for dogs.

Horses "thoroughly bred" for racing are called thoroughbreds; dogs of known and registered ancestry are "purebreds."

SKEPTIC

Clara Sternecker reports that on the road to Baltimore she saw a sign which said, "Milk Shakes."

Ready to concede the truth of that announcement, she soon encountered a second sign which said, "Frozen Milk Shakes."

Clara is keeping an open mind on the credibility of advertising signs.

PEOPLE ARE NICER THAN ANYBODY, AREN'T THEY?

Mrs. William Phillips of 2121 Virginia ave. nw. picked up an interesting item the other night. She writes:

"Our party included two disabled veterans of the second war (Gus Rhinehart, a paraplegic, and Wally Pierowicz, a double amputee), and a blinded veteran of the first war, William Phillips.

"Gus was driving his specially equipped Oldsmobile and taking us to the Watergate concert.

"As usual, there weren't any nearby parking places, so I told Gus to park on the lower level, where the musicians leave their cars, and I'd pay for the ticket.

"Just as we parked, a motorcycle cop wheeled up beside us, and I expected we'd get the usual: 'Move along.'

"But he took in the situation at a glance, escorted us to a choice parking spot under Memorial Bridge, lifted the wheelchair from the trunk of the car, and helped Gus get in it.

"I'm sorry that this modest officer wouldn't tell us his name, but he certainly has given me a better impression of our local motorcycle policemen — who aren't always so courteous and considerate.

"An orchid to our anonymous policeman! He's a true Knight of the Motorcycle."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three beautiful, playful kittens, 6 weeks old." (Alexandria 1548.)

"Beautiful gray male kitten, 10 weeks old; very affectionate." (Franklin 4513.)

"Two spoiled and loving male kittens, 5 months old." (Sterling 7795, after 6 p. m.)

"Lovable terrier-type male dog, medium size, very well behaved, likes children." (Falls Church 7861.)

"Two black male kittens, 6 weeks old." (Wisconsin 3379.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Please settle a sales tax argument for us.

We agree that restaurant meals costing $1.25 or less are tax exempt.

But we're not agreed as to what happens if the meal costs more. Do you pay tax on the entire amount, or only on the portion in excess of $1.25?

C. R. Kaetz
1450 Irving st. nw.

Dear Mr. Kaetz:

You pay tax on the whole works. If the meal is $1.30, you pay $1.33.

If the meal is $1.25 and you order a 25-cent bottle of beer with it, the meal is exempt but you pay 1 cent tax on the beer.

Bill.

IRREGULAR ITEM

Karen Kruse of 8521 Glenview ave., Takoma Park, Md., is trying to form a Washington chapter of the Baker Street Irregulars (Sherlock Holmes fans).

For the benefit of the younger set, it might be well to explain that Holmes was a sort of script writer for Basil Rathbone.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

G. B. German of Hyattsville, Md., forwards for my inspection a black-bordered card that somebody has apparently printed up in quantities. On the card is the simple legend:

Here's to the driver,
We wish he were dead,
Who drives with his horn

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Nursing Baruch Grudge

By Drew Pearson

President Truman doesn't nurse grudges against most of his political enemies, but he has a few pet peeves that apparently he will never forget. One of them is gaunt, gray Bernard Baruch, the friend of Presidents, and one of the Nation's few elder statesmen.

Bernard Baruch

A year ago Baruch declined Truman's invitation to serve on a special committee to support his reelection, and Truman, in turn, wrote Baruch one of the most caustic letters of the campaign. He reminded him, among other things, how he had appointed his brother Herman as Ambassador to Holland.

Sequel came the other day when the President tried to persuade his old friend, Admiral William D. Leahy, to become Ambassador to Holland.

"You know how I feel about that old so-and-so, Baruch," said Mr. Truman. "He still has his brother over there in Holland as Ambassador, and I want you to take his place. You're just the man to do it."

"Admiral Leahy declined. Selden Chapin, who was kicked out by the Soviets as Ambassador to Hungary will now take over the Embassy in Holland. Ironically, President Truman rubbed salt in Bernie Baruch's wounds by announcing the forced resignation of his brother on Bernie's birthday, and significantly, the resignation was announced by the White House, not by the State Department which usually announces all diplomatic changes."

Tortoise and the Hare

The House of Representatives and the Senate are in a tortoise-and-the-hare race, and it looks as if the ponderous, slow-moving Senate might win after all.

Though the House gets credit for being the streamlined, efficient branch of Congress, actually the Senate, still sticking to its knitting, is handicapped by the House's absence.

Four important bills, passed by the Senate, now are waiting until the House comes back from its vacation to iron out differences. They are appropriations for the Marshall Plan; 75-cent minimum wage; Federal aid to prevent forest fires, and the basing-point system—of great interest to every small-business man because the new law may drive a hole in the antitrust laws big enough for a cartel to walk through.

The Senate also has edged ahead of the House with four important Truman measures, and now is waiting for the House to get back from holidaying and pass them. They are Federal aid to education; health services for school children; expansion of hospital construction, and national science foundation to encourage science.

Air Junkets

Here are some of the congressional junkets planned or already under way and which caused Secretary of Defense Johnson's aides to get worried about the use of Air Force planes:

1. The Sacred Cow has left for the Interparliamentary Union in Norway with Representatives Cooley (D., N. C.), Poage (D., Tex.), Gore (D., Tenn.), Hope (R., Kans.), Boggs (D., Ala.) and Talle (R., Iowa).

2. Three Congressmen from the House Agriculture Committee will fly, courtesy of the Air Force, to study hoof-and-mouth disease in Mexico. They are: Lind (D., Pa.), Davies (D., N. Y.) and Bramblett (R., Calif.). Representative Worley (D., Tex.) and McMillan (D., S. C.) went on ahead of them—by boat.

3. Cook's Tour—Several members of the House Expenditures Committee have left by Air Force plane for Alaska, the Far East and the Pacific islands to investigate military installations, though this is supposed to be the job of the Armed Services Committee. The group includes: Burnside (D., W. Va.), Riehlman (R., N. Y.), Lovre (R., S. Dak.), and Deane (R , N. C.).

Dog Days at Capitol

There is no longer any doubt that these have been the "dog days" on Capitol Hill. For two Senators literally barked at each other recently in the middle of Senate debate.

August, silver-crested Senator Connally (D., Tex.) held the floor. But he couldn't complete a sentence without Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) butting in.

After one booming interruption, Wherry ended up by whamming his fist on the desk.

"I did not yield for that slam on the desk," grunted Connally

"That is one way to drive a point home," roared back Wherry.

"I feel very much like an old lawyer in my section of the country once did," observed the Senator from Texas, acidly.

"He had as his legal antagonist a very loud and enthusiastic lawyer, who shouted and foamed at the mouth in addressing the jury. When it came the turn of the other lawyer to answer him, he stood up and said: 'If your honor please, Bow-wow-wow-wow.'

"Now that I have answered my opponent, I shall discuss this case," continued Connally.

"Bow-wow-wow-wow-wow-wow," blurted Wherry.

"Mr. President, I do not like to discuss this question in any but the most serious fashion," bristled the Senator from Texas.

"The Senator's answers are just as clear as 'bow-wow-wow-wow'—just as clear!" snorted the Senator from Nebraska.

"Well, I use that kind of language and that kind of explanation — bow-wow-wow-wow!" snapped the Texan.

Then Connally went on with his speech. Wherry listened for a few minutes, then broke in again.
